LINDBERGH IN TOUCH WITH KIDNAPERS

JAPANESE SEIZE WOOSUNG FORTS AS CHINESE FLEE

TOKYO TROOPS TAKE NANZIANG, OBJECTIVE IN WESTWARD DRIVE

(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press.)

Shanghai (Thursday), March 3 (A.P.).—A huge Japanese landing party finally wrested the fort of Woosung from the Chinese under a combined artillery, naval and aerial attack today while other Japanese forces pushed ahead against the retreating Chinese army on the entire Chapei-Woosung front.

The party occupied Woosung village also, its officers said, after taking the Chinese forts nearby.

Japanese bluejackets occupied Chinese positions in Chapei on the north side of Soochow Creek, directly facing United States Marines in the International Settlement.

Japanese Also Occupy Nanziang.

The Japanese said they also occupied Nanziang, 10 miles northwest of Shanghai, a new objective in their westward drive to shove the doughty warriors of China 12½ miles away from the battle-front here.

Still other forces, newly landed at Liuho, on the Yangtze River 20 miles from Shanghai, were approaching Kating, northwest of Nanziang, in an encircling movement southward.

While Japanese guns ashore and on destroyers and cruisers offshore, with airplanes overhead, combined to throw a literal rain of shells and bombs into the long-suffering fortification, 1,000 Japanese soldiers and sailors landed at Woosung from a small transport and naval small boats.

They rushed the fortification, overpowered the Chinese garrison still there and soon ran up the rising sun banner of Japan while the Chinese fled westward.

Soon after they captured the forts the Japanese said they occupied Woosung village.

Although the Chinese in the forts—their numbers unknown—were swamped by the overwhelming attack, they inflicted a number of casualties upon the landing party prior to their retreat, which was carried out in the west despite Japanese claims that they had surrounded the entire area.

In Shanghai Japanese bluejackets occupied positions in Chapei on the north side of Soochow Creek, which had been deserted by the retreating Chinese. They were directly facing United States Marines guarding the defenses of the International Settlement.

The Japanese sent out numerous scouting parties in that vicinity while the marines on patrol watched from the opposite shore of the creek.

Sharp Chinese Opposition.

Proceeding westward from Woosung to the Kiangwan sector, it was discovered that the Japanese during the night had encountered sharp Chinese opposition northwest of Miaochung-chen. Machine guns and artillery were used in the heavy fighting.

The Japanese said the fight was put up by a large body of Chinese soldiers battling as they retreated, but that the opposition was shattered.

West of Kiangwan the Japanese today brought in numerous Chinese prisoners, most of them mere boys. The captives appeared to be in good spirits and cheerful, seemingly unmindful of the possible fate awaiting them.

Heavy artillery firing down Chapei way ceased in midmorning. The Japanese said they had cleared out

As Police Reconstructed Kidnaping of Famous Baby

Police yesterday reconstructed the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby in this fashion. Investigators placed the ladder which was found in the grounds against the nursery window of Col. Lindbergh's home in Hopewell, N. J., exactly as the kidnaper or kidnapers did Tuesday night between 7 and 10:30 o'clock. Inset is the latest photograph of 20-month-old Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr.

WORLD COURT FIGHT RENEWED IN SENATE

Interpretative Resolution Is Approved in Committee; Report Is Delayed.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate foreign relations committee's first contest over the revised protocol for American adherence to the World Court resulted yesterday in a draw.

Friends of the court defeated a motion to defer a report to the Senate until April 15, but its foes replied by stalling off action and postponing the issue a week.

Proponents and opponents did join, however, in adding an "interpretative resolution," or reservation, affirming America's disputed stand against advisory opinions by the court relating to this country.

The unanimously approved resolution offered by Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, immediately brought conflicting views on its effect, and the whole status of the court issue was involved last night in considerable confusion.

A similarly worded Senate reservation adopted in approving adherence to the court six years ago drew such fire from other nations that formal American entry was prevented.

Senator Reed said the language written into the preamble of the Senate resolution of ratification yesterday by the committee was merely interpretative of the American stand and does not require approval of the other nations.

Chairman Borah of the committee, a foe of the court, contended it amounted to a reservation, and demanded formal approval of the other adherents to the court before American participation could become an accomplished fact.

After the other powers refused to accept the Senate's reservation against advisory opinions, the rules of the court were revised under a commission headed by Elihu Root. Mr. Root contended the new rules accomplished what was sought by the Senate's old reservation. President Hoover ap-

Sympathy and Alarm Felt All Over Globe

(Associated Press.)

Hopewell, N. J.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is willing to pay a ransom reported at $50,000 if his infant son is returned. Mrs. Lindbergh appeals to kidnapers to give baby, ill with a cold, its proper care, as her relatives arrived to comfort her. This hamlet became the hub of a Nation-wide search for the kidnapers.

Washington—President Hoover and Attorney General Mitchell, shocked at the deed, issued orders that Government detectives, prohibition agents, immigration and customs operatives should be on the alert. The House and Senate were aroused to more stringent action against abduction.

Trenton, N. J.—The superintendent of State police, H. Norman Schwarznopf, directed a man hunt along the entire Atlantic seaboard by airplane, automobile and radio. Gov. A. Harry Moore, at the request of Col. Lindbergh, abandoned the posting of a $10,000 reward.

New York—Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney directed his 17,500 policemen, detectives and their families to search night and day for a trace of the guilty persons. All tunnels, ferries and bridges were placed under rigorous guard.

London—The hearts of the English went out in sympathy to the Lindberghs as their newspapers devoted large headlines to the kidnaping.

Paris—The French, the first to hail the "Flying Eagle," remembered him in his time of anxiety. Expressions of sympathy filled the press.

Mexico City—President Ortiz Rubio, an admirer of the baby's late grandfather, Dwight A. Morrow, when he was Ambassador to Mexico, expressed profound sorrow and said the crime had caused "great indignation in his country."

Chicago—Col. Robert Isham Randolph, head of the "Secret Six" and a nemisis of criminals, uttered the opinion that the offense was the act of an insane person, for "no organized gang of kidnapers ever would attempt such a crime."

Kansas City—Police speculated on "an outside chance" that the criminals were the same ones who recently abducted Mrs. Nell Donnelly, wealthy garment manufacturer, and evaded capture after liberating her. The prosecutor's office discounted the theory.

Albany, N. Y.—Gov. Roosevelt requested the superintendent of State police to "use every possible source to check all avenues of escape" that might be taken by the kidnapers. "I am not only interested officially, but personally," he said.

Northampton, Mass. — President William Allan Neilson, of Smith College, announced State police had established a guard around Miss Constance Morrow, the baby's aunt, who remained at her school work.

SON OF CONTRACTOR IN OHIO IS KIDNAPED

Niles, Ohio, March 2 (A.P.).—As thousands of police hunted the kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., northern Ohio officers pushed tonight their search for the abductors of James de Jute, jr., 11, son of a wealthy Niles contractor.

The father with the entire force of Trumbull County police officers hunted the boy, while the distracted mother awaited a ransome note from the two men who rushed the child off in an automobile this morning.

James fought off the kidnapers once, but the men grabbed him again, his cousin, Anna May Mellina, 12, of Ashtabula, Ohio, told police. The children were on their way to school.

Spurred by a $5,000 reward offered by the father for the arrest and conviction of the kidnapers, neighbors, farmers and police of surrounding counties were on guard with the Trumbull County deputies in the search.

Tonight no reliable clews had been found although an automobile resembling the light brown coupe in which the kidnapers escaped had been reported in Newton Falls, going toward Cleveland.

De Jute believes that the child is held for Ransom as he told officers that he had no known enemies and no labor troubles in his business as a contractor.

The kidnapers were standing by the automobile as the children passed on their way to school, Anna May said. One asked where "De Jute, the contractor, lived," she said. The children pointed to the house.

"Are you Mr. De Jute's son," the men asked.

As James said he was, they grabbed him, the girl said, then after he broke away, snatched him again and fled.

James was described as being 4½ feet tall, complexion light; hair dark; wearing a gray leather coat with a sheepskin collar, a brown waist and gray cap.

ALIEN EXCHANGE BAN IS LIFTED BY BRITAIN

London, March 2 (A.P.).—Britain's improved financial condition was reflected today in the announcement of Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, that British citizens may buy foreign exchange.

Restrictions against the purchase of foreign exchange were imposed to protect the pound when England went off the gold standard last year. Asked whether restrictions against foreign loans would be lifted, the chancellor indicated it would be "unwise for us to lend promiscuously overseas."

A cheer arose in Commons when Mr. Chamberlain confirmed that $150,000,000 of $200,000,000 borrowed in the United States last summer to bolster the pound would be repaid Friday.

The chancellor added that a credit from French bankers of £20,000,000 ($69,600,000) for the same purpose had been reduced to £7,000,000 ($24,360,000).

Mr. Chamberlain recalled that an additional £20,000,000 or French advances last August were represented by treasury bonds to that amount in the hands of French holders.

"We have no power to require them to accept payment before August," he said, adding that the original £80,000,000 ($270,400,000) obtained from loans remains intact and is available for making repayments. The chancellor said he desired to remove apprehension that repayment of the Several Hurt as Police Intervene in Fight in Berlin.

Berlin, March 2 (A.P.).—Two persons were shot to death and several hurt at Tannenwalde, near Koenigsberg, today when police intervened in a Communist attack on a group of Adolf Hitler's Nazis.

Some twenty Communists and a half dozen Nazis were injured last night in a pistol fight at Bildstock, near Saarbrueck. The Communists had invaded a Fascist meeting.

U. S. Deficit March 1 Was $1,781,017,496

(Associated Press.)

The Government entered March with a $1,781,017,496 deficit. This was shown yesterday in the Treasury report for February 29. For the eight months of the fiscal year the Treasury collected from all sources $1,334,563,076 and spent $3,115,580,572.

Senate Passes Bill Upon Indictments

Bratton Says Measure to Allow Waiver Would Help Save Money.

(Associated Press.)

A bill carrying out one of President Hoover's most recent recommendations to Congress—to permit waiver of indictment in criminal cases—was passed yesterday by the Senate.

The bill, introduced by Senator Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico, was the first of President Hoover's recommendations for revision of criminal procedure to pass either House.

Mr. Bratton, who introduced the bill before the President's message, said it would save the Government money.

House Passes Bill to Give Jobs to Midshipmen Class

(Associated Press.)

Jobs in the Navy for all midshipmen graduating from the Naval Academy next June were voted yesterday by the House.

If the Senate approves also, the entire 1932 class at Annapolis will have the privilege of donning ensigns' uniforms. Without the legislation, it is estimated 261 will be discharged into civil life.

The House passed the bill, sponsored by Chairman Vinson, of the naval committee, 183 to 143, after a spirited fight in which the opposition was led by Chairman Byrns, of the appropriations committee.

Mr. Vinson contended Congress, after spending $3,000,000 to educate the midshipmen, was turning these men out into the ranks of the unemployed. Mr. Byrns retorted that for the benefit of the few whose services were not needed by the Navy more taxes would be saddled on the taxpayer.

It was the second successive year the House has made special provision for midshipmen who leave the academy at a time when the officered strength of the Navy, limited to 5,499, will not permit their appointment as ensigns. Last year the Senate also passed the bill.

Death Penalty for District Kidnapers Asked in House

Aroused at the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case, Representative Maurice H. Thatcher (Republican), Kentucky, former member of the House District appropriations subcommittee, yesterday moved to tighten the Capital's "inadequate" kidnaping laws.

Representative Thatcher introduced a bill to impose life sentence, or even the death penalty, in District kidnaping cases. His bill was referred to the House District committee, whose chairman, [illegible]y T. Norton, declared herself in favor of capital punishment for kidnapers.

Current District laws provide penalties for kidnaping of adults only when they are carried outside the District. Penalties provided are one to seven years' imprisonment or a maximum fine of $1,000.

The Kentucky representative declared Washington "has just been lucky" in kidnaping cases under the present law.

The proposed Thatcher amendment provides "imprisonment for life or for such terms as the court in its discretion may determine for any one

WANTS HIGHWAYS CLEARED TO GIVE FREER APPROACH

Reporters Are Ordered From Aviator's Farm As He Makes Bold Single-Handed Attempt to Recover Child.

Hopewell, N. J., March 2 (U.P.).—Col. Charles a Lindbergh late tonight made a bold, single-handed bid to recover his kidnaped son through direct negotiations with the child's abductors.

Detective Sergt. Eugene Haussiin, of the New Jersey State police, informed the United Press that Col. Lindbergh confidently expected to obtain "definite results" before dawn.

Col. Lindbergh told Sergt. Detective Hauslin tonight that he had been in communication with the kidnapers of his son and that he expected to nave word of the baby by dawn, the sergeant told the United Press.

Intense Activity Precedes Revelation by Sergeant.

"The reason I want the roads clear," the colonel said, according to the sergeant, "is to give freer approach to the farm."

Lindbergh offered that as an explanation for his requests that the roads near his estate be cleared of reporters and observers, the sergeant said.

Intimations given to State police led them to believe the Lindbergh baby might be within a few miles of Hopewell tonight.

Intense activity preceded the sergeant's statement. Col. Lindbergh had been engaged for hours in clearing the horde of newspapermen and observers from his estate and from all roads and highways in that vicinity.

The drive to clear everyone away presumably was in the interests of facilitating the secret negotiations that might restore young Charles Augustus to his mother's arms.

FORCES OF U.S. JOIN IN SEARCH FOR BABY

(Associated Press.)

"The dastardly and cowardly kidnaping" of the infant Lindbergh, as it was described in Congress by Senator Barbour, brought a shock to Washington yesterday that quickly steeled itself into a determination that the Federal Government join the search for him and his abductors.

From the White House to the lowliest household anxiety for the safety of the boy, sympathy for his parents and detestation for those who stole him from his crib showed itself to a degree that attested the place of the famous flier's family in the national affection.

While workers hurriedly read the news on the way to office, President Hoover and Attorney General Mitchell held a consultation at the White House.

Shortly thereafter orders went forth whereby Government detectives and prohibition agents will cooperate to the utmost with State authorities. Likewise, immigration and customs agents at the borders were directed to guard against the baby being spirited from the country.

On Capitol Hill wrathful protestations gave rise to signs of early action toward legislation to penalize kidnaping across State lines with death. Bills to that end are being pressed by two Missourians, Senator

It was believed, in view of the sudden developments, that the child has never been more than a few miles from the great rambling home from which he was stolen Tuesday night while he was asleep upstairs in a small crib. Sergt. Hauslin said that Col. Lindbergh had learned that Charles Augustus was "safe and sound."

Mysterious Plane Appears.

At 5:30 p. m., another significant event of the afternoon, an airplane which once before had hovered over the Lindbergh house, appeared again, dropped a weighted note, dipped twice as though in salute or as a signal, and flew away.

The previous visit of the airplane, remarked by observers, met denials from the police that any note had been dropped, although newspapermen were certain they saw a white parcel flash from the machine.

Later in the evening, when 50 newspapermen, photographers and idly curious citizens had melted away from the grounds, Lindbergh appeared at the gates of his farm and made a hasty inspection.

Finding a few newspapermen still there, he asked them to withdraw to the village of Hopewell, 3 miles distant, and "not to appear on the highways."

Arrest Menaces Loiterers.

By 10 p. m. the State police guarding the roads were enforcing the order by threats of arrest for all loiterers, whether newspapermen or [illegible].

Woman Selects "Rogues" Photos

Was Asked Way to Home of Lindberghs; Jersey Houses Searched.

Newark, N. J., March 2 (A.P.).—A woman who had been asked the way to the Lindbergh home by occupants of a car in Pennington last Friday picked several pictures out of the Rogue's Gallery at police headquarters here tonight.

The car carried three men and had New York license plates. It was seen by police as a possible clew in the kidnaping of the son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Jersey City, N. J., March 2 (A.P.).—An order was issued to Jersey City police tonight to search every furnished rooming house in the city for a man and a woman with a child. The order was given after a visit to headquarters by Inspector Charles A. Wilson, accompanied by a young woman and State troopers, in connection with the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

PRAYERS OFFERED FOR VANISHED BABY

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—Catholic, Protestant and Jew united today in prayer to a common God for safe return of the kidnaped baby of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The prayers were uttered by the Rev. Joseph Patton McComas, vicar of St. Paul's Chapel, Trinity Church; Mgr. William E. Cashin, rector of St. Andrews Church, and Rabbi Samuel J. Levinson, of Temple Beth Emeth, and were broadcast over the municipal radio station, WNYC.

"In the name of his eminence, Patrick Cardinal Hayes, and clergy of the New York Archdiocese," implored Mgr. Cashin, "and in the name of all the faithful, we extend to the beloved parents our heartfelt sympathy, and our earnest prayer that God will comfort them and in His mercy restore to them the child that has been taken from them. * * *

"Send forth the holy angels to protect the child and to restore it safely and promptly to the sorrowing parents as Thou didst restore the youthful Tobias to his parents."

In Common Brotherhood.

Rabbi Levinson said:

"Almighty Father, a Nation stands before Thee united in a common brotherhood by that one touch of nature that makes the whole world kin, parenthood. Loyalty, faith and devotion are shaken by the calamity that has betided one of our Nation's favorite sons. We turn to Thee, oh God, Catholic, Protestant and Jew, peoples united by their common brotherhood and by Thy great and unfversal brotherhood, in humility and with reverence, humbling ourselves before Thee and praying that Thou who are the God of all goodness and the Father of all men will put the love and the knowledge of Thee into the hearts of all Thy children * * * as Thou has guided through dangers the favorite son of a Nation, the father of this little one, through clouds of darkness and doubt and fear, and guarded and guided him aright so that he received and continues to receive the acclaim of the Nation, so guard and guide and do with this little one in this dangerous hour, and as Thou hast restored joy to many homes in Thine overwhelming kindness so restore joy into the hearts of these parents and that through Thou a Nation's and peoples' confidence and faith may also be restored.

Guidance of Searchers.

Mr. McComas said:

"Almighty God, Lord of Heaven and earth and air, Who didst guide the Lone Eagle in his flight that he might be an ambassador of good will between the peoples, now for him and for her, his wife, and for all of us who love and admire them, and who love justice and righteousness, we turn to Thee, O God, that Thou will grant the expeditious usefulness of all the helpful forces and administering angels may watch over them who seek to find out and restore this child to his parents."

Richmond, Va., March 2 (A.P.).—The House of Delegates of Virginia today adopted by unanimous vote a resolution expressing sympathy for Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh and calling upon citizens and officers alike to give any possible aid in the recovery of the Lindbergh baby and the capture of the kidnapers.

Oklahoma City, March 2 (A.P.).—Scheduled proceedings were suspended today at the general missionary council of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in session here, while more than 400 persons, including seven bishops, prayed for the safety of the kidnaped son of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh.

Prayers In Newark.

Newark, N. J., March 2 (A.P.).—Noonday worshippers at Lenten services in two Newark churches heard prayers offered today for the safe return to his parents of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr.

Columbia, S. C., March 2 (A.P.).—A resolution of sympathy to Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh because of the kidnaping of their son was adopted by the House of the South Carolina General Assembly today.

Boy's Abductors Seized in Poland

Vilna, Poland, March 2 (A.P.).—The police announced today they had arrested all members of a Capone "branch gang," which kidnaped the 8-year-old son of a pawn shop owner recently.

The authorities said they had found the boy and returned him to his parents.

The gang, officers said, went under the name of the Gold Flag gang, and they asserted that it was organized by some (a given name) Krawiec, a former member of the Alfonse Capone gang of Chicago, who recently arrived in Poland from the United States.

Mexican Line Watched On Orders From Calles

Mexico City, March 2 (A.P.).—The entire Mexican border was on the lookout tonigit for the kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., who was taken from his bed in New Jersey last night.

Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, minister of war, who was a close friend of the late Dwight Morrow, the infant's grandfather, ordered all northern military commands to be on watch along the frontier and at airplane landing fields. Similar orders went out to immigration and customs guards.

AVIATOR'S MOTHER VISIBLY DISTURBED

Detroit, Mich., March 2 (A.P.).—Visibly disturbed and anxiously awaiting any news of her son's kidnaped baby, Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, mother of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, today spent the most trying day ever experienced, as she carried on with her teaching of chemistry at the Cass Technical High School.

Although she said she planned to continue teaching unless she received a summons to the Lindbergh home, near Hopewell, N. J., Mrs. Lindbergh intimated she was ready to leave at a moment's notice to be with her son and her daughter-in-law.

Mrs. Lindbergh remained in the high school chemistry laboratory from 8 a. m. until 3 p. m. today, having arranged with friends to keep her informed of the progress of the search for her young grandson. She left to spend the evening with an aunt, Mrs. Charles Lodge, saying she would return home later in the evening to await possible word from New Jersey.

Most Trying Day.

"This is the most trying day I have ever experienced," she said, as she left the classroom. She spoke feelingly of the courage of Ann Lindbergh and expressed gratitude when she was told that Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow was en route to her son's home by automobile.

Amherst, Mass., March 2 (A.P.).—Dwight W. Morrow, jr., a junior at Amherst College and brother of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, was notified at 2 a. m. of the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. It is not expected that he will leave Amherst.

Great-Grandmother Not Informed.

Cleveland, March 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. C. L. Cutter, great-grandmother of Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., was kept in ignorance of his kidnaping today because of her advanced age.

Her daughter, Miss Annie S. Cutter, was notified of the kidnaping late last night in a long-distance telephone conversation with Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, grandmother of the baby, and sister of Miss Cutter.

Miss Cutter at first declined to believe the story, but later told questioners, "I would like to hear some good news, if you get any." She said she was undecided about going East.

Scranton, Pa., March 2 (A.P.).—Pat Crowe, who figured in the world famous Cudahy kidnaping some years ago, and now a reformed citizen working to wipe out crime, today telegraphed Charles A. Lindbergh offering his services in an effort to recover the kidnaped baby.

Crowe has been delivering talks in this region for several weeks under the auspices of local churches. In his wire to Lindbergh he said:

"I would be willing to serve as a go-between, take the money to the kidnapers and return the child to you. I advise you not to offer any reward for the recovery of the boy and apprehension of the criminals, but I do advise payment of the ransom if that is within your power."

Pat Roche Seeks Clews in Chicago

Suggests "Buster" Brown, Kidnap Suspect, May Know Something.

Chicago, March 2 (A.P.).—Pat Roche, chief investigator for the State's attorney, was reported tonight to have been delegated to investigae the Chicago area for clews in the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Roche suggested to New York police that they question Charles "Buster" Brown, under arrest there and awaiting extradition to Chicago for questioning in several kidnapings. The investigator said he believed Brown might have knowledge about the identity of the abductors.

After communicating with New York authorities, Roche said he believed important evidence might be obtained from six alleged members of a kidnap syndicate he arrested here two months ago.

COL. LINDBERGH IN CONTACT WITH KIDNAPERS OF HIS SON

Trenton of any knowledge of Lindbergh's plans.

A speedy airplane flew over the Lindbergh home at 12:05 a. m. today, swooped low over the grounds and dropped a flare, then sped away. The flare lighted up the grounds and revealed a score of State troopers patrolling the walks close to the residence. Watchers were unable to say whether the plane was a State troop ship or a private machine. The mysterious and dramatic appearance of the plane indicated to observers that some system of signaling might be in process.

Further apparent confirmation of the report of direct negotiations between the kidnapers and Col. Lindbergh were seen in Lindbergh's insistence, earlier in the day, upon official withdrawal of the thousands of dollars in rewards for the capture of the criminals, offered by State Legislaures and other agencies.

Chief of Police Thomas J. Wolfe of Jersey City, who had charge of the investigation at the Lindbergh home late tonight, denied that private negotiations were in progress and said he believed the act was committed by a demented person.

Wolfe already had ordered police everywhere to check up on all persons now on parole from the Trenton State Hospital for the Insane, the Greystone Hospital at Morristown, N. J., and the Skillman Hospital for Epileptics.

Lindbergh Leaves Secretly.

Asked whether he was about to make an agreement to pay the $50,000 ransom, the colonel said he could not reply to questions which had too pertinent a bearing on the case.

The strict orders to State police to remove all reporters not only from the property owned by Col. Lindbergh, but from the vicinity also, gave color to the belief that important developments were impending.

Two groups of newspapermen who had leased vacant houses in the neighborhood, off the Lindbergh property, were ordered to vacate and find other quarters farther away.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Hopewell, N. J., March 2.—Secrecy veiling the Sourland mountain home from which kidnapers seized America's most publicized baby was redoubled in a few swift strokes tonight as Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, tense and anxious, stood ready to meet the ransom demands of the abductors of their infant son.

Col. Lindbergh, assisted by 25 State troopers, personally participated in directing all outsiders to evacuate an area of several miles surrounding the estate.

This unexplained move coupled with the known fact that the kidnapers left behind a ransom note demanding a substantial sum, understood to be $50,000, arouused feverish speculation.

Chief among the theories advanced was one that Col. Lindbergh was awaiting further communication with the kidnapers and specific instructions for payment of the ransom. It was pointed out that the contents of the note had been carefully withheld.

Newspapermen Withdraw.

At a late hour Col. Lindbergh said there was no truth in published reports he had designated friends to treat with the kidnapers, and high police authorities denied the colonel already had been in communication with the abductors.

Reporters and photographers withdrew from the Lindbergh property at darkness at the request of the colonel, who attributed his instructions to overburdened telephone facilities.

Vague rumors that the Lindberghs were confident of the return of their 20-month-old first-born within 12 to 15 hours were without confirmation in any quarter.

Aligned with the crack detectives of the Nation, mobilized by President and police alike, was the potential assistance of the Lindbergh fortune and the Morrow millions.

Careworn from worry and red-eyed from loss of sleep Col. Lindbergh and his frail wife assumed leadership themselves in seeking the return of their child, who was snatched from a cradle in which he had been ill with a cold.

Asks Reward Withheld.

The colonel asked Gov. A. Harry Moore to withhold posting of a suggested $25,000 reward.

Sergt. E. A. Haussling of the State police, who assisted Col. Lindbergh in dispersing outsiders, said he did not expect a "break" in the case before dawn. He made no amplification of that remark.

The most dramatic moment of the day came when Mrs. Lindbergh, pale, slim daughter of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, made an appeal to the abductors to give proper care to the infant. Through the press she outlined the baby's diet in detail.

As dusk descended, Col. Lindbergh, having exchanged the mud-stained work clothes he had worn during the night while exploring the grounds of his estate, for a gray striped suit, made a formal request that all reporters and photographers withdraw from his property.

Father Shows Strain.

Telephone lines, he explained, had been burdened beyond their capacity and clearing houses for the information of the press would be set up elsewhere.

It was evident he was under a great strain. Red circles appeared beneath his eyes and he was pale.

Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, grandmother of the kidnaped child, came into the room as the colonel made his request for the reporters' withdrawal to a correspondent of the Associated Press.

All during the bright, mild day searchers tirelessly pursued a variety of clews in their quest for the curly, blue-eyed son of the flying hero. Fighting through brush and mud, scanning the surrounding country from the sky, watching railroads and halting automobiles, the task was carried on by hundreds.

Famous airmen friends of the Lindberghs wanted to aid, so three separate groups of them got out their planes and all day the roar of motors came from the sky over this section.

Legion Helps Detectives.

The American Legion mobilized and joined in the hunt. Crack New Jersey detectives came from all parts of the State and spent the day in diligent search for clues.

Close friends of the Lindberghs came by the dozens to offer their sympathy and help. The roads leading into the Sourland Hill country were black with cars.

Col. Henry Breckinridge, old friend of Col. Lindbergh; Arthur Springer, former secretary to the late Senator Morrow, and countless other intimate friends were at the Lindbergh home to do the instant bidding of the colonel.

Clues were numerous, but none gave exceptional promise. Posses of police tore through the streets of Newark after a man who mailed Col. Lindbergh a postcard saying the baby was safe.

Newark Postcard Traced.

"Baby safe. Instructions later. Act accordingly," said the postcard which was mailed shortly before noon in Newark. A similar card, together with four others, was purchased at 11:55 a. m. in a combination Newark substation and candy store a block away from the mail box in which the card to the colonel was deposited. The card was intercepted by postal clerks.

The card was written in pencil, the letters being printed in a large, uncertain hand. Lindbergh's name was misspelled, the address reading, "Chas Lindberg, Princeton, N. J."

Another possible lead developed late in the day when a child's sleeping jacket which would have fitted the Lindbergh baby was found alongside the road at Portland, Pa.

Miss Anna Kurtz said it was clean except under the arms, where there were dirty smudges as if the child who had worn it had been picked up by some one. Later this garment was claimed by a neighbor.

Congress Action Expected.

In the Nation's Capital anxiety for the safety of the kidnaped child was entertained from the White House to the city's most modest dwellings.

Early enactment of legislation penalizing kidnaping across State borders with death seemed assured. President Hoover's personal concern was evident in his conference with Attorney General Mitchell, which resulted in the placing of Government detectives and prohibition agents and border guards in cooperation with local law enforcement agencies.

In New York City Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney addressed a personal message to more than 16,000 policemen of the metropolis, soliciting their assistance in the man hunt.

KIDNAPING PROVES WORLD SENSATION

(United Press.)

The kidnaping of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., was "the biggest story" yesterday in the newspapers of almost every world capital.

Every move in the search for the infant's abductors was flashed around the globe to keep foreign admirers and friends of the famous flying couple advised of progress.

London, March 2 (U.P.).—The Lindbergh baby kidnaping caused a sensation throughout Europe today. British newspapers featured the story in banner lines, while tariff stories and dispatches from the China war front were subordinated.

Paris, March 2 (U.P.).—Paris, which knew Col. Lindbergh at the end of his flight to fame in the Spirit of St. Louis, was shocked today by word of the kidnaping of his infant son. Hundreds of admirers of the noted flier called newspapers asking information.

"Cases of this kind, unfortunately, are not rare in America since their ridiculous prohibition law dulled the conscience of so many people," said the newspaper La Liberte.

Berlin, March 2 (U.P.).—Newspapers prominently displayed the story of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping today. It coincided with the disappearance of a Berlin woman and her child which caused a sensation in the press. Hans Bender, head of the German Police Department of Missing Persons, told the United Press that he believed the Lindbergh baby kidnapers were moved chiefly by a desire to collect ransom but that he was "theoretically sure they are notoriety seekers."

Mexico City, March 2 (A.P.).—The kidnaping of the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Anne Morrow Lindbergh, whose father was Ambassador to Mexico at the time of the flier's courtship, caused a great sensation here today.

A stream of cablegrams was sent to the Lindberghs from friends here, President Ortiz Rubio, Foreign Secretary Manuel C. Tellez and J. Reuben Clark, who succeeded the late Senator Dwight Morrow as Ambassador, asked to be kept closely informed of any developments in the search for the kidnapers.

The abduction was on the third anniversary of Col. Lindbergh's arrival here on the visit before his last trip to Mexico, in the days when he was courting Anne Morrow in the romantic atmosphere of Cuernavaca.

It was while Lindbergh and the Morrow family were vacationing at Cuernavaca three years ago today that the Escobar revolution, the last in Mexico, broke out and interrupted the courtship, the Morrows and their guest returning hurriedly to Mexico City.

The news of the kidnaping was a great shock, therefore, in Cuernavaca, as it was here, where the newspaper offices were flooded with telephone calls from persons seeking the latest information.

Bogota, Colombia, March 2 (A.P.).—Public feeling in this South American capital over the kidnaping of the child of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh was intense tonight. Newspaper offices were swamped with telephone and personal inquiries.

found guilty of or aiding or abetting in seizing, confining, inveigling, decoying, kidnaping, abducting or carrying away" any individual.

It further provides that in such cases the jury might add to its verdict, if it be guilty, the words, "with the death penalty," in which case the penalty would be death by electrocution.

One additional proviso stipulates that two or more individuals conspiring to kidnap shall be considered to have violated the act, subjecting themselves individually to penalties provided.

Roosevelt Orders Police Of Empire State to Act

Albany, N. Y., March 2 (A.P.).—Gov. Roosevelt today personally requested the superintendent of State police, John A. Warner, to "use every possible source to check all avenues of escape" through this State for the kidnapers of the baby of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

"I am not only officially interested, but personally," said the governor. "I know both Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh and my daughter (Mrs. Curtis B. Ball), was a schoolmate of Mrs. Lindbergh."

Mother Broadcasts Baby's Diet for Use by Kidnapers

Philadelphia, March 2 (A.P.).—A man called the city desk of a Philadelphia newspaper at 7:50 o'clock tonight and said in a deep, husky voice: "You may say that a trained nurse is taking care of the Lindbergh baby. That's all."

He hung up before he could be questioned. Telephone officials tried unsuccessfully to trace the call, but police inclined to the belief that it had been made by a crank.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Hopewell, N. J., March 2.—With a prayer that it might reach the persons who hold the fate of her baby boy in their hands and the hope that it might find in them some spark of human compassion, Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today sent a mother's appeal to the kidnapers of her child.

It concerned the baby's diet. The child is sick. It has a bad cold.

One quart of milk during the day, she cautioned in a message broadcast through the press.

Three tablespoons of cooked cereal morning and night.

One yolk of egg daily.

Half a cup of orange juice on waking.

Half a cup of prune juice after the afternoon nap.

Fourteen drops of viosterola during the day.

That's the diet the baby was receiving until it was snatched from its crib in the forepart of last night—a slim one, but such as a baby of 20 months with a severe cold could have.

A search of the nursery disclosed that no blankets had been taken, giving rise to Mrs. Lindbergh's fears that the child was taken away improperly clad.

Despite her worry over the baby's illness and its uncertain fate at the hands of its unknown abductors and despite that she is expecting a second baby in the spring, there were indications that Mrs. Lindbergh is bearing up remarkably well.

"She is all right," Col. Lindbergh told a police officer.

Now and then during the day she could be seen at the windows of her home, dry-eyed and sometimes smiling wanly. The first shock seems to have passed. It was known that she did not sleep since the moment last night when Charles A. Lindbergh, jr.'s nurse ran screaming into the dining room to say that the crib was empty.

Mrs. Elizabeth Morrow, her mother and widow of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, was with her today, extending what comfort she could.

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—Overfeeding and pulmonary infection are the chief physical dangers which Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., faces, a well-known child specialist said today.

"A child of 20 months is much hardier than an infant," explained Dr. E. M. Hawks, of Polyclinic Hospital. "Assuming that his captor or captors know nothing of scientific feeding or care, it is quite possible that the child, if healthy, could go for an indefinite time without serious harm.

Baby May Be Identified By Deep Dimple in Chin

Hopewell, N. J., March 2 (U.P.).—"A deep dimple" in the chin of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., is his most distinguishing mark and the one by which he may be identified.

Edward Scandrett, a nephew of the late Dwight Morrow, called Press headquarters tonight with a request that this information be given out by all press associations and newspapers.

"Few complete descriptions of the baby have been given the public," he said. "It should be known that the most distinguishing mark about him is that he has a very deep dimple in his chin."

CRIMINALS MENACED AUNT OF FLIER'S SON

Constance Morrow Object of Blackmailers While at Milton Academy.

Milton, Mass., March 2 (A.P.).—Miss Constance Morrow, sister-in-law of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whose little son was kidnaped last night in New Jersey, three years ago was threatened by blackmailers with torture and death unless they were paid $50,000.

The blackmailing attempt occurred just before Col. Lindbergh's marriage to Anne Morrow, and Col. Lindbergh took Miss Morrow by airplane from Milton Academy, where she was a student, to the safety of her parents' summer estate at North Haven, off the coast of Maine.

Two letters were received by Miss Morrow, who was then 15, demanding that she obtain $50,000 from her father, Dwight Morrow, and place the money behind a stone wall on Grove street, Westwood, Mass.

The first letter received May 14, 1929, dwelt in detail on the penalties that would be inflicted for failure to heed the blackmailers' demands. The second letter was even more scurrilous. Miss Morrow informed the school authorities and members of her family. With the aid of Col. Lindbergh, she was spirited away to Maine, while the police tried to trap the writer or writers of the letters.

A girl, made up to impersonate Miss Morrow, placed a bundle of papers resembling bills at the spot indicated. Detectives watched, but no one ever appeared to obtain the package.

At about the same time blackmail letters also were received by Mrs. Larz Anderson at Brookline, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, of Walpolse, and Mrs. Curtis Guild, of Boston, society leaders.

Nothing ever came of the investigations and the cases finally were dropped.

Northampton, Mass., March 2 (A.P.).—President William Allan Neilson, of Smith College, announced today that the State police had established a guard for Miss Constance Morrow, sister of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh. Miss Morrow is a member of the freshman class.

Lieut. Harry L. Avery, commander of Troop B, of the State police, has donned plain clothes to take personal charge of the guard. The guard will be extended through the night at Dewey House, the dormitory occupied by the girl.

Parents of Baby Here Request Police Guard

Seventh Precinct police last night were asked to keep a sharp watch on the residence of Alex Robertson at 1307 Twenty-ninth street northwest as a precaution against kidnapers.

Mr. Robertson called the Seventh Precinct station by telephone and asked for the added protection because his baby sleeps in a second floor front room, which is visible from the street. Mrs. Robertson has been nervous since the news of the kidnaping of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., Mr. Robertson said.

U. S. FORCES JOIN SEARCH FOR BABY OF LINDBERGHS

Patterson (Republican) and Representative Cochran (Democrat).

Both Senate and House, as they met, heard the Lindbergh case cited forcibly. Senator Barbour, who succeeded in the Senate the late grandfather of the missing child, Dwight W. Morrow, expressed hope the deed would expedite an enactment "that may tend to put an end to a crime which, as a father myself, I consider the most horrible of crimes."

Prompt Action Promised.

As chairman of the judiciary committee, Senator Norris echoed the popular indignation and promised action probably at a special committee meeting soon.

Another bill to make interatate kidnaping a felony was introduced yesterday by Senator Steiwer (Republican), Oregon. It would provide for a penalty of imprisonment from five years to life.

In the House, Representative Seger, of New Jersey, was applauded after appealing as a father and a grandfather for an antikidnap law, saying there is "no crime that so cuts the heartstrings and causes more anguish to father and mother."

So aroused was the House postoffice committee that it decided to act forthwith on a bill placing a $5,000 fine and imprisonment from 5 to 20 years on the sending of kidnap and extortion threats through the mails. Chairman Mead said "the latest fiendish act" impelled a favorable report on the legislation now "when its chances of consideration and approval are excellent."

Held Carefully Executed.

Opinions differed whether the crime against the Lindberghs was by professional or amateur extortionists. That it had been carefully executed by experts, possibly by a Midwestern ring, was advanced by Frank J. Loesch, a member of the Wickersham Commission and president of the Chicago Crime Commission.

But at the Justice Department, an important official called this incredible—saying any experienced criminal would have picked a child of wealthy but only locally prominent parents to hold for ransom. He agreed with a suggestion made by Loesch, however, that the culprits must have had some information from persons familiar with the Lindbergh home—even though it might have been given unwittingly.

Chairman Sumners brought the House judicary committee into special session for study of the proposal to make taking of an abducted person across State lines a felony. From the Lindbergh case, he drew the moral that there must be more public attention toward the curbing of crime.

Terrorism Stressed.

"It has served," he said, "to center the interest of the Nation upon the condition which obtains in America with reference to the terrorism of crime.

"This action ought to make every man and woman in this country determine to clean up their own communities. What we need is to put red blood in our veins and determine before God Almighty that we will make this country safe."

The committe took no action. Chairman Summers said the session would continue today.

He pronounced the attitude of the committee "sympathetic on the whole thing" but said he felt some system should be worked out in which the Federal Government would be "helpful instead of taking over the responsibilities of the States." He suggested as a possible plan his bill to permit States to enter into compacts to expedite justice.

Wants Thorough Study.

Sumners pointed out that no action on the part of his committee could change the status of the kidnapers in the Lindbergh case, and said that rather than to be rushed into hurried legislation, he favored taking time to "let the matter soak in."

Ambassador Pugi of Mexico yesterday extended his sympathy to Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh.

The Ambassador, a former member of the Mexican cabinet, is well acquainted, both with Col. Lindbergh and the family of former Ambassador Morrow.

His telegram to the colonel said:

"Shocked by news concerning your child. Hope he will be found well and soon. My heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Lindbergh, Mrs. Morrow and yourself."

HEAD OF SECRET SIX BLAMES AMATEURS

Urges Immediate Payment of Ransom by Parents of Stolen Baby.

The following story was written especially for the Associated Press by Col. Robert Isham Randolph, head of the famous "Secret Six," agents of which have investigated kidnaping gangs from coast to coast for more than two years.

By COL. ROBERT ISHAM RANDOLPH

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Chicago, March 2 (A.P.).—Payment of the ransom demand seems, under present circumstances, to be the only procedure possible in the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

After the baby is safely back at home, there will be time to think of apprehending the persons responsible. Until then, the child's life is too precious to run risks.

Circumstances of the case have convinced me that this revolting crime was not the work of an organized kidnaping gang, such as the Secret Six has been working against. There is no band of outlaws with so little brain-power as to attempt such a thing.

No Indication of Revenge.

There remains, then, the presumption that an insane person or an amateur kidnaper is responsible. There seems to be no indication of a revenge motive.

Ultimate capture of the kidnapers seems most probable. Certainly there will be no effort spared to capture them. The Secret Six would, of course, welcome an opportunity to do all in its power to assist, but the authorities already working on it seem to have all the facilities required and to be working competently.

The kidnapers in this case probably have had less experience than the forces of law pursuing them. There are too many easier victims for organized criminals to kidnap a world hero's son.

Harming Held Unlikely.

As for the child's safety, the kidnapers could not profit by treating him badly. There must, however, be no unavoidable delay in getting him back home.

The abduction of the Lindbergh baby seems to me to be a dramatic argument for a Federal law against kidnaping. Such a bill has been introduced before Congress—providing the death penalty for such an offense.

With scores of victims yearly being tortured or terrorized into paying ransom to criminal gangs, there is a need of such a law. The theft of Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., from his crib is the last straw.

On the part of the Secret Six and other law enforcement organizations of Chicago, I join with the rest of the world in extending to Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh my most sincere sympathy.

Mrs. Lindbergh Is Urged to Hope

Mother in 1923 Kidnaping Says Faith Will Aid Noted Flier's Wife.

Schenectady, N. Y., March 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ernest F. W. Alexanderson, whose 6-year-old son, Verner, was held by kidnapers for six days in 1923, said today that Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh must have confidence that her baby will be restored to her.

"She must not despair—she must not give up hope of getting her baby back," Mrs. Alexanderson said. "Belief that I would get my child back was the thought that kept me up while Verner was in the hands of kidnapers, and I did not know where he was," she added.

Verner, the young son of Ernest F. W. Alexanderson, world famed radio research engineer, was kidnaped in May, 1923.

Worse Than Cold Murder, Jurist Says of Kidnaping

A mild-mannered, soft-spoken gentleman walked briskly into the pressroom of the District Supreme Court Building late yesterday and addressed himself to a group of reporters.

"Have any of you gentlemen anything new on the Lindbergh kidnaping?" he queried.

"No, sir," he was told.

"Well, if you get anything, will you let me know at once. I think it was the most abominable crime I ever heard of. It was worse than cold, deliberate murder. There is no crime that is even comparable to it. I would appreciate it if you gentlemen would keep me informed."

With that he left the room.

BABY IS SAFE, SAYS CARD OF ABDUCTORS

Newark Police Are Called to Begin House-to-House Search for Sender.

Newark, N. J., March 2 (A.P.).—A post card was mailed to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh from here today reading: "Babe safe. Instructions later. Act accordingly."

The card was picked up in the noon collections from a box at the corner of Plane and Central avenues in the heart of the city. It was spotted by a distributor in the postoffice, who removed it from the mail and reported its contents. The message on the card was printed.

The card was taken to Newark police headquarters, where it was photostated and scrutinized by fingerprint experts.

Although police officials violated the law in taking the card out of the mails, they did so without hesitation, knowing their act would be condoned.

The postoffice officials said they intended replacing the card in the mail for delivery to Col. Lindbergh after they finished their examination. The card was addressed to Col. Lindbergh at "Princeton, N. J."

Director of Public Safety William Egan immediately called out the entire police force and a house to house search of the vicinity of Plane street and Central avenue was begun.

The finding of the card strengthened the belief of authorities that an abandoned sedan found early today in Hillside, a suburb, may have been used by the kidnapers in their flight from the Lindbergh home.

The car, unlighted, the bearings of its motor burned out from lack of oil, was found in a field near the Newark line. The street is within a few blocks of a road which runs directly to Somerville, linking there with a straight road to Princeton.

Expected Absence Seen in Kidnaping

New York University Men Believe Plotters Figured on Lindbergh's Trip.

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—Belief that the kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., had planned to take the boy while his father was away from home was expressed tonight by New York University officials.

They learned, they said, that Chancellor Brown, in one of several letters he wrote Col. Lindbergh recently, gave March 4 as the date for the alumni dinner to which the colonel was invited. The dinner was held at the Waldorf Astoria last night, and Col. Lindbergh, though he had accepted Chancellor Brown's invitation, did not appear.

It was found that, although the original invitation to Col. Lindbergh gave the dinner date as March 1, Chancellor Brown, in acknowledging the colonel's acceptance, erroneously wrote March 4 instead of March 1.

This is the latest close-up of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., the most famous baby in the world, whose kidnaping has precipitated one of the most intensive searches ever known.

Exhibitionist Perpetrated Kidnaping, Gollomb Holds

Crimnologist Compares Deed to Theft of Mona Lisa, Committed to Magnification and Gratification of an Ego; Familiar with Premises.

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—The kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby was compared today by a criminologist and mystery story writer with the theft of the famous Mona Lisa painting from the Louvre.

"The crime is so sensational," said Joseph Gollomb, "that the man who planned it must have thought, 'what a lot of excitement this will kick up.'

"No sane criminal would have attempted this particular kidnaping for profit. The inevitable publicity and the extent of the search would make it impossible to cash in on the crime.

"Even in kidnaping cases involving less conspicuous persons, successful collections are few, except when the victim is himself a gangster who does not appeal to police.

"Therefore I think there are four possible hypotheses:

"That the child wandered away, which, of course, is improbable.

"That some weak-minded and unprofessional type kidnaped him without considering the difficulties of making money by the crime.

"That the child was kidnaped purely to avenge some real or fancied injury. This is the most sinister supposition, for if the kidnaper intended to kill the Lindbergh boy, he might successfully execute his intention and escape detection.

"That the kidnaping was the work of an exhibitionist, delighted by the enormous magnification of his ego such a crime would bring.

"The men who stole the Mona Lisa, when they knew there was absolutely no chance of selling it, were of this type.

"The physical clues described do not incline me to any one of these theories, but I confess I have a leaning toward the last one.

"One thing indicated is that the kidnapers knew the exact location of the nursery and there is strong inference they also knew which of the screens was unsecured. This would argue a familiarity with the premises and the number of persons with such knowledge must be limited."

Legion Post Passes Quota.

COLONEL IS CALMER OF TWO, CHIEF SAYS

Hopewell Describes Scene as Couple Seeks to Aid in Search.

Hopewell, N. J., March 2 (A.P.).—With suppressed emotions, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh told police today and last night of the kidnaping of their 20-months-old son.

"Col. Lindbergh was the calmer of the two," Deputy Police Chief Charles Williamson said today, "although Mrs. Lindbergh did not cry. She cried after we left, I was told."

Williamson, who said he was one of the first officers to reach the Lindbergh home, told of being called at 10:20 p. m. by the butler, who said, "Will you please hurry over?"

"Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh and several others met us at the door," Williamson related. "They ushered us into the living room, where the colonel told us what had happened. Both were standing up well under the circumstances and while we questioned them for a few minutes they sat in chairs, close to each other.

Lindbergh Finds Ladder.

"Col. Lindbergh took us out in the yard, and we found the ladder about 50 feet from the house. Then both Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh accompanied us to the nursery.

"Col. Lindbergh told me that he knew as soon as the report came to him that the baby was gone that he had been kidnaped. I asked him if he had heard any unusual noise. He replied that he had not heard any noise except the wind blowing around the house.

"Col. Lindbergh said he could see no reason why any one should want to kidnap his baby. I pointed out to Mrs. Lindbergh that there were no clothes gone from the bed. Mrs. Lindbergh then said: 'The poor child has had a cold and will suffer. We have been doctoring the baby for several days.'

Colonel Without Suspicion.

"I asked Col. Lindbergh if he suspected any one. He replied: 'No.' As we stood in the room he pointed to the unlocked window and said: 'They must have got in through that window.'

"Mrs. Lindbergh, during our questioning, interrupted and asked the colonel: 'Don't you think we should notify our mothers immediately?' " Mrs. Lindbergh then took the 'phone and called her mother at Englewood and a few minutes later placed a long-distance call to Detroit and talked to Col. Lindbergh's mother.

"I stepped out of the room while she was calling, but I did hear her say, when she reached her mother, 'Our baby has been kidnaped.'

"I told Mrs. Lindbergh that from the preparations made the kidnapers must have been professionals, determined to get the child at any cost.

" 'Yes,' she replied, 'and it probably would have happened even if we were at mother's.' "

Fliers Will Watch For Campfire Clew

Air Line Pilots Ordered to Fix Course Over Lindbergh Home.

Baltimore, March 2 (A.P.).—Pilots of an air line operating between Baltimore and Newark, N. J., were ordered tonight to watch for campfires in the vicinity of the home of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whose infant son was kidnaped last night.

A telegram received at Logan Field from the New Jersey State police read:

"All pilots flying after dark scrutinize the woods in the vicinity of the Lindbergh home as they pass for any campfiers. If any are seen, please note location carefully and report upon arrival at either Camden or New York."

The course of the planes was altered to pass over the spot, which is ordinarily 10 miles off the regular route.

Philadelphians Urged To Join in Child-Hunt

Philadelphia, March 2 (A.P.).—Director Kern Dodge of the department of public safety today appealed to all citizens of Philadelphia to join police in a city-wide search for the infant son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A Lindbergh. He requested citizens to be patient with police as they examined all vacant properties in the city. He said the department would not cease its efforts until the child was found.

All places of entry into the city are being watched, including railroad stations, ferry boats, bridges and highways. In addition, watch was kept on all hotels and apartments.

St. Johns River Cruise Started by Mrs. Hoover

Jacksonville, Fla., March 2 (A.P.). Continuing her Southern cruise to Miami, Mrs. Herbert Hoover apparently changed her plans on leaving here today, and instead of proceeding to St. Augustine, the motorship Sequoia went south up the St. Johns River to Green Cove Springs, where it was reported anchored for the night.

It was also said the Sequoia might go as far south on the St. Johns as Palatka before back-tracking to the Atlantic. Mrs. Hoover spent 24 hours here. Her plans for the immediate future were withheld.

Chauffeur Asserts Colonel Objected to Idolizing Child

Hopewell, N. J., March 2 (A.P.).—Ollie Wakeley, butler-chauffeur for the Lindberghs, expertly balanced an armload of sandwiches and coffee for the State troopers today and declared with a Scotch burr that he'd "like to get his hands on the one who stole the baby."

His young face was lined with worry and he seemed to welcome an opportunity to talk with somebody about the case.

"My wife was so crazy about that baby," he said, "that she's been in a terrible state ever since this happened.

"Sometimes I used to be afraid the colonel would object to the way she fussed around the little boy. The colonel always insisted that the boy should no be idolized. He used to tell me to forget that the little fellow was Col. Lindbergh's son—just to treat him like any other baby.

"The baby was very intelligent. He liked his father to play with him, too. And the colonel used to rough-house him and push him over on the floor."

Then Wakeley seemed to realize that he was talking to a reporter.

"I can't say any more. My job is valuable," he declared, and hurried away.

DIED.

URUGUAYANS RESENT PARLEY DELAY MOVE

Brazilian Envoy Is Reported Seeking Postponement of Pan-American Session.

Efforts of the Brazilian Ambassador, Senhor Lima e Silva, to postpone the forthcoming Pan-American conference have aroused sharp reaction at the Uruguayan Legation and some wonderment at the State Department here. The conference is scheduled for December at Montevideo when the Uruguayan government will be host to the delegates of all the Pan-American countries and the United States at what is expected to be the most important Latin-American parley since the war.

The Brazilian Ambassador has been quietly sounding out his colleagues for some time with regard to the postponement of the conference and last Friday called at the State Department to suggest that the formal announcement of the delay be made at the next meeting of the Pan-American Union. The ambassador is understood to have revealed that he was not acting for his country but on behalf of the Uruguayan government, which was to be the host.

The Uruguayan Minister, Senor Varela, is now in Montevideo and in his absence the consul general at New York, Don Jose Richling, issued a categoric denial. His government, the charge d'affaires explained, denied that there was any foundation for the rumor that the Uruguayan government had ever initiated the movement for delay and on the contrary affirmed that the conference would be held this December. The capital of Uruguay, Montevideo, is making active preparations to receive the delegates, it was also learned.

Diplomatic Speculation.

The demarches of Ambassador Lima e Silva created considerable speculation in diplomatic circles, where conjectures of his conduct ranged from a breach of diplomatic etiquette to innocent bungling.

The State Department could not comment on any phase of the incident yesterday. Press reports that the American delegation to Montevideo would include the Secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson, were denied at the department. The list of delegates will not be decided until the April meeting of the Pan-American Union. Other names that have been mentioned but which are not believed authentic included Assistant Secretary of State Francis White, Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, Senators Hiram Bingham and Claude A. Swanson, Dr. James Brown Scott and Profs. Munroe, of Columbia University, Marshall Brown, of Harvard, and Manley O. Hudson, of Harvard.

Step to Continue Moncada In President's Chair Seen

(Associated Press.)

Dr. Luis Debayle, charge d'affaires of the Nicaraguan Legation, delivered to the State Department yesterday the memorandum of the special Nicaraguan mission sent to Washington by President Moncada to discuss constitutional reforms with State Department officials.

The two delegates, Dr. Carlos Morales, former president of the Nicaraguan supreme court, and Horacio Arguello Bolanos, were presented to Secretary Stimson last week.

Peruvian Envoy Removed.

Lima, Peru, March 2 (U.P.).—The Peruvian minister to Brazil, Jose Maria de la Jara Ureta, who was an unsuccessful candidate for president of the republic last year, was summarily removed from his post by President Luis Sanchez Cerro today "because he sent a telegram directly to the president containing false information regarding the internal politics of the country."

Ecuadoran Crisis Looms.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, March 2 (U. P.).—Refusal of the Central Reserve Bank to obey President Baquerizo Moreno's recent decree and lend the government 15,000,000 sucres ($3,000,000) today threatened to precipitate a serious internal crisis. The bank's counter offer to lend as much as 6,000,000 sucres ($1,200,000) was rejected by the government.

DR. D. J. HILL, 81, EDUCATOR, IS DEAD

Former Ambassador Lived in Retirement Many Years; Career Meteoric.

Dr. David Jayne Hill, educator, historian and former Ambassador to Germany, Switzerland and The Netherlands, died early yesterday in his home at 1745 Rhode Island avenue northwest. Dr. Hill had lived in retirement in Washington for many years, taking part in a limited social life, but maintaining a close touch with governmental and international affairs.

Dr. Hill began his diplomatic career in 1903, when he was appointed Minister to Switzerland. He was made Minister to The Netherlands two years later and was a member of the permanent administrative council of The Hague tribunal, and one of the American delegates to the second peace conference at The Hague. He had been ill for some time, and was 81 years old.

Before becoming Ambassador to Germany in 1907, Dr. Hill served as president of Bucknell University for nine years, and from 1888 to 1896 was president of the University of Rochester.

Whether He Likes It or Not.

How Dr. Hill went to the court of the German emperor as the American Ambassador under President Roosevelt, whether the kaiser "likes it or not," was revealed last night through the Associated Press by a reporter of that news service who was present when Roosevelt declared himself on the matter.

The predecessor of Dr. Hill at Berlin was Charlemagne Tower, called in Washington the "diplomat de luxe." He was wealthy and able to entertain on a very lavish scale.

When the German post became vacant, Elihu Root, the Secretary of State, was ascertaining if Dr. Hill would be persona grata. Kaiser Wilhelm commissioned the German Ambassador to tell President Roosevelt that Dr. Hill would not be contented and would not be able to continue the established standards of entertaining.

Restrained His Feelings.

In the presence of the German Ambassador, Speck von Sternburg, the President restrained his feelings. He asked Secretary Root to demand a specific answer to the message asking if Dr. Hill would be persona grata. The reply was not made public and a conference at the White House followed.

The reporter went to the White House. When he walked into the room he heard the President speak angrily: "He'll take it whether he likes it or not. The intelligence of American diplomacy will not be measured by the wealth of the individual so long as I am President." A subsequent statement announcing that Dr. Hill would be sent to Berlin emphasized the intellectual attainments of the appointee in language which was suggested by the reporter.

Leased Home in Berlin.

Dr. Hill went to Berlin, leased a comfortable house, was cordially received by emperor and diplomats, and when he resigned in 1911, giving no reason, the German foreign office expressed the usual regret over his resignation, and declared that he had contributed to maintain friendly relations between the two countries.

After the peace conference of 1919 Dr. Hill took an active part in the fight against the League of Nations.

He was distinguished also in the field of letters, being the author of biographies of Washington Irving and William Cullen Bryant, and his venture in the diplomatic service was preceded by a long and successful career as an educator.

Born at Plainfield, N. J., June 19, 1850, he studied at Bucknell University, at Berlin and at Paris. Within five years after his graduation in 1879 he was elected president of Bucknell, and remained in that position for nine years. In 1888 he was elected president of the University of Rochester, but resigned in 1896 to study law and diplomacy, and to further that object he spent three years in Europe.

Recalled by McKinley.

President McKinley recalled him from Europe to appoint him Minister to Switzerland in 1903. Two years later he was promoted to the Ministry of the Netherlands. On his return to Washington after his resignation from the diplomatic post in Germany, Dr. Hill for several years occupied the chair of European diplomacy in the School of Comparative Jurisprudence and Diplomacy.

In his literary works, Dr. Hill dealt with questions of governmental and international relations. Among other works he wroet were: "The Principles and Fallacies of Socialism," "The Social Influence of Christianity," "Elements of Psychology" and "A History of Diplomacy in the International Development of Europe." He was a fellow of the American Association for Advancement of Science and other scientific and literary clubs.

Dr. Hill married Juliette Lewis Packer, of Williamsport, Pa., in 1886. She died in January, 1923.

Private family funeral services will be held at the home tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Burial will be Saturday at Williamsport, Pa., with services at the grave.

The District Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, of which Dr. Hill was a past president, last night noted with regret the passing of their compatriot. The following past presidents were named to attend the funeral: John Paul Earnest, Albert D. Spangler, Selden M. Ely, Justice J. A. Van Ornadel, Dr. Mark F. Finley, Dr. George Tully Vaughn, Kenneth S. Wales, Col. Alonzo Gray and Robert C. Tracy.

Murray Says Kidnapers Deserve Death in Chair

St. Paul, Minn., March 2 (A.P.).—Electrocution should be the least punishment for the persons kidnaping the infant son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, as Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of Oklahoma sees it.

Here tonight on a speaking engagement in behalf of his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination, Gov. Murray said: "Under the circumstances, the kidnapers certainly should be electrocuted. I don't know what the penalty is in Oklahoma for that crime, but I do know that we would get them and they would pay, and pay dearly."

SENATE COMMITTEE RENEWS FIGHT OVER WORLD COURT

proved the revised protocol, and submitted it to the Senate.

The Reed resolution approved yesterday stipulates: "Said protocol is ratified with the clear understanding that the Permanent Court of International Justice shall not, without the consent of the United States, entertain any request for an advisory opinion touching any dispute or question in which the United States has or claims an interest."

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, leader of the court contest, who proposed a report to the Senate yesterday, agreed with Senator Reed that the resolution was "interpretative" and did not amount to a formal reservation.

Whatever it does amount to, there were indications last night that the Reed resolution might win some votes for ratification. Nevertheless, foes of the court were confident that they could muster more than the one-third necessary to block ratification.

Senator Moses (Republican), of New Hampshire, opponent of the court, made the motion to postpone a report to the Senate until April 15, offering the first test of strength in the committee.

He lost, 11 to 9. However, one of those voting for the Moses motion was a friend of the court—Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan. He took the view that it was unwise to bring the court before the Senate now in conflict with other imperative domestic business.

Commenting on the view taken by the committee chairman, Senator Reed said last night:

"I am sure that Senator Borah has been misinterpreted. The insertion in the resolution of the sentence proposed by me is not a reservation, but a statement of our understanding of the effect of the Root protocol. In substance, it says to the other nations, 'We still insist on our original fifth reservation, and we understand that you have accepted it in the Root protocol.'

"It is a plain warning to the rest of the world that we will never consent to remain in the court under any other conditions. As it is not a reservation, it seems to me quite obvious that it does not require further action by the other signatories."

U. S.-Canadian Border Watched for Infant

Montreal, March 2 (A.P.).—Dominion immigration officials and provincial police at Quebec border points have been warned to keep a close lookout for a possible attempt on the part of kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby to cross the line into Canada.

Police and officials are searching all cars and trains at Rouses Point, Malone and other border points in close cooperation with United States police. New York State troopers at the border expressed belief the kidnapers might try to bring the child into Canada with the help of the woman believed to be a member of the gang. The woman might masquerade as the mother of the baby, they said.

WIFE SLAYS SPOUSE, DOG AND SELF IN CAR

Policeman Directed to Scene by Woman's Note Sees Her End Life.

Roanoke, Va., March 2 (A.P.).—While a policeman stood beside her, Mrs. Juanita Wessell, of Cincinnati, Ohio, fired two bullets into her chest tonight. She died almost immediately.

The police officer who had stood with his foot on the running board of the woman's car, found, inside, the body of her husband, Leon C. Wessell, and Lindy, a fox terrier, both fatally shot, apparently with the same pistol.

A few minutes before, the woman had given a pedestrian a note addressed to the "Chief of Police, Roanoke, Va." She then drove her car forward a short distance and stopped.

The pedestrian gave the note to an officer who walked to the car and made inquiry of any trouble which may have occurred and offered assistance.

"I am in trouble," Mrs. Wessell said as the officer put his foot on the running board. The woman shot twice, and the policeman, opening the door, took from her hand a .25-caliber automatic.

Summoning an ambulance the officer sent the woman to a hospital. He found Wessell's body beneath a blanket, and that of the dog, neatly wrapped, on the rear seat of the sedan. Wessell had been shot twice over the heart and once through the left temple.

The death note explained that the woman and her husband had come to Roanoke in quest of work after experiencing difficulties in Ohio. It directed that their bodies be returned to Cincinnati for burial.

The note said they were married in July, 1931.

Georgia to Hold "Roosevelt Day"

Speakers at Rally Declare Governor Will Carry Every County.

Atlanta, Ga., March 2 (A.P.).—Four days before the State presidential preference primary March 23, "Roosevelt day in Georgia" will be celebrated, advocates of the New York Governor's candidacy for the Presidency decided at a rally here today.

Speakers at the meeting said there was no question that Franklin D. Roosevelt would carry every county in Georgia, but the celebration was decided upon to get out a heavy vote and to make certain elections are held in every county.

The day will be observed with barbecues, public speeches and political rallies. Gov. Roosevelt and Judge G. H. Howard, who is running on behalf of Speaker John N. Garner of the National House of Representatives, are the only candidates in the primary.

Lion Recaptured After Rural Romp

Leo Appears as Happy to Be in Cage Again as Is Contryside.

Napoleon, Ohio, March 2 (A.P.).—This section of the country was recovering today from the thrill of its first experience with lion hunting. The lion also breathed easier.

He was safe in his cage again—with the greatest of willingness after bounding over the countryside yesterday with his trainer and officers in hot pursuit. The lion, a big one, escaped when his cage was broken by striking a railroad bridge near here.

Leo bounded out from behind the bars and loped along the abandoned bed of the Miami & Erie Canal until frightened away by workmen. Then he entered a barn on the farm of Peter Walters. Officers armed with guns and tear gas bombs surrounded the place, but when the trainer pushed a cage against the barn door the lion quit chewing on a horse collar and quietly returned to his "Home, Sweet Home."

British Wheat Bill Gains in Commons

Measure Designed to Aid Home Growers Gets Second Reading.

London, March 2 (A.P.).—The House of Commons voted, 428 to 59, tonight to give second reading to the government's wheat quota bill, preliminary to its passage.

The principal aims of the bill, as outlined by its sponsors, are: An increased price for the British wheat grower, a guaranteed market for home grown wheat of millable quality, farm relief without a subsidy from the treasury, and no encouragement to wheat growing on unsuitable land.

The measure is designed to provide a subsidy to British wheat growers from funds realized through a flour sales tax which would be paid by millers and importers.

Educational Units Nominate Officers

Congress of Parents and Teachers Prepared for May Convention.

Little Rock, Ark., March 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Hugh Bradford, of Sacramento, Calif., was nominated for reelection today as president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The nomination committee announced the slate of officers to be voted upon at the Minneapolis convention in May for two-year terms. Nomination heretofore has been equivalent to election.

The slate follows: For vice presidents, Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, Winnetka, Ill.; Mrs. F. M. Homer, Auburn, N. Y.; Mrs. J. Sherman Brown, Littleton, Colo.; Mrs. J. K. Pettengill, Mrs. Charles Williams, Washington; Lansing, Mich. secretary last year, Mrs. B. C. Hopkins, Des Moines, and Mrs. Herman Ferger, Chattanooga. Mrs. C. H. Thorpe, Little Rock, was nominated as secretary, and Mrs. B. I. Elliott, Portland, Oreg., treasurer.

SENATOR DUNCAN U. FLETCHER.

IF cotton had brought enough to make it a profitable crop back in the 1870's young Duncan U. Fletcher might have gone on raising it and have become one of the leading plantation owners in Georgia, but a niggardly 5 cents a pound didn't leave enough even to buy a new plow, so young Fletcher bade cotton raising good-by when he was in his teens.

He took himself to Vanderbilt University and studied law. His money began to give out and he did the last two years work in one and was graduated in 1880. He needed a little vacation and went to visit college chums in Jacksonville, Fla., and decided to stay there. Perhaps Miss Anna Louise Paine may have influenced his decision. In any event they were married in 1883, two years after he had, as he puts it, hung out his shingle.

He did right well. Within a decade he had been elected to the State Legislature and then Mayor of Jacksonville. He served as mayor from '93 to '95 and again from 1901 to 1903. In the meantime he had been named chairman of the county board of public instruction and had had other jobs and subsequently he became chairman of the Democratic State executive committee. In between times he practiced law diligently and developed a practice which was netting him $40,000 a year and growing.

It was hard work, though, and he was wearing himself out and when death made vacant a Florida seat in the United States Senate Mr. Fletcher decided he would like the job. There wasn't any opposition and he took his first oath of office in 1909. Each six years he has been reelected without material opposition since. Though there will be another election this fall no one has arisen to claim the seat and he probably will be reelected for another six years to add to his record of a quarter of a century in the Senate.

He was born in Sumter County, Ga., on January 6, 1859, and he is not as spry as he was once on a time, but he works often taking work home with him at night. He goes to bed late and arises early. He is ruddy faced, blue-eyed, his white hair has left his high, rounded forehead; his mustache is white. He looks such a picture of dignity on the Senate floor one wouldn't think him friendly, informal and ready to join in a laugh.

NEW REVENUE BILL HITS SNAG IN HOUSE

Committee Disagreement on Rate of Sales Levy Forces Delay.

(Associated Press.)

Delay in the completion of the new revenue bill was forced yesterday by a disagreement in the House ways and means committee over the rate of the proposed manufactures sales tax.

The snag was struck soon after the full group met to consider the tentative draft of the bill now estimated to bring in about $1,100,000,000 to balance the budget in 1933.

When it was found the revised estimated yield of the proposed 2 per cent rate for the sales tax would be but $517,000,000, opponents to excise taxes recommended on several articles advocated a 2¼ per cent rate.

The yield of the additional ¼ per cent was estimated at $66,000,000, bringing the total to $583,000,000, which is still short of the original expected return of more than $600,000,000 from a 2 per cent levy.

A bipartisan movement of growing proportions to boost the rate to 2¼ per cent was reported. Supporters of excise taxes sternly protested and no agreement was reached.

Acting Chairman Crisp announced the committee was divided on the proposed sales tax rates, but declined to make details public. He made it known it had agreed on the levying of a gift tax and an increase in the estate tax, but the rates were withheld.

The committee expects its proposed increases in individual and corporate taxes will yield about $250,000,000, and that administrative changes in the existing law will result in $100,000,000 additional revenue. Economies in government operation totaling $150,000,000, with the new bill's returns, are expected to meet the Treasury's prospective $1,241,000,000 deficit.

Sirovich Angered By Drama Critcs

Threatens to Force Them to Appear in House for Questioning.

(United Press.)

New York dramatic critics may have to come here to see Representative William Sirovich's "circus," after all. The New York Democrat invited the critics to appear before his patent committee to see if there wasn't some way of eliminating the "football and boxing experts" from their ranks.

The writers yawned politely and then directed a few curt words through the press at Representative Sirovich, among them being a suggestion that he "bring his circus to New York." This particularly angered the member of Congress.

Yesterday he threatened to go before the whole House and demand the critics appear for questioning. "They can't get out of it with wise cracks," he said, hotly.

Rail Men's Retirement Fund Bill Introduced

(Associated Press.)

A bill to set up a retirement insurance system for railroad employes was introduced yesterday by Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York. The retirement fund would be built up by equal contributions from the carriers and their employes.

Annuity payments would be equal to 2 per cent of the employe's average pay multiplied by the number of years of service. Employes would be eligible for retirement after 30 years' service or at the age of 65. Senator Wagner said the bill represented two years of study by the Railway Labor Executives' Association.

LAME DUCK REFORM IS PUT UP TO STATES

Senate Passes Norris Bill for New Amendment to Constitution.

(Associated Press.)

A new constitutional amendment was put before the States yesterday for ratification, the first since 1924.

The Norris proposal to abolish the "lame duck" session of Congress received the Senate's final approval by 73 votes to 3 and was dispatched to the State Department for submission to the States. It must be ratified by the required 36 States within seven years.

The gray-haired independent Republican from Nebraska had double reason for pleasure. Only Tuesday another of his pet legislative plans—a bill to restrict the use of injunctions in labor disputes—went smashing through the Senate by a vote of 75 to 5.

Ends Nine-year Struggle.

Action yesterday on the amendment marked fulfillment of a nine-year struggle during which it passed the Senate six times previously. It was blocked regularly, however, by the rigid insistence of the House, then under Republican control, upon a definite adjournment date for Congress.

Although this was the first constitutional amendment adopted since the child labor proposal of eight years ago, there was little excitement in the Senate. Its approval had been a foregone conclusion since last Saturday when conferees of the two branches reached agreement.

The record vote was taken at the request of Senator Norris after he had explained briefly the changes made by the conferees.

Outstanding among the measure's provisions is elimination of the "short session" of Congress extending from the first Monday in December until March 4, and the establishment of sessions of indeterminate length to begin each January 3.

Relic of Stage Coach Days.

At present, "lame ducks"—members of Congress defeated for reelection in November—may continue to legislate throughout the short session.

Under the amendment members would take up their duties on January 3—two months after their election—instead of waiting thirteen months until the following December.

The present system has been referred to in the past debates on the amendment as a survival from stage coach days when it took months to find out the result of an election and get the legislators to the Capitol.

Maneuvers Canceled For Nine U. S. Vessels

(Associated Press.)

The Navy yesterday ordered nine vessels originally scheduled to participate in the fleet maneuvers off the Pacific Coast to remain at their base at the Hawaiian Islands. The vessels are mine craft of the battle force and include one mine layer, four light mine layers and four ships of the minesweeper type.

The Navy also has ordered sixteen submarines and two tenders, which arrived Tuesday at San Diego for the maneuvers and were to remain on the West Coast until about June 1, to return to Hawaii immediately after the exercises March 23. No reasons were given.

INDEPENDENT UNITS ARE CUT $50,000,000

Farm Board, Veterans' Bureau and I. C. C. Reduced in House Supply Bill.

(Associated Press.)

Sharply trimming allotments for the Farm Board, Veterans Administration and Interstate Commerce Commission, the House appropriations committee yesterday reported the annual supply bill for 30 independent offices with more than $50,000,000 lopped off the estimates of the Budget Bureau.

The proposed appropriations totaled $986,447,000, a sum $319,000,750 less than is being spent by the agencies involved during the current fiscal year. For the first time in two years, the bill aggregated less than a billion dollars.

With this measure, the sixth annual supply measure for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933, the committee has slashed budget estimates by more than $100,000,000 in its effort to reduce Federal expenditures as a means of balancing the budget.

Most Goes to Veterans.

The bulk of the outlays proposed in the bill were for the Veterans Administration. Its allotment was $949,237,000, of which $100,000,000 is for loans on bonus certificates. The remainder is for pensions, compensation, hospitalization and hospital construction. The total for the agency is $169,572,000 less than expenditures this year, and $51,161,000 below the budget.

The estimate for bonus loans next year was reduced $50,000,000. Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Veterans Administrator, advised the committee that $1,200,000,000 had been advanced veterans under the 50 per cent loan value of the service certificates and that with $200,000,000 recently provided, $100,000,000 would be sufficient to meet demands until December.

Before finally approving the measure, the committee specifically set aside $300,000 of the $1,266,000 allotment to the Federal Trade Commission for investigation into chain stores and the power companies. It had been testified that unless additional money was provided the commission could not continue these inquiries ordered by the Senate.

Executive Offices Cut.

The budget estimate of $429,380 for the executive office, including President Hoover's salary of $75,000, was approved. It is $113,000 below current expenditures.

Prospective repeal of the recapture provision of the transportation act of 1920 resulted in a $1,533,000 reduction in the allotment for the Interstate Commerce Commission, which received $7,228,000. This is $2,184,000 below outlays this year.

The allotment for the Farm Board was cut from $1,880,000 to $1,000,000. The committee said the agency should be able to perform all the functions conferred upon it.

A total of $423,000 was allowed the Shipping Board. This is $36,982,000 less than the outlay for the current year due to nonrecurring construction loan fund appropriations. However, the bill authorizes the board to increase from $185,000,000 to $250,000,000 its revolving construction loan fund to encourage the building of the merchant marine.

$3,500,000 Is Added To Road Fund Bill

Senate Committee Votes for Emergency Highway Measure.

(Associated Press.)

Increased by $3,500,000 and providing that States may fix minimum wages, the Democratic emergency road fund bill was approved yesterday by the Senate Postoffice committee. It now totals $136,000,000. The committee added $1,500,000 for national park roads and $2,000,000 for national forest protection and development.

A proposal by Senator Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, that contractors be required to pay the prevailing wage rates was modified and adopted. As adopted, it provides the State highway departments shall determine minimum wage rates and include them in calling for bids and that the contractors shall include them in their proposals or bids.

Under a tentative schedule of division, presented for the national park service, $1,000,000 of the extra sum would be used as follows: Smoky Mountain National Park area in North Carolina, $250,000 and in Tennesses $250,000; Shenandoah National Park area in Virginia, $200,000; road work in Wyoming parks $200,000.

Credit Body Lends Railroad $7,500,000

Southern Railway Aided by Finance Corporation's Relief Action.

(Associated Press.)

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation yesterday poured $7,500,000 into the coffers of the Southern Railway Co. to enable that hard-pressed carrier to meet maturing obligations.

The loan was made by the corporation at 6 per cent interest and granted without prejudice to the consideration of additional loans already applied for or which might be applied for hereafter.

So far as made known at the finance corporation, the Southern has not applied for an additional loan. The Interstate Commerce Commission approved the extension of credit to the Southern several days ago.

At the same time the Alabama, Tennessee and Northern Railroad Co. was loaned $274,550.77 to be applied chiefly to the payment of outstanding short term indebtedness and delinquent taxes. The loan to this carrier was made on the same terms as that to the Southern.

WAGE RESTRICTIONS DEFEATED IN SENATE

Ban on Filling Vacancies and Promotions Taken From Supply Bill.

The Senate yesterday struck out of the annual agriculture appropriation bill the House provisions prohibiting promotions within grades or the filling of vacancies in the Government service except on written order of the President.

Elimination of the House restrictions had been recommended by the appropriations committee and the recommendation was accepted with little debate. So little, in fact, that Senator Park Trammell (Democrat), of Florida, asked for reconsideration of the question because it had been sped through before he was able to offer an amendment. Senator McNary (Republican), of Oregon, in charge of the bill, agreed.

Senator Trammell proposed to amend the House provisions so that the proscriptions would not apply to any employe receiving less than $3,000 a year.

The House provision, he said, might do some good in view of the past reckless disregard for Government expenditures, but it should not apply to those employes receiving the smaller salaries. He charged that there had been a "complete miscarriage" of the purpose of Congress in applying the last salary laws because employes receiving higher salaries had received substantial increases in pay while those receiving lower salaries had gotten practically no increases. There was no debate. The Trammel amendments were defeated. Senator McNary again moved adoption of the committee's recommendation that the whole House proposal be stricken out and that was done.

Representative Fiorella H. La Guardia (Republican) of New York, announced his purpose to seek to have the appropriations committee restrictions stricken out. If that move fails Representative James M. Mead (Democrat), of New York, plans to offer other amendments to except the postal service from application of the restrictions.

House Body Backs Injunctions Curb

Measure Also Outlawing "Yellow Dog" Pacts Is Approved.

(Associated Press.)

Swift approval of the House judiciary committee yesterday was added to the Senate's overwhelming indorsement of the Norris-LaGuardia bill to curb the injunction powers of Federal courts in labor disputes and to outlaw "yellow dog" contracts.

Chairman Sumners obtained special permission for his committee to meet during the afternoon and before adjourning the 28 members voted unanimously to report the legislation to the House. Several members, however, reserved the right to oppose some provisions of the bill on the floor.

Sumners was directed to exert every effort to obtain its prompt passage and will ask the rules committee for a legislative right of way.

Senate Votes $5,000 Pension for Mrs. Taft

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday voted a $5,000 pension to Mrs. Helen H. Taft, widow of the late Chief Justice and former President.

It was sponsored by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut.

Wooden Money Doubles In Value Due to Demand

Tenino, Wash., March 2 (A.P.).—Tenino's wooden money soared above par today, doubling in value.

The Chamber of Commerce issued scrip printed on thin wood, such as used for strawberry boxes, in denominations of 25 and 50 cents and $1 when the only bank of Tenino failed several weeks ago.

But today Tenino residents were asking $1 in U. S. silver or currency for their wooden 50-cent pieces and getting it because of the great demand for the money from coin collectors.

EAGLES SUPPORT LUDLOW MEASURE

Appear Before House Group in Favor of Commission to Aid Industry.

Enactment of the Ludlow bill creating a Federal industrial commission was urged on the House judiciary committee yesterday by members of the House and other representatives of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

The bill was introduced in the House by Representative Louis Ludlow (Democrat), of Indiana, at the request of the fraternal order. The commission, which would be created under it, would make surveys, studies and investigations of problems relating to stabilization of employment in industry, agriculture and commerce for the purpose of making definite recommendations to Congress for requisite legislation.

"When we shall have passed out of the shadow of this tragic eclipse of prosperity it is not highly probable that without intelligent planning under the leadership of the Federal Government we shall soon again experience the vicissitudes of the last 30 months," Frank E. Herington, of South Bend, Ind., told the committee. Mr. Herington is editor of the Eagle's magazine.

Others addressing the committee on the bill were former Representative John M. Morin, of Pittsburgh, vice chairman of the stabilization commission of the Eagle order, and United States Representatives Martin L. Sweeney and Grant E. Mouser, jr., of Ohio, and Ralph A. Horr, of Washington State, all of whom spoke as members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, they gave it as their opinion that the Ludlow bill was one of the most important before Congress, was sound in philosophy and would work out in practice.

No action on the measure was taken by the judiciary committee chairman, H. W. Summers, of Texas, chairman of the committee announcing that further study of its members would be given to the legislation.

Dawes Directs Finances Of Legion's Job Drive

(Associated Press.)

Mark T. McKee, executive director of the American Legion's drive for 1,000,000 jobs, yesterday announced that Gen. Charles Gates Dawes had accepted the chairmanship of the drive's finance cimmittee.

Mr. McKee and John Thomas Taylor, legislative representatives of the Legion, called on Gen. Dawes at the offices of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation before the announcement was made. Mr. McKee said that members of the finance committee would be announced later from New York.

Economy Program Ready on Saturday

(Associated Press.)

The Democratic joint policy committee yesterday tentatively agreed upon an economy and Government reorganization program which is to be made public Saturday. No announcement was made except that Speaker Garner would "have a formal statement within a few days."

It was learned, however, that a broad program for economy in Government expenditures was considered and a tentative agreement was reached. The advisory group, which acts as a steering committee for the Democratic senators and representatives, is to meet again this week to reach a final agreement.

The Democratic proposal to consolidate the War and Navy Departments was discussed as one of the big items on the projected economy program. Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader in the Senate, and Speaker Garner are heads of the group consisting of ten members of each house.

Warner Bros. Denies Claim of Insolvency

Wilmington, Del., March 2 (A.P.).—An answer denying all allegations of insolvency was filed in chancery court today by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., to the receivership suit filed against the concern several weeks ago by M. P. V. Newcastle, a stockholder.

The answer declares the corporation now has cash in bank in excess of $3,500,000 and has an established bank credit for a large amount. The state of the corporation's affairs, the answer declared, is such that it is not required to make use of this bank credit and therefore has no bank loans outstanding.

Equity Receiver Asked For Judge Publishers

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—A petition for appointment of an equity receiver for the Judge Publishing Co., publishers of the weekly comic magazine, Judge, was filed in Federal Court today in behalf of Fred L. Rogan, of Montclair, N. J.

Rogan states that $16,994 is due him for services rendered. His petition was consented to by Hans A. Obst, treasurer for the defendant corporation.

HOUSE WETS UNITE ON NEW LIQUOR BILL

Party Blocs Agree to Push Beer Measure Introduced, Under Pact.

(Associated Press.)

With one of their antiprohibition measures well on the way to a vote, House wet blocs yesterday united behind the second major liquor bill of this Congress.

Both the Republican and Democratic antiprohibition groups agreed to support the O'Connor-Hull bill to legalize beer of 2.75 per cent alcohol by weight, and to tax the new beverage 3 cents a pint.

After the blocs had approved the measure, it was introduced jointly by Representatives William E. Hull (Republican), Illinois, and O'Connor (Democrat), New York. Both were among the 145 representatives who signed the petition completed Tuesday to take the proposed State liquor control constitutional amendment away from the judiciary committee, and bring it to a vote in the House on March 14.

Representatives Hull and O'Connor subsequently issued a joint statement explaining the new bill, the main purpose of which, they said, "is to raise revenue in these days of a national deficit of $2,000,000,000; to relieve industry and business already overburdened with taxation from additional burdens."

Messrs. O'Connor and Hull said the bill would declare the new beer non-intoxicating, permit its sale only in bottles, and "abolish the saloon." A provision to keep convicts from selling it, they asserted, "disposes of the gangster and racketeer."

Fee Paid Teacher, Couzens Charges

Hearing on Price-Fixing Reveals Firms Financed Reports Submitted.

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Couzens, of the Senate interstate commerce committee, said yesterday at a hearing on a bill to permit price fixing that studies of the subject by Prof. Edwin R. Seligman, formerly of Columbia University, had been paid for by interests advocating the legislation.

He made the statement during testimony by Prof. Robert A. Love, of the College of the City of New York, in favor of the measure which would permit manufacturers of branded goods to set the retail price.

Prof. Love said the Seligman studies, in which he participated, were financed by the New York Board of Trade. Their results, he said, tended to favor "price maintenance." When Couzens inquired whether it was true that Prof. Seligman was paid $25,000 to make the study, Prof. Love replied that a retainer was paid but did not indicate the amount. The witness said that he was paying his own expenses in coming here to testify.

The Michigan senator said he also understood Prof. Seligman had received a substantial retainer from the motor car industry for preparing a study on installment sales.

Senate Group Asks Stock Probe Today

Will Seek Authority to Make Complete Inquiry Into Operators' Acts.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate banking committee today will ask for authority to make a complete inquiry into operations of professional operators on the stock exchanges.

A subcommittee yesterday nearly completed the draft of a resolution of inquiry. Approval both by the committee and the Senate was forecast by leaders.

Senator Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, the chairman of the subcommittee, emphasized yesterday that no sensational inquiry was planned, but rather one "simply to determine if there have been abuses both in inflation and deflation of security prices." Senators Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, and Buckley (Democrat), Ohio, the other members of the subcommittee, will meet this morning with Walcott to draft the final form of the resolution of inquiry.

JAPAN TELLS LEAGUE OF ITS PEACE MOVE

Geneva, March 2 (A.P.).—Naotake Sato, Japanese delegate to the League of Nations Council, notified Joseph Paul-Boncour, president of the council, tonight that Japanese peace conditions had been presented to an intermediary at Shanghai.

Yosuke Matsuoka, Japanese representative at Shanghai, and a Japanese admiral handed the conditions to Vice Admiral Sir Howard Kelly, commander of the British Asiatic fleet, who immediately called a meeting of representatives of China and Japan to be held at 1 p. m., tomorrow (midnight, Wednesday, Eastern standard time), aboard his flagship Kent.

(Admiral Kelly has been one of the chief negotiators between the Chinese and Japanese at Shanghai. The new Japanese terms were not made public.)

On the eve of tomorrow's extraordinary session of the League of Nations Assembly, Dr. W. W. Yen, of China, solemnly warned league leaders tonight that the world stands at the crossroads of peace or war.

Urges Action at Once.

"There is no middle course," the Chinese delegate asserted in a comprehensive statement of his nation's position which is to be used as one of the bases for the assembly's deliberations on the Sino-Japanese conflict.

"If Japan is right in this matter, then militarism and brute force resume their sway over the affairs of nations. If the new order is to be preserved, the hour has struck to defend it."

The Japanese likewise filed a statement of their position. The statement was very brief and was not published.

As the day for the special assembly meeting approached—the second such meeting in history—league authorities were greatly concerned and perplexed over the Shanghai situation.

Answer to Japan.

Their efforts to lay down definite means of achieving peace lacked assurance, however, as the assembly is an unwieldy body and it was impossible to forecast what each of the 50 national representatives might do or say.

No nation, however small, is competent to "start something," and there is no authority in the assembly to overrule the sovereign right of each member to equality in debate.

In a note answering Japan's communication telling of the Japanese acceptance of the league council's peace plan, M. Paul-Boncour, of France, recalled to Naotake Sato that realization of the plan depended entirely upon cessation of hostilities.

Outcome Is Uncertain.

The French delegate's note echoed the concern felt at Geneva. The leaders here have expressed the conviction that peacemaking at the seat of the league while warfare is going on in the Far East is a futile procedure.

Tomorrow's assembly session will open with M. Paul-Boncour in the chair. It is expected that Paul Hymans, of Belgium, will be elected president and that subsequently the Japanese and Chinese delegates will make their declarations.

What will follow is uncertain. There has been some talk of forming a commission to deal with the Shanghai conflict, but several commentators have asserted this procedure would defeat the purpose of calling the assembly.

Dr. White Asserts Kidnaper Is 'Fool'

(United Press.)

Col. William Alanson White, world-famous psychiatrist, told the United Press tonight it was impossible to say definitely that the kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby was insane, but "in any case he was a damned fool."

As superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, Dr. White has been a leading witness in most of the famous criminal trials in America for years, including the Harry K. Thaw case and that of Leopold and Loeb.

"One can't make a diagnosis backwards," he said. "The audacity of the kidnaping is no positive indication of insanity. The kidnaper may have been absolutely normal from a medical standpoint but desperate financially. True, he may have been insane. But there is no way to tell without seeing him. Any one can make a thousand fanciful speculations. In any case he was a damn fool—he picked the wrong baby."

Cars Entering City Scanned by Police

Sharp Lookout Is Kept for Abductors of Lindbergh Baby.

Police scanned all cars arriving here yesterday as the Nation-wide search for the abductors of Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., continued.

Over the police teletype and radio system the following message was broadcast yesterday morning: "Look out for and arrest occupant of an auto bearing Pennsylvania tags No. 4476-B. Hold car and all occupants. Flash detective bureau. They are wanted for the abduction of Col. Lindbergh's child."

Sales Campaign Urged To Bring Out Money

At this time merchants have an opportunity to promote a selling campaign which would do more than "Administraiton scolding" to bring out hoarded money, Charles B. Dulcan, vice president and general merchandise manager of the Hecht Co., said yesterday at a luncheon of the Advertising Club of Baltimore.

"I know of no other time in the history of the world when merchants have had more beautiful, more artistic and better quality merchandise to sell at such low prices, as at the present time," he said.

U.S. WILL TAKE PART IN SHANGHAI PARLEY

Conference Is Agreed Upon at Geneva and Truce Is Now Awaited.

(Associated Press.)

The United States will participate in the international round table conference to be held at Shanghai under an agreement reached at Geneva as soon as fighting between the Chinese and Japanese has stopped.

Instructions to this effect have been forwarded by Secretary Stimson to Nelson T. Johnson, American Minister to China, now at the embattled Oriental city. Hugh R. Wilson, American Minister to Switzerland, also is ready to cooperate with the League of Nations in its conciliatory efforts.

As officials here see it, everything now hinges upon the cessation of hostilities at Shanghai and the attitude of the Nanking government toward a truce.

Tokyo has officially declared its adherence to the Geneva agreement. The situation, however, has been much confused by uncertainty as to the Chinese attitude.

Hope of an early peace has not been abandoned, but there was less optimism yesterday than Tuesday.

As long as fighting continues between the rival armies there is little hope for successful diplomatic negotiations. The Chinese and Japanese commanders must first arrange a truce. Repeated efforts of Admiral Kelly, who is in command of the British fleet at Shanghai, to frame terms acceptable to both combatants have failed thus far.

Both the Japanese and British Ambassadors called at the State Department yesterday to discuss the Shanghai situation, but, like officials of the Department of State, they are merely marking time waiting for the fighting to stop.

President Tsai Yuan-Mpei, of the Academia Sinaca, Nanking, sent a message Tuesday to Dr. Hawling Yen, Charge d'Affaires of the Chinese Legation, for transmission to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University, New York City, and other prominent educators, protesting against the destruction of educational institutions in China by the Japanese.

The message stated that the bombing at Shanghai has resulted in the demolition of three universities, a medical college and priceless libraries. It called upon educators of all countries to condemn Japanese military action directed at the destruction of Chinese culture.

Aid Program Set By Dixie Singers

Homer Rodeheaver Will Appear for Benefit of Mission Work.

"An Evenin' in the Southland," featuring Homer Rodeheaver and his group of Negro spiritual singers, will be presented tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock in the Willard Hotel for the benefit of the Central Union Mission and its Children's Emergency Home.

Mr. Rodeheaver will be assisted in the program by his sister, Ruth Thomas, who is coming here from Roanoke, Va., today to take part in a Kiwanis club program. She will be heard on the mission's program in old Southern ballads. Her accompanist is Mary Atkinson Henson, also of Roanoke.

The Negro quartet, new on the radio, was recruited by Mr. Rhodeheaver in the South and will be heard for the first time at a Washington concert. Tickets for the benefit performance are on sale at the Children's Emergency Home, 624 Indiana avenue.

Fortescue Trial Delay Asked to Help Darrow

Honolulu, T. H., March 2 (U.P.).—A motion for continuance of the trial of Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three others for the alleged "honor slaying" of Joe Kahahawai was presented late today.

Montgomery Winn, one of the island attorneys for Mrs. Fortescue, her son-in-law, Lieut. T. H. Massie, and two enlisted men, asked continuance until April 11 to permit Clarence Darrow to join the defense. The four were indicted on second degree murder charges. The State contended they killed Kahahawai after a jury, trying him and four others on charges of attacking Massie's wife, had disagreed.

Hunt for Baby in Bronx Proves Tip Groundless

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—Detectives searched a Bronx apartment today on a tip that two strange men and a woman, the latter carrying a baby, were seen to enter the building, only to find that the child was 9 months old and was taken there to visit its grandfather, Francis Risso.

HOME VALUES HERE REVEALED IN CENSUS

Costs and Rents Are Held to Show District Prospers Above Average.

The amount residents of Washington pay for the homes they own or rent strongly supports the claim that the people of the Capital are better off than their fellow Americans in most other cities, according to figures made public yesterday by the Bureau of the Census.

Of the 47,190 owned nonfarm homes in Washington, a price of $7,500 or over had been paid for 31,687 or 67.1 per cent of them, when the census was taken. Of these homes, 538 or 1.1 per cent were valued at less than $2,000; 850 or 1.8 per cent, between $2,000 and $3,000; 3,435 or 7.3 per cent, between $3,000 and $5,000; 9,698 or 20.6 per cent at between $5,000, and $7,500.

Of the 75,223 rented nonfarm homes, 28,269 or 37.6 per cent had a rental of $50 or more. A monthly rental of $15 was paid for 2,683 or 3.6 per cent; between $15 and $30 for 13,997 or 18.16 per cent; between $30 and $50 for 27,062 or 36.0 per cent.

The census showed 30 owned farm homes and 31 rented farm homes, in addition to those enumerated, and 1 farm home and 3,079 nonfarm homes for which the tenure was not reported.

The median value of owned nonfarm homes in the District of Columbia as a whole was $9,246. The median value of homes occupied by native white families (families with a native white person as head), was $9,722; by foreign-born white families, $9,567; and by Negro families, $6,433. The median rental of rented nonfarm homes in the District was $44.28 per month; of homes occupied by native white families, $49.55; of those occupied by foreign-born white families, $49.76; and of those occupied by Negro families, $29.14.

This report of the Census Bureau was preceded by one, published in The Post of Wednesday, March 2, in which it was shown that of the 125,554 private families in the District, 47,228 or 37.6 per cent own their own homes.

Parker-Bridget Store Receivership Is Sought

Portland, Me., March 2 (A.P.).—A receivership for the Parker-Bridget Co., operators of a large men's clothing concern in Washington, D. C., was sought today in a bill in equity filed in Supreme Judicial Court by Orrin E. Dreitzler, of Washington, a stockholder.

The bill alleges the concern, which has an office here, is in danger of insolvency.

ZIBA BENNITT IS BURIED.

Funeral Services Are Held for Cotton Expert in Capital.

Ziba Bennitt, whose sudden death occured in Memphis, Tenn., was buried yesterday in Rock Creek Cemetery, with the Rev. John G. Sadelor, of McLean, Va., officiating. Pallbearers were his two brothers-in-law, Frank Lyon and R. E. B. Yellott, and Col. James Devers and Charles W. Smith.

Mr. Bennitt was born in St. Louis, Mo., and lived in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., with his uncle of the same name, both of his parents having died when he was an infant. Later he engaged in the cotton business in Arkansas and Tennessee with offices in Providence, R. I., and Lille, France. He became a recognized expert on cotton and was owner of one of the largest plantations in Arkansas, president of a compress company and head of a large cotton brokerage firm. He maintained homes, both in Washington and Memphis.

He is survived by his widow, Pauline Wright Bennitt, daughter of the late Judge John V. Wright, of Tennessee, who was in the United States Congress and the Confederate Congress from that state. Mrs. Bennitt is a sister of Mrs. Frank Lyon, Mrs. Joseph D. Craig and Mrs. R. E. L. Yellott, all of Washington, and will make her future home here.

MRS. BLANCHE HOWELL DIES

Heart Disease Fatal to Bride of Agricultural Economist.

Mrs. Blanche B. Howell, 28 years old, bride of six months, died suddenly of heart disease last night at her home, 1620 Fuller street northwest. Mrs. Howell was the wife of Leander Howell, agricultural economist of the Department of Agriculture.

The couple was married six months ago at the bride's home in Texas. She came to Washington to live, but after two months her health became bad and she went back to Texas for a visit of about three months. She returned to Washington apparently in better health. Coroner Joseph D. Rogers issued a certificate of death from natural causes. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

JAPANESE WAR FUND ENCOUNTERS SNARE

Inquiry Group Recommends $5,120,000 Be Spent Instead of $7,040,000.

Tokyo, March 2 (A.P.).—The Japanese cabinet encountered opposition today in its effort to obtain authorization for a bond issue of 22,000,000 yen ($7,040,000) to finance the campaign at Shanghai.

The investigation committee of the Privy Council did not approve the plan, recommending instead that only 16,000,000 yen ($5,120,000) be expended.

The committee insisted that a special session of the Diet be called if the cabinet stuck to its determination to get the $7,040,000. The government has no desire to face Parliament at this time, cabinet members explaining that "unwelcome discussions" might result if the question were openly debated.

An extraordinary session of the cabinet was held to consider the difficult political problem involved. The Seiyukai party won an overwhelming majority in the February elections, but leaders did not care to make their first appearance before the Diet on the appropriation question.

Begin Conference Series.

Cabinet ministers began a series of conferences with members of the Privy Council in an attempt to get them to change their minds. If that proved impossible, it was expected that Parliament would be convened about March 15.

Foreign office and war office officials indicated they did not expect any truce at Shanghai based on compromise. Some doubt was expressed about the ability of Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa to complete the Chinese rout before the League of Nations Assembly convenes at Geneva Thursday, but confidence was expressed that the Shanghai action would be over before the Geneva session was far advanced.

An armistice imposed by force of Japanese arms, government officials said, would produce a more favorable atmosphere for the assembly meeting than an armistice based on voluntary withdrawal by the Chinese, because it would dispel to a great extent the belief in China that the foreigner can be beaten with his own weapons.

Official Japanese reports from many cities in China said that the enthusiasm raised by the long resistance of the Nineteenth Route Army was subsiding as a result of the recent Japanese advances.

Soviet Forces Increased.

The Japanese consul general at Alexandrovsk in Russian Saghalien reported to the foreign office that Soviet forces on the island were being increased and that 600 fresh troops of the Red army recently arrived from the mainland.

(The upper half of Saghalien, an island north of Japan, is owned by Russia and the lower half by Japan, under the Portsmouth treaty of 1905, which ended the Russo-Japanese War.).

The foreign office instructed Koki Hirota, Japanese Ambassador at Moscow, to inform L. M. Karakhan, acting foreign commissar of Soviet Russia, that reports of the Japanese giving assistance to "White" Russians in Manchuria were "entirely untrue."

On the contrary, the ambassador was instructed to say the Japanese were doing everything possible to curtail the activities of any anti-Soviet groups.

Advancing on Kating.

A brigade occupied Nanziang, the Japanese said, while the fresh troops of the Eleventh Division advanced on Kating, midway between Nanziang and Liuho.

Japanese troops occupied the Chinese government station of the Radio Corporation of America at Chenju today, although its Chinese and American officials strenuously sought to regain control of it.

The station, meanwhile, was out of commission. The operators denied that the plant had been damaged by Japanese bombing of Chenju, but disclosed that vital parts of the machinery were removed, which prevented the Japanese from operating it.

An intimation that the Japanese drive would be halted temporarily at Nanziang seemed shattered by official and private advices from Tokyo that the fighters would continue pressing on to the west until an official cessation of hostilities was arranged.

Close to Shanghai.

Although the Chinese positions in Chapei and the Kiangwan sector were broken, the warfare continued close to Shanghai. Japanese guns on the city's northern environs shelled the retreating Chinese ranks and new Chinese positions to the northwest.

A barrage from the guns of warships offshore covered the Woosung attack. The defenders' ammunition was running short.

Dozens of great fires raged in Chapei, some of them more than a mile in length, adding complete destruction of that section of Shanghai to the conflict's toll. The fires were the outcome of artillery shells and incendiary bombs. Both Chinese and Japanese troops set the blazes, hoping to hinder the enemy's operations.

The Japanese plunged ahead along the entire front from the Shanghai-Nanking Railway line northward to the Yangtze River. They said they took the Woosung forts at 8 a. m.

Garrison Left Isolated.

Finally bested after five weeks of battle, the Chinese Army executed a mass withdrawal along the whole front last night and this morning and established a defense line running roughly north and south through the town of Nanziang, 10 miles northwest of Shanghai on the Shanghai-Nanking Railway.

The Chinese garrison at the Woosung forts was left isolated by the retreating army. How many men remained there was uncertain, but they were wholly cut off from contact with the rest of the Nineteenth Route Army and the Japanese expected to mop up the fortifications without any trouble at all.

Early today the advancing Japanese had reached every objective assigned for this stage of the battle.

They had taken over the abandoned headquarters of Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai at Chenau, and their left wing was within striking distance of Nanziang, 3 miles to the west.

Chinese military officials asserted that they had executed a "tactical retreat," and that they would renew the battle from their positions at Nanziang.

It was impossible to determine the exact number of Chinese troops participating in the retreat, but observers here estimated that at least 50,000 men fell back. There were additional Chinese troops in positions to the west, and they were used as the nucleus of the new defense line.

Reports were received that the Chinese were looting and burning as they retreated, but they were regarded as being without foundation. At the beginning of the withdrawal the soldiers seemed to be in good spirits. Some units were loaded in motor trucks a few miles out of Shanghai and were borne away to the west.

Japanese air bombers harassed the retreating troops. Infantrymen and machine gun units were moved forward on the heels of the Chinese, but the Japanese artillery remained behind. The terrain provided many difficulties in moving big guns.

2 Slain in Communist Attack Upon Hitlerites

Berlin, March 2 (A.P.).—Two persons were shot to death and several hurt at Tannenwalde, near Koenigsberg, today when police intervened in a Communist attack on a group of Adolf Hitler's Nazis.

Some twenty Communists and a half dozen Nazis were injured last night in a pistol fight at Bildstock, near Saarbrueck. The Communists had invaded a Fascist meeting.

BRITAIN LIFTS BAN ON FOREIGN MONEY

Payment Is Final.

"The necessity of acquiring foreign currencies with sterling at its present level involves an apparent loss which will be borne by the exchequer on capital account," he asserted. "This loss is at present offset by the enhanced value of our stocks of gold Accordingly no burden is being placed on the current revenue of the budget."

The $150,000,000 repayment to the United States was final, the chancellor said.

"The lenders have consented to return a proportionate part of the 1-per cent commission as from date of maturity of existing bills," he finished.

As for the remaining restrictions against foreign loans, the chancellor was asked whether the "existing ban" was imposed by bankers or by the British treasury, or whether no such ban actually existed.

"I do not know that 'ban' is the right word," he replied. "But such control as is exercised is not exercised by the treasury."

WILLIAM CARLTON MOBLEY.

Macon, Ga., March 2 (A.P.).—William Carlton Mobley, Democrat, today was elected to Congress from the Sixth Georgia District to fill the unexpired term of the late Representative Samuel Rutherford.

Mobley, former secretary to Mr. Rutherford, had a vote of 7,764 with most of the precincts of the 13 counties in the district reported. His nearest opponent, Harvey J. Kennedy, of Barnesville, had 2,922.

Mobley, who is 25, will be the youngest member of the present Congress. His term will run until March 4, 1933.

St. Paul, Minn., March 2 (A.P.).—It's the Presidency or nothing for Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of Oklahoma, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Arriving today from Oklahoma City en route to North Dakota in behalf of his candidacy in the preference primary, March 15, Gov. Murray emphatically said he would not accept the Vice Presidency. He also predicted that "none of the Democratic presidential candidates now in the field will be nominated."

"I do not care for the Vice Presidency," he said. "I am a candidate for President. And I am a candidate in my own right and will accept nomination only on that basis. To accept the Vice Presidency would be in direct violation of that principle."

Asked what he would do if he lost the nomination, the governor retrted: "Well, then I would still be a Democrat, but a mighty still one." Gov. Murray will open a three-day campaign in North Dakota at Fargo Thursday.

Educators View Building Exhibit

Miss Alice Barrows Speaks on Various Types of Schools.

Members of the District Public School Association, after convening at the Franklin School Building last night, went to the auditorium of the Department of the Interior, where they viewed an exhibit of school construction and heard a discussion by Miss Alice Barrows, of the United States Office of Education, on various types of schools.

An address was also made by Mrs. Joseph N. Saunders, president of the District Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations, on present-day problems of keeping children in school. She stressed the need of the community to see that all children are properly fed and clothed and given adequate schooling.

The association adopted a resolution asking Congress to insert an item in the school appropriation for nurseries at the Teachers Colleges. Indorsement was accorded a bill which would give assistant colored school superintendents the same classification as white assistants.

Harry Helwig Honored At Trade Board Dinner

Harry H. R. Helwig, who was general chairman of the Mardi Gras midwinter dinner of the Washington Board of Trade, was given a testimonial dinner last night at the Willard by the membership committee and officers of the board.

The dinner took the form of a miniature duplication of the big affair held last month. A high spot of the evening was the announcement by George W. Offutt, president of the Board of Trade, of Thomas L. Egan as general chairman of the annual shad bake to be held late in May. Mr. Helwig was the recipient of a handsome suitcase and numerous other gifts.

Harmony of Parents And Children Urged

Change in the family life of Americans has brought the need for establishment of better relations between parents and children, Dr. Paul L. Benjamin, executive secretary of the District committee on employment, told members of the Western High School Home and School Association last night.

Charles Imlay, president of the association, spoke on the problem of loitering students. He decried the practice of both boys and girls loitering in stores near the school. The school orchestra and glee club furnished an entertainment program.

CRIMINALITY DENIED IN FARLEY METHODS

Counsel Holds Roosevelt Admitted Law Fails to Bar Interest-Taking.

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was held by defense counsel in the grand larceny trial of Sheriff Thomas M. Farley today to have admitted the absence of any law requiring the sheriff to yield up the money he is accused of stealing, by asking the Legislature to pass one.

In moving for a dismissal of the charges against Farley at the conclusion of the State's case, Defense Counsel Alfred J. Talley quoted newspaper excerpts from the governor's message to the Legislature yesterday asking that such a law be passed.

Farley announced at the close of today's session he would return to Flower Hospital for a rest and further treatment of his arm, burned when he fell against a radiator recently. He said he would remain in the hospital until Monday, when the trial will be resumed, unless the defense motion for a dismissal is granted meanwhile.

In his motion, Talley contended the State had failed to prove the commission of a crime.

Farley, he said, was the owner of the interest on funds deposited with him by litigants, "and the State has failed to prove any other owner."

Talley emphasized that litigants, except in nine instances, never had claimed the interest.

"Until this is done," he said, "there can be no theft."

In the nine instances where claims was advanced the interest was turned over to the litigants, Charles C. Connolly, cashier in the sheriff's office, had testified.

Connolly, last witness for the State, testified the custom of interest taking on the part of the sheriff extended back ten years to his knowledge.

The city court today ordered a hearing March 14 of charges brought against its chief clerk, Harry C. Perry, by Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter investigating committee.

The hearing will be on charges that Perry failed to offer a satisfactory explanation of bank deposits totaling $135,000 between 1927 and 1931, of which only $21,366 was salary, and that he allegedly had a bank discount of three notes, each for $1,500, because he carried a city account there.

Humor All About Us, Pastor States

Dr. Stockdale Addresses Capital Rotarians at Willard Luncheon.

"There is humor in everything, even in a business depression," Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, pastor of the First Congregational Church, told Washington Rotarians at their luncheon yesterday at the Willard Hotel.

Believing that a sense of humor is one of God's gifts, Dr. Stockdale expressed his belief that religion is too disconnected with humor of the right kind and business even more so. In times like the present, he said, ability to see and recognize the bright side of things would be a powerful help in upbuilding a normal and constructive business activity.

Dr. Stockdale's subject was "Why Do We Laugh?" He gave five reasons. Humor, he said, is based upon (1) exaggeration, (2) the ridiculous, (3) irrevelance, (4) repartee and (5) sudden escape from a ticklish situation. He cited side-splitting illustrations of each point, such as that of the nervous bridegroom who, when the minister said, "This is your wife," replied, "I'm pleased to meet you."

THE LINDBERGH TRAGEDY.

The kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby has thrown the country into a paroxysm of horror and rage. It is a crime that peculiarly outrages humanity. Its plotted cunning, its more than savage mercilessness, and the danger that it will lead to still more horrible consequences are factors that infuriate the public, and all the more because no method has yet been found to prevent or adequately punish such atrocity.

Doubtless the abductors, if they feel temporarily safe from detection, will communicate with Col. Lindbergh in an effort to collect ransom. He would be warranted in carrying on secret negotiations and paying any sum demanded for the sake of recovering his child unharmed. The danger is that a country-wide search may press the criminals so close that they will do away with the child in order to escape. Blundering police methods or amateur sleuthing at this juncture might cost the life of the babe.

This atrocious crime emphasizes the need of legislation which will make punishable by death the use of Federal agencies for committing the crimes of kidnaping and murder. The States have no jurisdiction over interstate commerce or the mails; and yet kidnaping and murder would be made impossible in many cases if these facilities were not employed. Why should the Federal Government permit crimes to be facilitated by the use of instrumentalities or agencies over which it has exclusive jurisdiction? Encroachment by the Federal Government upon the duties of the States in the punishment of crime is not to be endured; but crimes which become Federal in character by reason of the misuse of Federal agencies should be punishable by act of Congress.

A CLOAK FOR LAWLESSNESS.

Senator Norris' anti-injunction bill was adopted by the Senate with a good many qualms of conscience. Senator Reed confessed that his affirmative vote was cast "with a good deal of shame" because of some dangerous provisions in the measure. Senator Hebert, who led the fight for a substitute bill on the ground that the Norris bill is unconstitutional, surrendered at the last moment with the hope that the good features of the bill outweigh the bad. Many other senators have expressed grave doubts both as to the wisdom and the constitutionality of the bill as it stands, yet they cast affirmative votes because of a desire to appear friendly to labor.

The objection raised by Senator Reed centers attention on one of the serious defects in the Norris bill. It provides that—

> No officer or member of any association or organization, and no association or organization participating or interested in a labor dispute, shall be held responsible or liable in any court of the United States for the unlawful acts of individual officers, members, or agents, except upon clear proof of actual participation in, or actual authorization of, such acts, or of ratification of such acts after actual knowledge thereof.

This refers to employers' organizations as well as to labor unions. It would permit great corporations to hire ruffians to intimidate, molest and perhaps murder strikers without being held responsible for damages, unless the injured persons could show that the corporation actually directed or ratified such unlegal acts. On the other hand, the head of a communist union might order the destruction of a factory and escape responsibility for the result. Such is the measure that the legal genius of Nebraska has foisted upon the Senate.

Another section of the bill would forbid the Federal courts to issue an injunction, either temporary or permanent, in any labor dispute unless "the public officers charged with the duty to protect the complainant's property are unable or unwilling to furnish adequate protection." Under this section, Senator Reed points out, "a company could not file a bill against the head of the I. W. W. to restrain him from preaching anarchy until it previously had notified the chief of police or the sheriff in every town, village and little community in the United States in which it had an office." This bill goes far beyond protection of the rights of workingmen. In some cases it would provide a cloak of legal sanction for violence, and in others would hinder the courts in defending human life and property rights.

Furthermore, this measure would prevent the Federal courts from enforcing contracts between employers and employes which the Supreme Court has pronounced entirely legal. Congress can not infringe the constitutional right of free contract. But the Senate has undertaken to curtail that right by forbidding the enforcement of contracts against union membership. The bill does not involve the right of labor to organize and to bargain collectively. That is beyond question. It does attempt to deprive the individual of the right to contract with his employer as he sees fit.

Intending only to safeguard the rights of organized labor against abusive use of the injunction, the Senate has passed a measure that imperils human rights and property. Unless the Norris bill is radically altered in the House it may encounter a veto in the White House or be nullified by the Supreme Court.

TAXES AND ECONOMY.

Tax legislation which is designed to balance the budget has taken definite form and is almost ready for presentation to the House. Virtually every phase of the bill has been passed on by the ways and means committee, and is already known to the public. Thus far the measure has not encountered formidable opposition. Adoption of most of the levies sponsored by the House leaders may be expected.

As it stands the tax bill is a nonpartisan measure. It contains some suggestions made by the Treasury and some formulated by the Democratic House leaders. Last November when Secretary Mellon's recommendations were made it appeared that a general sales tax would not be necessary. Now it is considered virtually impossible to balance the budget without such a levy. Consequently the administration has agreed to it.

The committee has found it necessary to tap almost every available source of revenue to raise sufficient funds for the 1933 budget. Income taxes and customs receipts are at a low ebb. Surtaxes upon the higher incomes will be substantially increased, but it is futile to expect sufficient revenue from this source. Almost the entire population must take a hand in restoring the depleted Treasury to a sound position.

Some of the proposed new taxes are truly obnoxious. But that may be said of any tax levies. The general sales tax on manufactured articles is not designed to make the people feel happy over the largess of Congress. It has become a stern necessity to wipe out the deficit that has been created by reckless appropriation of Federal money for the benefit of veterans, farmers, and other special classes. This tax will be extracted from the daily spendings of the whole population, with only simple food products exempt. That is perhaps the most painless method of raising the vast sum that is necessary to supplement the income tax, estate and gift taxes and special excise levies. It is not to be supposed that Congress will saddle business with this burden indefinitely. When normal times return the existing tax structure will yield ample revenue to operate the Government. But at present business and the public will doubtless reap more benefits from a balanced budget than from low taxes.

Such a drastic tax measure as that which has been written by the ways and means committee can be justified only when it is accompanied by a rigid economy program. For the most part the House has scrutinized the supply bills with unusual care. Yet it has adopted one bill that would squander more than has been saved. A situation which requires an increase of more than $1,000,000,000 in taxes demands the utmost economy from every possible source. The people can not object to meeting the legitimate costs of government through equitable taxes, but they may be expected to rise in protest at the first manifestation of extravagance by a Congress that finds it necessary to enact such sweeping revenue laws.

A NOTABLE LEADER.

The retirement of Chinese forces from the center of Shanghai after holding out against the Japanese attack for five weeks only serves to emphasize the remarkably brave and able defense that has been made, a campaign that has surprised the world no less than the Japanese themselves. The aid of German experts, particularly in the construction of trenches to withstand artillery fire and aerial bombs, has been most useful, but full measure of credit must still be awarded the Nineteenth Route Army.

The leader of this army, Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, is unique in Chinese military annals. He is a studious young man, who at 39 years of age is a veteran of 170 military campaigns, and throughout his career has demonstrated that his sole desire is to give his services for the best interests of his native land without making any of the grasping demands for either power or riches so common among Chinese war lords. Gen. Tsai named his enemies some years ago as including Communists, Chinese militarists and Japanese imperialists.

Gen. Tsai repeatedly repulsed the first groups of invaders. It was evident from the beginning that ultimately he would have to retire before the superior forces and equipment of the Japanese. Nevertheless, his withdrawal must be classed as his greatest military achievement. If he had been supplied with heavy caliber guns, tanks and airplanes in quantities to match his opponents a different story would have been written at Shanghai.

Gen. Tsai is a soft-spoken leader who disdains gold braid, and when repeatedly offered political honors has answered, "I don't wish to take advantage of military success to gain a position for which I am not fitted." With all his mildness of manner the general is a strict disciplinarian. Samshu, the popular Chinese intoxicant, is barred from his army and six offences are punishable by death: Looting, circulating rumors that disrupt morale, gambling, endangering the lives and property of foreigners, cowardice and laxity in the performance of duty.

Gen. Tsai has seen continuous activity in the field since joining the first division of the Cantonese Army in 1914. His campaigns against the Communists, bandits and war lords have taken him to all parts of China. For his suppression of the Communist regime in Canton in 1927 he was elevated to the rank of vice commander general of the Third Division of Nationalist troops. When the army was reorganized in 1929 he was made commander general of the Sixth Division and vice commander of the Nineteenth Army, the titles he still holds. With the added prestige as a capable leader that Shanghai has brought to Gen. Tsai it seems probable that he may be drafted for a higher place in the reorganization of China that must follow. He is typical of the new spirit that has been born in that ancient land, and his example adds inspiration to the new life that is destined to begin when present difficulties are settled.

WASHINGTON AT DAWN.

No statistics are available to show what percentage of the population of the Nation's Capital rises with the sun. But doubtless a very considerable number of people respond to the summons of the alarm clock in the hour or half hour immediately preceding the break of dawn. To many of these it will be unnecessary to mention the beauty of the city at that magic moment. To others an invitation may be extended—an invitation to get up early enough, on at least one fine morning, to witness the pageant of the arrival of day.

Yesterday morning the spectacle was well worth a good deal of trouble. A little before 6 o'clock the city was wrapped in a violet blue cloak of mingled dark and light. The tardy half of a pallid moon was still to be traced, retreating high across the south. In the east a silvery pink or rose-colored stain spread slowly up the sky, deepening in brilliance as it moved. The dome of the Capitol was a silhouetted diadem of gray radiance. The streets were empty and quiet. Stray travelers emerged from the Union Station to find themselves lost in the stillness and the waning night.

Then suddenly it was a shade darker everywhere. Some unseen hand interrupted the play. The yellow street lamps died as the current was withdrawn. The whole scene was thrust back into obscurity and mystery again. But not for long. Steadily up the east came the advance guard of the Lord of Day.

There were no sharp streamers of flame shot out across the heavens, no theatrical display of burning lances. Instead there was merely the unfaltering, irresistible onward march as the minutes passed. In the end, the last remnants of the draperies of the night fell in nothingness in the west.

The sun does not repeat. No two mornings are ever the same. Perhaps on one occasion the east will burn like a hungry furnace; on another the orb itself will be in full view before its neighborhood will take on even the faintest color. But its variety is one of its attractions. Each morning is different, and each is possessed of its own original charm.

Washington's sunrises may not be as celebrated as those of Italy or California, Switzerland or Pittsburgh. But that is merely because Washington, like a blushing beauty, does not advertise her charms.

If the country is in as bad shape as some politicians claim, isn't it amazing that they are willing to spend millions to have a share in running it?

Some of the critics of Al Smith should be politely reminded that if it were not for him they would still be unknown.

From the Christian Science Monitor.

A number of English artists have been considering ways and means of following the excellent example set by a group of artists in Paris, who have organized an exhibition at which pictures and statues are exchanged for goods. It seems simple enough. The butcher in payment for a picture gives vouchers for meat, the fruiterer for fruit; the plumber promises to repair the bath; the house decorator to decorate the apartment. There is no service related to his daily needs which the artist is not willing to accept in return for the products of his artistic skill. But up to now the Englishmen have discovered difficulties which are not reported to have disturbed their confreres in Paris. The painter finds it easy to get a statue in return for his painting, and an embroidered cushion is readily exchanged for a wood-cut. But artists can not live by taking in, as it were, one another's washing. They must cast their net wider, and get into touch with the baker, the tailor, the plumber, the market-gardener.

The Swiss Family Robinson managed it simply enough, apportioning all the duties of their little island community among different members of the family. But not only had the Robinsons the will to go on producing indefatigably—just as the artists are willing to paint pictures from morning to night if any one will have them—but also they evidently had a genius for organization. They gathered enough breadfruit to satisfy the whole demand for breadfruit, and stopped there. They saddled an ostrich just often enough to satisfy the demand for swift transport, and no oftener. The internal economy of the island was admirable. No one by working hard thought that he had produced too much for the general well-being, but nobody's work was wasted. The system of give balanced that of take to the very penny.

The method of primitive barter was only a slight extension of the method adopted by the Swiss Family Robinson. And yet in practice it was already worlds away. When goods had to be brought to market one could never count upon a perfect balance between the needs of producers and consumers; and there was always the chance that the sculptor might fail to find in his neighborhood any baker or butcher with a taste for statues.

Not all the families, by any means, were Robinsons when the patriarchal system was the rule, but neither has the commercialism which supplanted it proved sufficient to eliminate poverty and maladjustment. Even barter requires the organization of good markets; and when the area of exchange spreads, till it covers not merely an island, but the whole world, when vouchers for services due are replaced by currency, and when some of the countries want to produce just the things which other countries are producing in excess, then we feel the need for something approaching the organization achieved by the Swiss Family Robinson.

POST HASTE.

Events in Shanghai and Geneva, the doings of Congress, and political developments, were overshadowed yesterday by universal concern for the fate of one important bit of humanity, and the hope throughout the world that the Lindbergh baby will be safely returned to its distracted parents.

There is no longer any question about the Great Wall dividing China proper from China improper.

If no French gold was shipped to Paris last week there was a perfectly good French reason—no French ship was sailing until this week.

Chairman Sirovich is going to have a difficult time proving that the critics have ruined the theater industry because they didn't stick to patent facts.

In refutation of the charge that unfavorable reviews have killed stage business doubtless one classic case will be cited. "Abie's Irish Rose" was unanimously and unmercifully panned by the critics, but it lived to break all records for continuous appearances in New York.

Rhode Island, smallest of the 48, will be used as a sucker to go up against Uncle Sam in trying to get away with legalization of illegal beer.

It is encouraging that Justice Brandeis supports the Texas Federal court in its decision that a governor can not run private business with the State militia.

Quite aside from the unexpected military situation encountered, no nation ever made a greater miscalculation as to results than Japan in her attack on Shanghai. Japan incurs a staggering expense and emerges with impaired credit and prestige, while China has been united and gained sympathy and support throughout the world.

If, perchance, congressional investigation should show a preponderance of market gangsters to be Democrats we may look for some fine samples of recriminatory repercussion.

The District antihoarding committee appears to know where idle money is as well as the robbers that raided safety deposit boxes, but there is really no evidence that the committee staged that event to stimulate buying of baby bonds.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

BURDEN BEARER.

There's always one to bear the load,
To play the guide along life's road
And plan and fashion every act
To keep the family intact.
In every home there's always one
To hold the faith and carry on.

The burden bearer day by day
Beholds the others dance and play,
And struggles not to let them see
How weary she has grown to be
Of keeping house and holding on
And sometimes being imposed upon.

Good angel of the home is she
Who braves the tasks of two or three,
And puts her own desires aside
For family love and family pride
And suffers many a hurt and ache
With courage for the others' sake.

Without her fortitude and grace
The home would be a sadder place.
Without her faith and strength of will,
Her love for all through good and ill,
Her patient and devoted care

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IN a natural state, as men of sense agree, the natural thing is the moral thing. But when men outgrew jungle ethics and invented compassion and unselfishness, morality became a much nobler business. It became and remains largely a matter of having regard for the other fellow.

By common consent, suicide is unmoral. The suicide, in nearly all cases, is dodging. Yet when a man deliberately sacrifices his life to save others, which is suicide, people feel that he has been a credit to his race. The effect in both cases is the same; the man is dead. But in one case his action seemed ignoble because he thought only of himself, and in the other it seemed noble because he thought only of others.

Habitual drunkenness, by common consent, is unmoral. Yet if by getting drunk every day a man could render great service to society, the business would seem noble regardless of what it did to his liver and kidneys. Society frowns upon the drunk because he spends for himself the money his family needs and becomes a nuisance to his fellows. His sin is selfishness.

Robin Hood was a thief, the thieving isn't moral, and yet the gay villain remains one of the world's choicest heroes because he took from the fat and gave to the lean. His thefts were unselfish thefts.

When a statesman "took" an isthmus as a site for a canal, the obvious unmorality of the proceeding was forgiven because of the good to many that resulted.

When a great power seizes the resources of a backward people, the business is theft and nothing more. Yet the obvious benefit conferred upon society as a whole silences the critics.

This is not to argue that the end does in fact justify the means, but only that society, in its present imperfect state, regards as moral those things which seem to contribute to its own security and well-being.

Party Enrollment Figures.

New York Herald Tribune.

Official figures show that the Democratic party enrollment in the State of New York exceeds that of the Republican party for the first time within memory. The excess amounts to about 100,000, whereas the year before the Republican total topped the Democratic by about 8,000.

Analysis of the figures shows that the gradual ascendancy of the Democratic enrollment over a period of years is due in large part to the disintegration of the Republican organization in the City of New York. Here, now, there are nearly four times as many enrolled Democrats as Republicans, while in the remainder of the State (up-State) the Republicans have more than twice as many enrolled as the Democrats. A year ago the ratio—Democrats to Republicans here and Republicans to Democrats up-State—was about two and one-half to one in each case.

In every New York City county the Democrats show a gain and the Republicans a loss for 1931 over 1930. Certainly this was not due to any increase of public confidence in Tammany Hall. Intensve organization work by Tammany and a woeful lack of it on the part of the Republicans seem the most reasonable explanation.

Speak Up, John!

Chicago Tribune.

A question trembles on every lip. It echoes from the sky. It shrieks from every hill and vale. It's the night wind's sigh. The trees and grass are asking, too. The world joins in the cry. Yes, everybody wants to know, is John N. Garner dry?

Rivals.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

It is a testimonial to Speaker Garner's popularity at home that news of his presidential prospects divides front page honors in Texas newspapers with Ma Ferguson's return to State politics.

Economy Pledge.

Chicago Tribune.

Every candidate for Congress in the coming election should be given the opportunity to give or refuse a definite pledge to work and vote for drastic retrenchment of Federal expenditure. It may be admitted that pledges may be plausibly evaded, especially in a matter so indefinite as public economy. Even a clear mandate of law to which a legislator subscribes in taking the oath of office has been notoriously evaded, as in apportionment of representation in Illinois and elsewhere, and the economy pledge will have its validity only in the sincerity or sense of political expediency of the pledge giver.

Nevertheless, a pledge phrased as definitely as possible should be put before every candidate by representative bodies of his constituency.

Overlooked the Election.

Kansas City Times.

Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, remarks that "it is always a temptation to claim everything in sight in a presidential year." This might seem to explain the conflicting claims of Republican orators and Democratic Congress members for recent legislation of a beneficial sort at Washington. But the claimants on both sides probably had forgotten entirely that it was a presidential year. They just naturally wanted to see to it that justice should be done and credit should go where it belonged.

Bankruptcy and Revolution?

Brooklyn Citizen.

According to Mr. Merle Thorpe, the Government of the United States is on the road to bankruptcy. According to Mr. John J. Raskob, we are on the road to revolution such as occurred in France in the eighteenth century. Fortunately, the dire results prophesied by these two distinguished gentlemen can still be averted, provided their advice is taken.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your morning paper Gen. Glassford is reported to have said that as Superintendent of Police he needs more policemen to make the city dry, as he is now only scratching the surface. He also needs, he said, a revision of the law. In the same paper and on the same page, appear three different paragraphs with the ominous titles, "$50,000 Estimated Stolen From Bank," "Four Apartments Looted by Robber," "Pedestrians Seek Better Protection." There is also a paragraph referring to a crime apparently committed a day or two before. These paragraphs all tell of danger threatening life and property in our city. It is fair to presume that these are not all the incidents of that kind which have happened within the last few hours. The truth is we are in the midst of a reign of lawlessness. Every day our papers are full of accounts of this kind. In the meantime Gen. Glassford appears to be only concerned about the city not being as dry as it should. Yet what a deadly parallel would these items make set side by side with his appeal.

My suggestion is that Gen. Glassford wake up for a few hours to take notice of the reign of lawlessness in which we are living. In the meantime many believe that even if Gen. Glassford obtain his greatly increased police force and his needed legislation, neither he nor any other man could enforce what they regard as an unenforceable law. But be that as it may, we ought to be getting better protection of our lives and property. Things have come to quite a pass in our city. Housekeepers are reinforcing their front and back door locks and putting chains on them, in a way that they are probably not doing even in Chicago. It is quite unsafe to walk the streets at night. People living in apartments come home to find their apartments rifled, and in one case 35 others suffered at the same time. Even taxi drivers can now hardly ply their trade because of the inevitable pistol in the hands of their fare. And the pity of it! Hardly an arrest.

What is the trouble? Are we neglecting the attention to these criminal classes to center all our thought and energy on the dry violators?

On one occasion, about five years ago, we had the spectacle on Fourteenth street of three policemen trying to find out with a tape how far the wheels of a parked automobile were from the curb. At that time the fad was to see that automobilists guilty of such a serious infraction of the law were duly punished. Apparently now we are on another tack.

And here is a bit of history that may be in this case illuminating. I have been rector of St. Thomas' parish for 29 years. During that period we have again and again suffered from thieves. Alms boxes have been rifled; money has been stolen and everything else that a thief could lay his or her hands on which he thought might be useful—pictures, rugs, stamps, wine, &c, to say nothing of pocketbooks of worshipers engaged in prayer. Yet in all these years not one single arrest has been made; not one criminal has been discovered, save one I made myself—a professional thief helping herself to a couple of pocketbooks during divine service. At the police court she was sentenced to leave the city for twelve months, but she was back on her job here in three months.

And all this is in that part of our city which is esteemed the safest and most orderly and where we should logically infer life and property are safe. But experience suggests the question: "If they do these things in the green tree, what shall be done in the dry?"

May I respectfully, therefore, suggest to Gen. Glassford that just now what the citizens of Washington want is some reasonable degree of safety as to their lives and their property—even if we have to give up some attention to the enforcement of so great an issue as prohibition.

President's Admirer Desires Clarifying Statement on Proposed Embargo.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On February 27 the statement was made to the writer that the shipment of war materials from this country to both Japan and China has not been forbidden, because President Hoover is personally opposed to an embargo; that he has the power to issue an embargo and does not do so because of "big business," and that, furthermore, he has intimated that it is not desirable to have any discussion of the subject by Congress for fear of hurting business, regardless of all other considerations.

These remarks can not be considered as the mouthings of the unthinking. The gentleman who made them to me is one who stands high in the estimation of his friends and business associates as a successful lawyer.

The subject is a live and interest-compelling one, and as an admirer of and firm believer in Mr. Hoover, the writer feels it is most desirable, if not imperative, to have an authoritative statement clarifying the situation.

If my friend is in error, a great wrong, through his influence, may be inflicted on the President, and on his party as well; if my friend is right, official verification of Mr. Hoover's position is in order. B.

One Danger the Less.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is very comforting to realize that the cherry blossom trees are under the control of the War Department.

SINO-LEX.

GEN. BUTLER, AS DRY, WILL OPPOSE DAVIS

Has Support of Pinchot and Antisaloon League in Race for Senate.

Newtown Square, Pa., March 2 (A. P.).—Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, the energetic former Marine commander, today bounced into the political ring and squared off for a finish fight with United States Senator James J. Davis for the senatorship.

Home from a lecture tour to attend his daughter's wedding next Saturday, Gen. Butler announced he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination against Senator Davis and would campaign on a dry platform. Senator Davis is running as a wet.

The battle to a decision between "Gimlet Eye" Butler and "Puddler Jim" Davis is expected to be hard fought and as colorful as any senatorial contest that has been held in Pennsylvania.

Full State Ticket.

The general will have the solid support of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, who urged him to run and who is expected to put into the field a full State ticket. The announcement of Butler's active entrance into Pennsylvania's politics as a candidate at the primary on April 26 came after he had held a conference with P. Stephen Stahlnecker, the governor's secretry.

The general had little to say beyond the mere announcement that he would oppose Senator Davis, and would run as a dry.

"I have nothing more to say at this time," he said. "The baby was just born. It is a Pinchot-Marine baby. I will not discuss issues until my return from my next lecture tour in about two weeks.

Talked With Mrs. Butler.

"I've been thinking about running for senator for a long time. I talked it over with Mrs. Butler and we decided that I might make a good race at this time. We felt it was 'now or never.'"

The entrance of Gen. Butler into the primary campaign brings the prohibition question to the front in Pennsylvania. He is known as an advocate of strict enforcement of all laws and is opposed to any change in the prohibition law. Senator Davis recently announced that he was in favor of repealing the eighteenth amendment and giving the States the power to deal with the liquor traffic. He also advocated a modification of the Volstead act pending a change in the constitutional amendment. He was agreed upon for senator by the Republican organization.

Organization leaders had nothing to say today when they learned of Gen. Butler's announcements. They are still conferring upon the final make-up of the State ticket, with leaders from Pittsburgh, and it is possible that Gen. Butler's entrance into the campaign may have some effect in reaching an agreement with leaders from western Pennsylvania.

Drys Are Satisfied.

Dry leaders expressed satisfaction with Gen. Butler's candidacy. The Rev. Homer W. Tope, superintendent of the Pennsylvania Antisaloon League, said Gen. Butler "will give Senator Davis the fight of his life."

Both Senator Davis and Gen. Butler have been before the public for many years, the former as a member of the Cabinet of three Presidents, and the latter as an intrepid Marine commander and crusader against vice and crime in Philadelphia, where he was head of the police department.

Gen. Butler saw service in the Marines in different parts of the world and carries many decorations to testify to his courage and efficiency as a Marine commander.

Senator Davis, who rose from iron puddler to Cabinet member, is widely known in national politics. He served as Secretary of Labor under Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, resigning to become a senator. He is serving the term for which William S. Vare, Republican leader of Philadelphia, was elected in 1926. Mr. Vare was refused a seat in the Senate because of alleged excessive campaign expenses.

Edge and Tardieu Discuss Problems

Ambassador and France's New Premier Talk on Double Taxation.

Paris, March 2 (A.P.).—The new premier, Andre Tardieu, and the American ambassador, Walter E. Edge, had an hour and 10 minute conversation today, but all they would say afterward was that "outstanding problems" had been discussed. It was understood the questions of war debts, French import quota restrictions, and double taxation were discussed, and that no definite decision was reached.

On leaving the French foreign office just before the dinner hour tonight, Ambassador Edge said he renewed his acquaintanceship with Tardieu in a courtesy call.

"We discussed things in general," said Mr. Edge. "That's all I can say."

Later it was learned authoritatively that the double taxation question, which affects American business men, was one of the chief points discussed. Disarmament also came in for deliberation, as did the Far Eastern situation.

Press Club to Hold "City Room Night"

Staffs of Baltimore and Capital Papers Invited to Party March 12.

"City Room Night" will be observed in the National Press Club on Saturday night, March 12. The editorial staffs of the Washington and Baltimore newspapers, and the wives of members of these staffs, have been invited by the club to attend a special party in their honor.

A special program will be held in the club's auditorium beginning at 9 o'clock. It will be a newspaperman's program from beginning to end. The locale of the program will be a city room of a teeming and purple tabloid. This particular city room has a male quartet, a quartet which would rather sing than play poker, and during the course of the program these boys will be given special assignments.

The Press Club will hold open house and will extend all the privileges of the club to newspapermen, members and nonmembers.

Columbus First to Sail Sea on Installment Plan

By JOHN J. DALY

IT had to come—touring Europe on the installment plan. Tourists may now go to the old country, or the West Indies, merely by paying 25 per cent down and the balance in monthly allotments, or when the sheriff comes a-calling.

This innovation puts European travel in the same category with radio sets, electric or gas refrigeration, the family automobile, the washing machine, cooperative apartment houses and other luxuries and necessaries bought on the deferred payment plan, including baby buggies.

Strangely enough, as the announcement points out, this typically American method of procedure is first applied to modern travel by a British shipping concern—John Bull taking up where Uncle Sam left off. It is described as the first time a large scale installment financing project has been applied to an "intangible."

* * * *

IS it? What about Columbus? From all accounts, Ferdinand and Isabella pawned the family jewels to send Christopher on his voyage—the first record of a deferred payment plan for ocean travel, the discoverer pledging to pay for his journey in later days, upon his return.

From the West Indies, the custom of "buying now and paying when" spread to Manhattan. There the first exchange on this basis was made with the Indians. They turned over the island for $24 and a bottle of fire water, with the promise of more to come.

Ever since America has been running on the installment plan, the handmaiden of the collection agencies, a man or woman may purchase almost anything the human heart desires, except love, merely by promising to pay. Sign on the dotted line and let the bills fall where they will.

Of course, if the long drawn-out pay series is interrupted, the lawyers start sending out snappy letters, which speeds up business for stationers and printers. Eventually, the moving men get into the picture. A truck backs up to the front door, ready to haul away a vacuum cleaner. That, of course, is the last gesture—dispossession. Usually, however, the merchant who goes to collect one article of furniture, because of bashful and backward payments, finally ends by selling another piece on the installment plan, the merry-go-round of American civilization.

SINCE Columbus, the Admiral of the Ocean, started the game, the installment plan has been to America what breath is to life; what a bowl is to a goldfish, or like Andalusian April to a weather forecaster, a sure means to an end, something that can not be dispensed with, like a baby's rattle.

The old Santa Maria, Pinta and Nina were the first ships that carried the installment plan to its destined home, America. Shortly after that oceanic travel went on a pay-as-you-go basis. While the Cunard liners are just reviving an old custom, distinctly American, the day is not far off when all other steamship lines must, of necessity, follow suit—for this is the only way any good, 100 per cent American buys anything, from a rat trap to a ranch. He gets even his watches on Time.

Political Leader Held in Rum Plot

Police Officials Seized With Omaha "Boss" on Dry Count.

Omaha, Nebr., March 2 (A.P.).—Federal agents late today arrested Tom Dennison, reputed "boss" of Omaha politics for more than twenty years, on a grand jury indictment charging him and six others with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

United States District Attorney Charles Sandall described the seven men as "the big shots of the liquor syndicate" here. Others arrested were John T. Marcell, a South Omaha police station prosecutor; Police Lieutenant Harry Buford; Police Sergeant Joe Palsch; William E. Nesselhouse, associate of Dennison; Paul Sutton, former detective chief and now a detective sergeant; Roscoe Rowley, South Omaha politician. All were freed on bond.

The grand jury's action followed a series of raids here a month ago by Federal agents and a previous three months' investigation in which approximately 100 persons were indicted as members of the syndicate. Four slayings here recently have been ascribed to liquor gang wars.

Pay Raskob Back, Is Plea of Shouse

Huge Expenditures of National Chairman Told to Women.

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—Jouett Shouse, executive chairman of the Democratic national committee, told 100 women workers in the party's "victory campaign" today, that John J. Raskob, national chairman, had "advanced every penny" of the $10,000 a month or more which he said it had cost to operate the party's Washington headquarters the last three years.

"It is unimportant to John Raskob," he said, "whether that money is paid back or not. It is of infinite importance to the Democratic party that it should be repaid."

Shouse told the women he wanted to have $500,000 to turn over to the new committee immediately after the national convention in Chicago. "And in the next five months," he said, "I want to spend enough money to win our campaign before we shall have nominated a candidate."

Garner in Primary Looms in Nebraska

Lincoln, Nebr., March 2 (A.P.).—Nebraskans favoring nomination of John N. Garner, Texas Democrat, for President, were practically assured today of opportunity to cast a preferential vote for him at the State's primary election April 12.

Petitions advocating his candidacy and bearing 2,285 signatures taken in the five congressional districts were filed late today with the Secretary of State. The law requires only 100 names from each district.

Unless the Speaker of the House declines this courtesy filing, it was explained at the office of the Secretary of State. His name will be on the Democratic ballot.

Sweepstakes Project Is Defeated in Canada

Ottawa, Ont., March 2 (A.P.).—The Senate today defeated by 36 to 20 the hospital sweepstakes bill, which would have legalized under auspices of the attorney general of any province that wished to take advantage of it a system of sweepstakes, the proceeds to inure to the benefit of the province in which it was held.

People can take advantage of your offer the same day it appears in a Post Classified Ad. Phone National 4205.

G. O. P. Body Hits Lily-White Policy

Louisiana "Regulars" Call Upon Convention to Settle Issue.

New Orleans, March 2 (A.P.).—The "regular" Republican faction of Louisiana, in convention here today, called upon the Republican national convention, which meets in Chicago June 14, to "state firmly the position of the party with respect to its attitude regarding lily-whitism, once and for all, to the end that either the party may be rid of these contests or that those discriminated against may seek justice through other channels."

The administration-recognized group also naming delegates to the convention at a meeting in Alexandria, was condemned by the "regulars" for its lily-white stand.

The "regulars" selected four delegates-at-large and four alternates to the national convention to supplement eight district delegates already selected, and instructed the delegation of twelve votes to act as a unit. The Hoover administration was indorsed, and support was pledged.

Gun Accident Kills Massachusetts Teacher

Brookline, Mass., March 2 (A.P.).—Prof. Winward Prescott, associate professor of English at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, accidentally shot and killed himself early today while cleaning a gun in the study of his home.

A bottle of gun oil was on his desk. Police believe he forgot to remove one shell from the gun.

TWO WET MEASURES PASSED IN NEW YORK

Republicans Join Democrats in Vote to Ask Congress for Repeal.

Albany, N. Y., March 2 (A.P.).—Party lines failed to hold all of the Republican majority in the New York Assembly today, enough of them joining with a solid Democratic group to pass two antiprohibition resolutions.

Twenty-four Republicans lined up with fifty-six Democrats to memorialize Congress to repeal the eighteenth amendment and restore liquor control to the States. The repeal resolution was introduced by Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, Tammany veteran and persistent foe of prohibition. It conformed to Gov. Roosevelt's declaration for replacement of the eighteenth amendment with another to permit State jurisdiction.

A Democratic resolution asking Congress to permit 4 per cent beer was passed by the Assembly before the repeal measure was called up. The beer bill drew the help of only nineteen Republicans but that was enough to carry it, 76 to 47. Both resolutions went to the Senate.

Rhode Island's Example.

The action of the lower house of the New York Legislature follows by a day Rhode Island's repeal of enforcement act and the legalizing of 3 per cent beer. Republicans sponsored the legislation in Rhode Island.

A third Democratic liquor measure failed in the New York Legislature today. It was a "State dispensary" bill, permitting the State to manufacture and sell liquor, and was rejected by the Senate. The same act, sponsored by Senator John J. Hastings, Brooklyn Democrat, received legislative approval last year, but was vetoed by Gov. Roosevelt on constitutional grounds. It is based on the contention that the Federal legislation governing manufacture and sale of intoxicants applies only to individuals, and not States.

Supporters From City Areas.

All except two of the Republicans and all of the Democrats, voting for the wet resolutions in the Assembly, are from urban communities.

New York State has not had an enforcement act since 1923, when Gov. Smith signed the Cuvillier bill repealing the Mullan-Gage law. During the two-year period, 1923-24, that the Democrats had a majority of the Senate, the Legislature passed a 2.75 per cent beer bill. Mayor James J. Walker was the Democratic leader of the upper house.

The bill was invalidated by the action of the United States Supreme Court on a similar law from another State.

HOUSE VOTES TODAY ON WHEAT FOR POOR

Bill Giving 40,000,000 Bushels to Jobless Will Pass, Garner Thinks.

(Associated Press.)

The House Democratic leadership is expected to pry open the Farm Board wheat bins today and scoop up 40,000,000 bushels of the grain for feeding the unemployed.

Already passed by the Senate, the resolution to distribute the wheat yesterday was given legislative preference in the House. Speaker Garner expressed the hope it would pass, probably today. It would then go to President Hoover.

The measure was given right of way by the rules committee after Chairman Jones, of the agriculture committee, told of wide distress in many rural and metropolitan areas. Not only is the wheat to be milled and distributed by the Red Cross to the poor and jobless, but it is to be fed to starving live stock.

"We pay 18 cents a bushel a year to store the stabilization wheat and that won't take much time to equal the cost of the wheat," Speaker Garner told newspapermen. "We bought and paid for it and I don't see any reason why the hungry people can't have the benefit of it. I've been in favor of it all along."

Arguing for privileged status for the bill before the rules committee, Chairman Jones said his committee, which at first rejected the bill, had found a great deal of distress in the country.

The Red Cross, he explained, is feeding many people in Northwestern States and can arrange for distribution of the wheat in metropolitan areas through proper organizations.

"The unemployment existing in many sections of the country has added to the distressed condition throughout the Nation," he said. "Reports indicate a vast need for relief work in the country."

The expense incident to the distribution of the wheat is not to be borne by the Federal Government, he explained, adding:

"This wheat is practically useless to the Government and if used as provided in the resolution will contribute materially to the relief of those who are hungry and in distress."

Officers Are Chosen By Relief Committee

Clifford L. Johnson has been elected president of the Bladensburg, Md., district unemployment committee, with Frank H. Fierstein as secretary, Alfred R. Lee, treasurer, and W. R. Beattie, adviser. A meeting will be held tomorrow night to map the house-to-house canvass of the jobless in the vicinity.

News of Post's Essay Test On Subject of Washington

Competition Is Lauded by Bicentennial Worker.

The Post George Washington essay contest is one of the outstanding educational events in the United States, in the opinion of Edgar P. Allen, assistant associate director of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, expressed in a statement yesterday commending The Washington Post for its patriotic enterprise in inaugurating the contest in which $1,000 in cash prizes is to be distributed among the students in Washington and nearby Virginia and Maryland.

"Following the example set by The Washington Post," continued Mr. Allen, "many other newspapers have initiated similar contests, but none, I believe, has reached the point of enthusiasm and interest which is being shown in The Post contest here in Washington and its suburbs.

"We of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission are in a position to realize the great popularity of The Post contest, because the calls upon us for material have been steadily increasing since the day the contest opened.

"No better foundation could be laid for the education of the child than to have him thoroughly grounded in the history of George Washington and his time. The Washington Post has done a particularly commendable thing in instituting this important movement. It is a most appropriate contribution to the work of this Commission and therefore is a form of cooperation that is of great practical value.

"The Post deserves great credit for its enterprise and its comprehensive plan by which it is awakening the enthusiasm of the boys and girls in this community."

Tickets for the special show to be held at the Rialto Theater on March 12 at 9:45 a. m., through the courtesy of the Rialto Theater management in honor of the entrants in The Post George Washington Essay Contest, have been printed. Distribution will start on Saturday at 9 a. m., and will continue until 1 p. m. on that day. All those who have entered essays in the contest are entitled to a free ticket to the show and they will also be given without charge to members of The Junior Post Writers Club, the Knighthood of Youth and the George Washington Junior Citizens.

Call for your tickets. If you can not do so on Saturday send in a self-addressed stamped envelope for your tickets. Any boy or girl under the age of 10 is entitled to a ticket for an escort as well.

Less than two weeks now remain until the close of the contest. Essay writers are invited to submit their essays as soon as possible in order that they may be assorted into age groups to be submitted to the committee of distinguished judges.

Cooperation Is Assured in Job Stimulation Move on Sunday.

Cooperation of all Catholic churches in Washington in connection with the job stimulation Sunday, to be observed by churches of all denominations on Sunday, was assured yesterday by the Rev. John O'Grady. Plans for participation in the movement under the joint auspices of the District of Columbia work creation committee and the churches were made several weeks ago at meetings held between Col. E. G. Bliss's committee and pastors of Washington churches.

The Federation of Churches has made arrangements to have all pastors of Protestant churches deliver sermons based on the necessity of creating work for 20,000 men by April 1. The funds of the employment committee will have been exhausted by that time, it was announced last week by Elwood Street, Community Chest director. Jewish rabbis will speak on the subject tomorrow and Saturday.

All churches, through the federation, will appoint committees to assist in soliciting odd jobs throughout the District. The program is a part of the national movement scheduled by the President's committee on unemployment.

Hand Will Address Holmes' Banquet

Federal Bar Association Plans Tribute to Resigned Justice.

Judge Learned Hand, of the United States Circuit Court, will speak at the twelfth annual dinner of the Federal Bar Association, at the Shoreham Hotel next Tuesday in honor of former Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, on the occasion of his ninety-first birthday.

The dinner is planned as a tribute by the lawyers in the Government service to Justice Holmes, who has for so long occupied a position of judicial leadership. Solicitor General Thomas D. Thatcher will act as toastmaster. The Marine Band orchestra will provide music and Maj. Charles Trowbridge Tittmann, will sing.

The District Bar Association, Woman's Bar Association, and local representatives of the American Bar Association and the American Law Institute are cooperating in the tribute. A reception for guests will be held before the dinner.

Business Men's Society Gives Banquet Tonight

A program of entertainment will follow a banquet and business meeting of the Central Seventh Street Business Men's Association tonight in the Raleigh Hotel.

Arrangements for the affair are being completed by Sylvan King, president; Howard Sigmund, Dermott Nee, B. I. Boudren and Henry J. Kaufman.

Basis of Television Explained to Club

Engineers Watch Miniature Scanning Disc Show How It Works.

The fundamental principles of television were explained to the Washington Society of Engineers at the Cosmos Club last night by Dr. J. O. Perrine, associate editor, Bell System Technical Journal, New York.

Using a miniature scanning disc, Dr. Perrine disclosed to the audience the face of one of those present in a manner exactly similar to that used in television. This method of scanning by a rapidly moving spot of light, he said, illustrates how the image could be picked up from one of the broadcasting stations now sending out television programs.

Dr. Perrine described the electrical experiments illustrative of the operation and function of the principal elements of the television transmitter and receiver, including the photoelectric cell, or "electric eye," and the neon lamp receiver. He described operation of this equipment as "a vacuum tube amplifier similar to the telephone repeater used in long distance telephony which is connected between the photoelectric cell and the neon tube receiver to dmonstrate that light variations at one point can immediately reproduce light variations at a remote point."

Patriotic Pageant Is Set for Tonight

Southeast Club Will Give Prizes for Best Colonial Costumes.

A pageant entitled, "Living Pages From Washington's Diary," will be presented by members of the Southeast Dramatic Club, in a program arranged in a Bicentennial theme tonight at the Buchanan Auditorium, Thirteenth and D streets southeast, by the Southeast Community Center.

The pageant will be followed by a colonial costume dance, for which gold prizes will be presented to the contestants wearing the most attractive costumes. Colonial songs and dances will be presented under the direction of Mrs. H. E. Cournnyn, and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Titlow.

The Burroughs Community Center in the John Burroughs School, Eighteenth and Monroe streets northeast, will present a Bicentennial program on Saturday under the direction of Mrs. D. E. Middleton, community center secretary.

Count Lichnowsky Weds U. S. Woman in London

St. Francis Xavier Novena Is Planned

Services at St. Aloysius Church Will Start Tomorow.

A novena in honor of St. Francis Xavier, known as the novena of grace, will be held in St. Aloysius' Church, North Capitol and I streets, starting tomorrow and continuing until March 12. There will be nine services each day during the novena, consisting of prayers, sermon and benediction of the most blessed sacrament. There will be a special novena mass each day at 7 a. m., and another at 8:30 a. m. for children. The order of services for the remaining hours of the day and officiating priests are as follows:

8:30 a. m., children's service, the Rev. F. Grewen; 12:05 noon service, lower church, the Rev. M. F. Fitzpatrick; 5 p. m., upper church, the Rev. P. J. Clarke; 5 p. m., lower church, the Rev. J. J. O'Hurley.

There will be blessing with the relic from St. Francis Xavier after each service. Novena intentions, written out, will be placed on the altar.

Alley Dwellings Survey Conducted

Women in Economics Body Study Conditions in District.

The executive committee of the District of Columbia Home Economics Association headed by Mrs. E. C. Salisbury, chairman of the legislative committee, inspected several of the alley dwellings in the District Tuesday to get first-hand information on living conditions among the alley dwellers.

The association is taking active interest in the bill introduced by Senator Capper and Representative Bowman to eliminate alley dwellings in the city. Those making the tour were Miss Catherine Cowsill, president of the District Home Economics Association; Mrs. N. R. Ellis, chairman of the homemakers section; Miss Marie Mount, chairman of the home economics in business section; Mrs. John C. Ketcham, wife of Representative Ketcham of Michigan; also Miss Esther Jonas, Miss Elsie Krey and Dr. Edith Allen.

The American Home Economics Association has indorsed the bill and was represented by its executive secretary, Miss Alice L. Edwards, and the assistant editor of the Journal of Home Economics, Miss Katharine Kumler.

Epochal Device to Prevent Short Circuit Fires Bared

Substitute for Common Fuse Plug, Developed by Exhaustive Research, Expected to Make Home Power Lines Foolproof.

Pittsburgh, March 2 (A.P.).—A substitute for the common fuse plug, which will make fire from a short circuit virtually impossible, was demonstrated successfully today by the engineers who developed it. The device is the "de-ion circuit breaker."

When an electric "load" greater than that intended for any given circuit is thrown on electric wires, the device automatically shuts off the current and eliminates the hazard of fire.

Engineers of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., who have spent nine years and $500,000 perfecting it, assert the "breaker" is the first really new idea in circuit interference in 37 years.

The "breaker" is described as "foolproof" and nontamperable. It is not possible to "plug" it with a copper cent, hairpins or other articles conductive of electricity as may be done with the present style plug.

Should fire break out in the attic of a dwelling through crossed wires, the circuit breaker "de-ionizes" the stream of electricity and shuts off the flow.

To restore service it is necessary to throw a switch. If the "short" still exists, the device will not permit the current to flow through the wires.

Engineers pointed out that the toll of lives lost in fires in the United States is 10,000 annually. The property loss is about $500,000,000. Ninety per cent of these fires are classed as preventable.

Employment of the new circuit-breaker, which has not yet been placed upon the market, is expected by the engineers to do much to bring down the loss of life and destruction of property by flames.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

DRAMATIC events springing from financial conditions of 1893, brought to mind by the passage of the Glass-Steagall bill, will be re-enacted during the first presentation of "Today and Yesterday," a new program of musical and dramatic highlights, to be heard over WMAL from 8:30 to 9 o'clock tomorrow night.

Among the highlights to be presented will be a panic scene of 1893, and the famous "Cross of Gold" speech delivered by William Jennings Bryan at the Democratic convention, held in Chicago in 1896.

The program will offer musical contrasts, with tunes of the past and present, played and sung by the 24-piece concert orchestra directed by Don Voorhees, Gladys Brittain and a male quartet.

The A. & P. Gypsies, one of the three oldest sponsored radio programs on the air, will celebrate their eighth year of broadcasting during the program tonight (WJZ network, 10 o'clock). The feature started as a string quintet and now numbers 35 musicians. Harry Horlick has directed the program since the beginning.

A medley of tunes popular in 1924 will be played by the Gypsies as a feature of the anniversary program.

THE Concord (N. H.) Daily Monitor and Patriot recently telephoned 100 homes at random between 7:45 and 8:15 p. m., to get some figures of the reception of radio programs. The results, as set forth in an editorial, follow:

"Fifteen families of the 100 were not at home.

"Seventeen more families said they had no radio receiving sets.

"Thirty-five more said their radio receiving sets were not tuned in at any station.

"Sixteen who were tuned in didn't know what the station was and 24 couldn't say whose program they were listening to.

"Only eight out of the hundred could tell what product was being advertised in the half-hour, and not more than two were actually conscious of listening to the same program."

The editorial added:

"Concord has a population of 25,000. That is 250 hundreds. At two listeners to his program to each hundred the fortunate advertiser on the radio obtained a total audience in Concord last evening of 500 sets.

"Only one program got this audience. All others fell far short of this, and some had no conscious listeners at all."

THE overture to Weber's "Euryanthe" will open the half-hour program to be presented by Howard Barlow's Symphony Orchestra tonight (WMAL, 11 o'clock). Other selections include Ravel's "Le Jardin Feerique," Massenet's "Au Bade" and "Festival of Bagdad," from Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade."

Lucien Lelong, a leading figure in the world of fashion, will talk on "Trends in Fashion" during the Womens Radio Review this afternoon (WMAL, 3:30 o'clock).

Stanley Bell, WMAL announcer, will make his first network appearance as a vocalist when he signs with the Army Band this afternoon. Henri L. LeRoy, clarinetist, formerly soloist with the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, will play two numbers, Weber's "Concertino" and "Valse du Ballet di Patrie," by Palsdhile, during the same program.

The second act of "Die Walkure," the second music-drama in Wagner's "Der Ring des Nibelungen," will be broadcast from the Metropolitan Opera House over the WJZ network at 2 p. m. today. Gota Ljungberg, new Swedish soprano, will sing Sieglinde.

Showing how hard up radio press agents get for something to write about, a story has been received alleging that one of the broadcasting companies has just finished a calculation of how much fuel, measured in vitamins and calories, is required to produce the "oompah" of a tuba.

"WHEN Cardinal O'Connell called the crooning of the most popular radio entertainers 'a degenerate form of singing,' he won the hearts of all admirers of the trained voice," an editorial in the New York Times reads. "No one knows how such a thing as crooning gets started, though there are always a few who claim the honor. But once started, the fashion of the moment speedily becomes obsolete.

"For a time the 'boop-a-doop' type of song enjoyed the highest favor. 'Vo-deo-do' singing pushed it off the radio map. Then came the crooners. Now they are being driven away by the boys and girls who intersperse the vapid lines of the chorus with a medley of monotonous, meaningless syllables which defy print.

"Crooners will soon go the way of tandem bicycles, mah jong and midget golf."

With this comes the report that one well-known male crooner has been released and another is shortly to be released by commercial sponsors. The one who is off the air was on a cigar program and the sponsor is supposed to have let him out on the ground that a crooner appeals largely to the feminine audience which doesn't smoke cigars.

A new feature, "Uncle Jack and Cousin Oscar," will be heard from WOL at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Uncle Jack has been heard from stations in Baltimore, Cleveland, Columbus and New York * * * WMAL will commemorate the 100th anniversary of the death of Goethe with a special program at 10:45 o'clock tonight. Anita Schade, Dorothy Sherman Pierson and Eveline Monleo will participate * * * Kathleen Norris, novelist, will be interviewed over the WJZ network, 2:45 p. m. today * * * Russell Bennett's orchestra, assisted by Amy Goldsmith, Alma Kitchell and Albertina Rasch dancers, will be featured at 8 o'clock tonight, WRC * * * Irene Beasly will sing three numbers when she appears with Freddie Rich's orchestra tonight (WMAL, 9:15 o'clock). Ted Husing will be heard in a short Sportslant * * * A $35,000 Stradivarius was used by Samuel Levine for the "hot fiddle" in a recent production of Big Time.

BECAUSE so many fans were disappointed in not being able to watch Kate Smith and Jack Miller broadcast from the WMAL studios, due to lack of audience room, the station has decided not to admit any visitors to the network programs in the future. No passes will be issued for the forthcoming broadcasts of Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer, here next week, or for the Camel Quarter-Hour or Ben Bernie's orchestra when they appear locally during the next few weeks.

Delightful novelty sweaters for spring! Left—Three-tone sweater with one incrustation ending in a scarf. Above—Lacy knit sweater with two-tone trimming on balloon sleeves and scarf collar. Center—Patriotism expressed in red, white and blue stripes on the rolled collar and cuffs of a white sweater. Below—White polka dots on a navy sweater to edge the neck and sleeves, and tiny matching beret. (Dah-ray selections.)

NEW YORK, March 2.—Hail the humble sweater, humble no longer! Just try and pull an "I knew you when" on it and get a proper snubbing! For the humble sweater has turned and twisted and knitted and crocheted and incrusted itself into something so very chic and so very expensive in appearance that there is just no use relegating it to the children and the maid any longer—it won't stay juvenile minded, that's all.

'N these are just the sweater days, too—these just before spring days that can't make up any one's mind! So let's take a look at the glorified sweater and see what we see.

Look first at the sweater illustrated at the left—and tell me if you see what I see? That the design follows itself right out of the sweater—and turns into a scarf which turns itself around Miladi's pretty neck! And then the influence of our own colonial ideas in the navy blue sweater next to it—with a red, white and blue striped and rolled collar and cuff finishing.

Next for the dressy sweater, with lacy weave and balloon sleeves banded in colors that are matched with the twisted scarf collar. My, sweaters can almost be called knitted blouses these days, can't they? And then I couldn't stop before I showed you a dotted idea, with solid collar and cuff in the dots, and a wee cap to match, also dotted.

And have you heard of the imported Irish linen lace sweaters? Or those in peau d'ange knitted cotton? Both these are lovely in white, and more popular in this color than in others.

So hail the humble sweater with fanfare of trumpets.

CHANEL'S beach hats, made of the same material as the pyjamas with which they are worn, and showing the brim that starts high on the crown and continues to immense proportions, are predicted as a summer success. There just is something about the big, big shady and cool beach hat that hits the spot, isn't there?

* * *

Cottons are more and more heard of—several of the Paris openings showed delightful models in percale and gingham. Lyolene, for instance, a little house that is more than up and coming, offered some ensembles with dresses in red or blue with a tiny all-over design, and tweed coats, the coats lined with the percale materials! And as to cottons for evening; well, they deserve a whole article themselves!

Au revoir.

INTRODUCING LEMON SHORTCAKE.

FISH dish day again approaches, as seems to be the case at just about this time each livelong week. But we are prepared against its arrival with a splendid recipe for you—one which is no less than a baked stuffed fish. This suggestion seems to me an especially good one, since it may be any fish of the small baking type and, therefore, its selection may be left wholly up to your personal tastes. But in addition to this suggestion for today my eyes have lighted upon a recipe for scalloped shrimps and, since this will do nicely with our dinner plan for tomorrow, it is to be added as an alternate, with only the suggestion that you substitute the French-fried potatoes for the mashed ones if you serve the scalloped shrimps.

Scalloped Shrimps.

2 cupfuls cooked shrimps
¼ cupful flour
4 tablespoonfuls butter or other fat
1 cupful bread crumbs
2 cupfuls boiling water
1 teaspoonful mustard
1 teaspoonful lemon juice
1 teaspoonful salt
⅛ teaspoonful pepper.

If fresh shrimps are used simmer them in salted water until shells turn pink (about 10 minutes), wash and drain. Remove shells carefully, also the black line. Melt three and one-half tablespoonfuls of the butter or fat in a saucepan. Blend in the flour and mustard and beat until light. Pour the hot water over this gradually. Place on fire and stir until mixture begins to boil. Add the salt, pepper and lemon juice and cook for five minutes and then stir in the shrimps. Turn the mixture into a shallow dish, cover with the bread crumbs and dot with the remaining butter broken into small pieces. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 20 minutes.

FRIDAY'S DINNER.

Cream of Mushroom Soup
Baked Stuffed Fish with Tomato Sauce
Mashed Potatoes
Diced Carrots and Peas
Lemon Shortcake
Coffee

Cream of Mushroom Soup.

¼ pound mushrooms
2 tablespoonfuls of flour
2 tablespoonfuls butter
1 pint milk
1 teaspoonful salt
Dash of pepper.

Wash and peel the mushrooms. Simmer the skins in a little water. Cut the caps and stems into small pieces, add two cupfuls of water and simmer until tender. Make a sauce of the butter, flour, salt and milk and combine with the mushrooms and the water in which they were cooked. Add also the water in which the skins were cooked. Garnish with chopped parsley and serve very hot.

Baked Stuffed Fish With Tomato Sauce.

Remove vital organs and the eyes. Wash thoroughly, stuff not too full and sew. Place on slices of breakfast bacon in a pan. Dredge with salt, pepper and flour and put a thin slice of bacon on top. Bake until well browned and tender and serve with tart tomato sauce.

Stuffing.

(For one large fish.)

1 cupful bread crumbs
1 teaspoonful onion, chopped fine
¼ teaspoonful salt
1 teaspoonful chopped parsley
2 egg yolks or 1 egg
¼ teaspoonful pepper
¼ cupful melted butter

(For one small fish.)

2 tablespoonfuls bread crumbs
¼ teaspoonful chopped onion
Pinch of salt
1 tablespoonful beaten egg
½ tablespoonful melted butter

Tomato Sauce.

2 tablespoonfuls flour
2 tablespoonfuls butter
1 cupful strained tomato juice from cooked or canned tomatoes
Salt, pepper and a dash of paprika

Melt butter and stir in flour to make smooth paste. Add liquid gradually and cook until thick.

Lemon Shortcake.

Wash two lemons well and grate enough of the yellow outside skin to make two teaspoonfuls. Slice the lemons, rejecting seeds and the hard ends. Combine these slices with the grated rind and cover with two cupfuls of water. Bring to boiling point and cook slowly until peel is very tender, from 25 to 30 minutes. Add 1¼ cupfuls of sugar and 2 tablespoonfuls of cornstarch rubbed to a smooth paste with a little cold water. Cook slowly 3 minutes. Pour this (hot) over prepared shortcake or a sponge cake. Serve hot.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

SAFETY MEASURES FOR DRIVERS.

THE automobile accident rate occurring on the road is becoming so high that business is disturbed about it. Among the efforts to decrease this rate is one sponsored by the Illinois Manufacturers Mutual Casualty Association, Inc. It consists in giving commercial truck drivers a performance score, and part of the plan is to charge up demerits.

A conviction of violating traffic regulations in a case where no casualty occurred wins ten demerits for the driver. For an accident involving damage to the vehicle only, twenty demerits. For one in which other property was damaged, 30. For one in which a person was injured, 40. If there was a fatality, or if the circumstances reflected exceptionally on the driver, the treatment accorded would be more severe.

Unusual wear on machine, including tires, carried ten demerits, and that was the value given to other derelictions, some of which were not especially related to safety. Among these were excessive consumption of gasoline, complaint of customer for wrong delivery, discourtesy, engine running with driver off the seat, carrying passengers, personal appearance, not reporting defective equipment, not reporting an accident, poor safety cooperation.

Health departments, as representatives of the public, and, to a degree, their guardians, have long been disturbed about the high road accident rate. The general death rate is falling. By the expenditure of considerable sums of money, consumption and typhoid are coming under control. But year by year, as the disease rates fall, the accident rates rise. The railways have shown that highways can be made safe.

The railroad accident rates came down hand in hand with the disease rates. Meanwhile the road accident rates mount.

Generally speaking, health departments are for regulation of drivers by licensing based on examination. They no more expect such laws to wipe out road accidents in a short time than they expect diphtheria immunization to wipe out the disease overnight. They do expect it to stop the yearly increase in road fatalities, and to start it slowly downward in a few years.

They expect such licensing to start the way for other measures, all of which, working together, will finally make the highways safe. They have the full cooperation of industry and labor. Rather strangely much of the opposition has come from the country—strangely, because a study of automobile road fatalities shows that these accidents occur on country roads more frequently than on city streets, especially when we base the calculation on each thousand users.

DUE TO OCCUPATION.

L. M. G. writes: During the last year I have had, at intervals, red spots on the palms of my hands and in between the fingers. These eventually form into tiny blisters which break and afterward the skin comes off. These spots come chiefly on my left hand, and it seems that they become more noticeable and irritate more after eating. Can you tell me the cause of this?

Do you think it is caused by something which I eat—possibly meat?

REPLY.

The behavior of this eruption suggests that it is caused by your occupation. Apparently whatever you do exposes your left hand to the cause more than it does the right.

HAIR DYE USER.

A. H. M. writes: Does the trademark, registered in the U. S. Patent Office, and printed on cartoons containing bottled hair dye, insure against the dye containing poisonous ingredients that would be injurious to the human system if used as prescribed, with a small brush?

REPLY.

It does not. The registration of a trademark is for the purpose of protecting the owner against infringement on his property rights. It serves no other purpose. I know of no law the purpose of which is to protect the consumer of hair dyes.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Very Foolish Parents

DEAR Frances McDonald: I am a girl 18 years old, having graduated from high school a year this January. After this I secured a position with a large concern that did not last but three months. I then found another position but am only working a day or two a week. A fellow is very much in love with me and I with him, but mother and dad object to him. I have never told them that I love him—only that he was a very good friend. They do not like me to go out with him because of his nationality. (I am not American). If I ever so much as suggested marrying him they would do everything in their power to stop it. Should I let nationality stop me, from marrying the one I love. I have tried to go out with other men and forget him (to please my parents), but I can't do it!

There is another thing: There is always an argument if I stay out later than 10. Where can one go nowadays and be back at 10? I tell them just where I am going but nevertheless, the argument always ensues.

Isn't a girl of 18 entitled to at least to remain out until 11 or 11:15? I only go out three nights a week, sometimes less. I never care to stay out later than 11:30 p. m., unless I go to a dance, which is very seldom.

My parents both say that as long as I'm not working, I must come in when they say and stay home when they say!

What shall I do? My boy-friend and I planned that we would wait a year or even two before marrying so that I can work a little in order to "pay them back, my parents, for what they have given me" as they always say. I shall depend entirely upon your advice. Do keep up your wonderful articles in the paper. It is really a helpful column.

UNDECIDED.

Your parents are extremely foolish to thus throw you on the mercy of a man who because of their attitude has taken on the guise of a rescuer. Here he is helping you figure out ways to "pay back" what you owe them. All this makes you feel that he is your friend and they are a couple of Simon Legrees. And if you are not very wise and careful it will cause you to make a hasty marriage that you will regret.

Please believe this, for it is true. If you were not worried, if you had a nice job, and were happy at home, this man would not mean a thing to you. It is just that you are depressed and he seems to offer a way out of your difficulties. But do not take that particular way, for it will lead to other difficulties so much greater that your present problems would by contrast seem nothing at all.

Stand up to Life. Never run away from anything. Figure it out. The whole world is in a jam right now. You are no exception. You have no job. But you at least have a home. Adjust yourself to that home. Do not wear away your soul in petty strife. And do not throw yourself away on the first man who offers you a living away from home. Tell yourself that you are going to know something about life before you select a husband. Wait with the rest of the world for things to look up. Two years from now you will have forgotten all about this winter and its trials. New clothes and matinees, and good times will wipe it all from memory—unless—! Yes, unless you rush into this marriage. In that case you will have cause to remember.

So cheer up, come in at 10, and when you have a young daughter you will know how not to treat her. Meanwhile how much better off you are with two well-meaning parents, than those eight girls who lived in one room and existed on five bananas a day for six weeks. They would have been pretty glad to get in by 10 o'clock and go to a comfortable bed—don't you think? So parents are at least a help!

Stop fussing, dear, and see life before anybody else starts bossing you! Marriage is not all ice cream and kisses you know, and some husbands are far worse than parents when it comes to bossing. See things thrcugh!

Fifth Avenue Fashions

SNAP AND DASH.

Carry it out as its inspirator in sheer woolen—and you'll love it.

The dress, that by the way cuts in one until it joins the smartly plaited skirt, is orangy-red with navy blue dots. The jacket reverses the color scheme in navy ground with dots in red.

Another chic idea is to make the dress of white novelty cotton with that soft woolly aspect and the jacket of navy blue flannel.

Style No. 314 is designed for sizes 16, 18, 20 years old, 36, 38, 40 and 42-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material with 2¼ yards of 39-inch contrasting and 1¾ yards of binding.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Address Fashion Dept., The Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-third street, New York City.

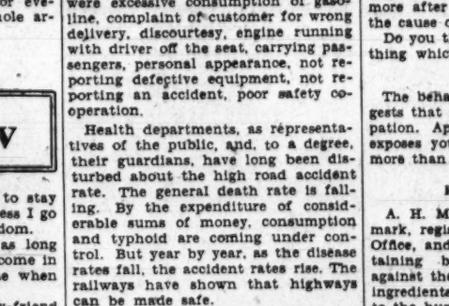
PLAYING A HAND JUST SO.

PROF. JAMES P. RICHARDSON, of Hanover, N. H., is not only a former president of the American Whist League and thus one of that comparatively small group of great players of that ancient and excellent game, but he is a splendid Contract player as well, as the hand below, recently played by him, discloses.

Neither side vulnerable.



The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

This hand is interesting on account of its distribution, the curiously regular pattern of the South hand and the opportunity given the Declarer for careful counting as well as the necessity for accurate play, if the contract is to be fulfilled against any defense.

West opened the diamond trey and South, when the Dummy went down, could see that his only opportunity to make the contract was to set the long hearts in North's hand and also to hope that his hand pattern is duplicated so far as West is concerned; that is, that West also has a 4-3-3-3 distribution. Winning the first lead with the eight of diamonds in Dummy, a small heart was led and finessed, the Queen holding the trick. The Ace of hearts was followed with a small heart which East won with the King. East now shifted to the spades, leading the Ten. South played the Queen and West won with the King and returned the Knave. When South refused to win, the suit was continued and the Declarer was thrown in the lead. A small diamond was led and when West refused to win it. Dummy won with the nine. The good heart was now cashed and the Declarer returned to his hand with the Ace of diamonds. On the eleventh trick West was thrown in the lead with a diamond and forced to lead up to South's tenace in clubs.

Thus played by Prof. Richardson, West could not escape the net. If at trick six West had led the spade five instead of the spade Knave, Prof. Richardson would have taken that trick and returned a spade, as Earl by his lead can not hold the Knave and the play from that point would have followed the same lines.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Many contracts are accurately bid but are not made in the play due to the failure of the Declarer to consider all factors and plan the play of the hand according to all available information. It is useless to bid a hand correctly and then fail to play it correctly.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES

I AM one of your readers who has had absolutely no garden experience. Now I am the owner of a new garden. I cannot afford anything expensive this season, so I am planning to plant a few seeds and wait until later for a permanent planting. Please tell me of a half dozen varieties of perennials which I can plant from seeds, also of two varieties of annuals which I can plant for immediate effect.

MRS. SIDNEY W. D.

I know of no better annuals than shell-pink petunias, zinnias, scabiosa and bachelor's buttons. Among the perennials which can be easily established from seeds I would suggest platycodon (Japanese balloon flower), phlox drummondi, Iceland poppies (papaver nubicaul), pyrethrum and Sweet William (dianthus barbatus).

Please tell me whether verbanas can be grown from the seed started in the house and whether the plants will bloom before August.

ELSIE F. L.

They should begin to bloom in July and continue to bloom until cut down by frost.

Is snow-in-summer suitable for rock-garden use? HENRY H. H.

Yes, snow-in-summer (cerastium) is desirable for a rock garden. It is a low-growing plant with silvery foliage and white flowers.

Please tell me whether if I cut up a leaf of my snake plant and plant the pieces in sand, I may expect these pieces to develop into young plants. ALICE P. K.

Can you tell me of two or three vines which you think would be desirable for a very strong arbor?

MRS. HENRY S.

By all means plant a wisteria. It may not bloom for ten years, but it is worth waiting for. I would also, on a strong arbor induce some old-fashioned trumpet vine to ramble over the post and poles. Then I would plant a bitter sweet and a clematis peniculata and for immediate effect I would plant a moon vine. The latter is an annual and can be omitted in later years when the other vines are established.

Mrs. Paul E. F.—Sow the seed of the following annuals in May. Sow in the places where you want the flowers. These plants should all bloom in midsummer: Marigolds, gaillardias, zinnias and anthirrhinums.

I am anxious to keep an Easter lily which was given to me a few days ago. The plant is just beginning to open its buds.

Miss EMILY H. L.

When your Easter lily has finished flowering, continue to give it water until all the leaves are dry and yellow. Then remove the dead top and set the pot aside and give it no more water. About June 1 remove the bulb from the soil and plant it in some sunny place in your garden. It should bloom in August.

FINLAND MEETS ONE DEMAND OF REBELS

Helsingfors, Finland, March 2 (A.P.).—One of the demands of the Lapua Fascists, who have been in revolt for five days was met today when Baron E. von Born, minister of the interior, was replaced.

His post was given to Gen. K. L. Oesch. Meanwhile President Pehr Evind Svinhufvud announced he was taking personal leadership of the national defense forces to put down the revolt.

A proclamation from the aged general warned the public against false rumors, and declared that the civil guard was loyal and aiding in putting down the revolt.

It was learned that the headquarters of the anti-Communists, who have demanded that the government be purged of Socialism and Marxism, had been transferred from Mantsala, 35 miles from the capital, to Tavastherhus, almost twice as far away.

Censorship on all communications into the rebel area was established firmly, only big commercial houses being permitted to use the telephones.

It was reported today that Gen. Wallenius and other Lapuan leaders had quarreled last night, the general tearing military decorations off his followers' uniforms.

Meanwhile a large force of government troops remained camped outside of Mantsala, it was said, and government officers had refused to negotiate with the rebels.

The development of a cabinet crisis was feared here in the wake of a Union party order instructing four members of that organization to withdraw from the cabinet. The Unionists, incidentally, were largely responsible for the nomination of President Svinhufvud.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT would be difficult to find two more sharply contrasted screen features than this column was privileged to preview Tuesday night, in the Warner Brothers' private projection room, in the Earle Theater Building, Ernst Lubitsch's latest production, "One Hour With You," starring Maurice Chevalier, supported by Jeanette MacDonald, Genevieve Tobin, Roland Young, Helen Chandler and Charles Ruggles, was shown to an appreciative group, beginning at something after 9 o'clock, and at midnight, at the Columbia, Mr. Barron, of the Loew interests, accorded the local dramatic desks an advance glimpse of Ronald Colman and Helen Hayes in "Arrowsmith," a splendid —although not literal—translation of Sinclair Lewis' novel into terms of the cinema.

On an artistic parity, but in fields of dramatic expression as far apart as the poles, these two sterling subjects are entitled to consideration in individual paragraphs—with the distinct proviso that no comprehensive review of either will be undertaken this far in advance of playing dates.

"One Hour With You" is another of Lubitsch's incomparable and smartly satirical comedies in which pert situations and racy dialogue are so cleverly and so innocuously treated as to become indispensable ingredients of screen entertainment that is utterly inconsequential, but wholly delightful.

The motion picture industry's most deft director of this sort of thing has here outdone himself in the introduction of novel effects that more often than not violate all of the accepted notions of cinematographic conventionality, but in so doing add tremendously to the humor and piquancy of a light domestic comedy that is flawlessly played and sung.

Music, by the way, is an important adjunct of the action and the spoken word—beautiful music, for the greater part, composed by Oscar Straus—and lines that rhyme frequently add zest to colloquies that otherwise would be not especially notable. And not only that, but now and again Chevalier turns directly to the audience and confides in it in most amusing and disarming fashion, something after the manner of an O'Neill aside.

That is enough about it for the time being, although I can not refrain from urging every lover of sprightly entertainment not to miss "One Hour With You," whenever and wherever it is publicly shown.

"Arrowsmith" is a drama of much more substantial fiber. Instead of concerning itself with trivialities, it plumbs more or less deeply into the psychological reactions of scientific minds to conditions that appeal with overwhelming forcefulness to their compassion and humanitarianism. It is a case in which, for the time being, at least, intellect is defeated by heart in its major aspirations.

I seriously doubt that "Arrowsmith" will prove the ideal entertainment for frivolous youth or those who gaze at screens only for the lighter relaxations. It is a little too profound for that. To those not averse to combining a little thoughtfulness with their picture-going, however, it will appeal as one of the most carefully wrought and most effectively acted film plays of this or any other season.

Several of the foremost players of the speaking stage have been enlisted in this cast in addition to a goodly number of established screen favorites. These are Helen Hayes, Richard Bennett, Beulah Bondi and A. E. Anson. While all of these highly gifted artists give well-nigh flawless impersonations, the most surprising will probably prove to be that of a distinguished Swedish scientist by Mr. Bennett. A superb bit of character work. Don't miss this one, either.

Jack Holt, star of many pictures that have proved popular with Washington fans, was a momentary visitor in the Capital yesterday, en route from Markham, Va., where his mother is convalescing from a serious illness, to Hollywood, Calif., where his next picture, "Tampico," is ready to go into work. Mr. Holt, a former student at V. M. I., was an overnight guest at the Willard.

Linda Watkins, prominently cast in "The Gay Caballero," currently on the Fox screen, who recently married Gabe Hess, of the Will H. Hays office, also was a Wednesday visitor, having accompanied her husband here on congressional business.

Those who expect something luridly or morbidly exciting from Mrs. Jack (Legs) Diamond when she appears at the head of her own company of "Racket-Dears" at the Gayety next week, will be disappointed. Mrs. Diamond will be seen in a dynamic sketch, "The Lady Was Afraid," which is said to emphasize the futility of crime and effectively point the lesson that violation of the law does not pay.

One of the most notable engagements of the season will be celebrated at the Belasco Theater next week, beginning Monday night, March 7, when Katharine Cornell will be seen in the role of Elizabeth Barrett in Rudolf Besier's play, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

Such unprecedented interest has been manifested in this phenomenally successful drama that the Belasco will be completely sold out before the first curtain rises on the first presentation of "The Barretts" in the National Capital.

With only four more concerts on its schedule this season, the National Symphony Orchestra of Washington, D. C., Hans Kindler, conductor, will give its final concert for children and young people Saturday morning, March 5, at 11 o'clock at Central High School Auditorium.

Next week's attraction in the downtown, first-run picture houses will be as follows: Fox, Ben Lyon in "The Big Timer," and on the stage in person, and Ben Bard in Fanchon & Marco's "All at Sea" Idea; Columbia, Ronald Colman and Helen Hayes in "Arrowsmith;" Earle, Carole Lombard in "No One Man," and Gus Edwards' "Radio Understudies" headlining the vaudeville; Palace, Marion Davies and Clark Gable in "Polly of the Circus," and Al Wohlman in Loew's "Make It Snappy" revue; Metropolitan, Nancy Carroll and Lionel Barrymore in "Broken Lullaby;" Rialto, Lew Ayres and Mae Clarke in "Impatient Maiden;" RKO-Keith's, Richard Dix, Mary Astor and Erich Von Stroheim in "Lost Squadron," second week, and Dorothy Stone and Charles Collins headlining the vaudeville.

It takes Beatrice Lillie to think them up! It is her idea that the new Guild play in which she is soon to be seen at the National might bear a better name than its official title of "Too True to Be Good."

Her thought is that "Hot-Shaw" would be practically swell!

CONVICT ROAD LABOR STIRS SENATE ROW

Bratton Would Deny States Using Prisoners U. S. Aid in Highway Projects.

(Associated Press.)

A spirited argument arose in the Senate yesterday over a House proposal that Federal highway funds be withheld from projects on which the States employ convict labor.

A decision on the provision contained in the Agriculture Department appropriation bill was postponed because of the absence of Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia.

Florida, Virginia, New Jersey and Alabama use convict labor on roads and were described as the States principally affected.

Those favoring the restriction argued that in a time of widespread unemployment among law-abiding citizens they should be given preference over convicts. Among those urging this contention were Senators Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, and Bratton (Democrat), of New Mexico.

Those upholding the action of the appropriation committee in voting to strike out the House provision included Senators Fletcher and Trammell, Florida Democrats, and Senator Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut.

They said the argument was over "a trifle." Senator Fletcher read a letter from the National Society of Penal Information stating the restriction "will not result in the employment of a single additional free laborer."

Senators Bingham and Jones brought out testimony of Chairman Henry G. Shirley of the Virginia Highway Commission that the cost of maintaining a prisoner behind bars was 65 cents a day and that only 5 cents more was needed to keep him at work on roads.

Mr. Shirley and Rice M. Youell, superintendent of the State penitentiary, appeared before the Senate appropriations committee in opposition to the restrictive provision.

They told the committee such a measure would make two more penitentiaries necessary in Virginia, and that matching convict labor with Federal funds was permitting the use of State money on contract labor work.

Senator Bingham said he objected "to breaking down the rights of States to determine their own course." The Legislature and governor, he said, should determine how prisoners shall be employed.

While admitting a majority of States do not use convicts on their Federal roads, he said "they have no right to inflict their judgment on States following a different policy."

He cited roads bureau figures to show only $141 of every $1,000 appropriated for Federal aid roads is paid to persons directly employed on the construction work, in joining the Florida senators' contention the sum involved is small.

Senator Bratton, leader of the fight to put the restriction back in the bill, asked: "Is it tenable that a number of law-abiding citizens shall search for gainful employment, while public money is used for convict labor?"

He said it was a question of policy "in this period of unemployment" when Congress should be "courageous."

Senator Couzens contended the restriction should be made now and removed later "when conditions have improved."

FAMOUS SEER THE MAN WHO KNOWS

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry, whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travels, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power. Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay

LEE HIGHWAY BRIDGE FUND CUT FROM BILL

Estimates of $1,000,000 for Memorial Span Are Slashed $160,000.

Funds for the Lee Highway Bridge unit of the Arlington Memorial Bridge project yesterday were dropped from the independent offices supply bill, reported to the House by Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (Democrat), Virginia.

Budget estimates of $1,000,000 for Arlington Memorial Bridge were cut $160,000 by elimination of the additional span which was to cross the boundary channel at the north end of Columbia Island.

"It has been learned that the State of Virginia has no plans involving construction of the highway connection during the coming year and the item for the bridge has therefore been omitted pending such time as some provision shall have been made for the highway," Representative Woodrum reported.

His committee cut $2,000,000 estimates for the Supreme Court Building to $1,500,000, and reduced George Washington Bicentennial Commission estimates $152,230, leaving $300,000 for the work of the commission in 1933. Personnel Classification Board appropriations were slashed $50,000, and the Civil Service Commission funds $82,000. The Veterans' Administration took a cut of $51,161,732. Total reductions under budget estimates amounted to $54,948,535.

In reducing the Arlington Memorial Bridge estimates to $840,000, the committee explained the Lee highway span was originally intended to supply a connection with the Virginia highway system, but since the State did not intend to supply the link, the bridge was deemed unnecessary.

Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), Virginia, contends the Federal Government should construct the link, inasmuch as it traverses Fort Myer. Hearings on his bill to authorize Federal construction of the road were held by the roads committee Tuesday, but no decision was reached.

Work still remaining to be done on the Memorial Bridge project includes development of the plaza on Columbia Island, widening and carrying through of Constitution avenue, widening of Twenty-third street, decorative statuary work on Columbia Island, a memorial avenue into Arlington Cemetery and the monumental cemetery entrance. The commission will complete the project within the original authorization of $14,750,000, the committee stated.

Case Continued Against Alleged Rum-Car Driver

The case of Herman E. Grimm, charged with possession and transportation of liquor, was continued yesterday when he was arraigned in Hyattsville Police Court several hours after being captured with a load of fifteen cases of alleged whisky.

Grimm was captured in the District after a chase of a mile along Riggs road, but agreed to return to Prince Georges County with his captor, Policeman Ralph Brown, the officer reported. During the chase, Officer Brown said, a blocking car tried to force the police machine off the road, and he was forced to shoot at its tires. The blocking car escaped, however. Grimm, who lives in Baltimore, agreed to return to the county when Brown pointed out that if he were taken by Federal agents his car would be confiscated.

'Match-Burglar' Suspect Jailed in Mt. Rainier

James Jumper, colored, was held in bond of $2,500 for the Prince Georges County grand jury last night on charges that he is Mount Rainier's "match burglar," who has raided several homes there in the last six weeks. Jumper, who lives in Washington, was given a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Robert E. Joyce, in Mount Rainier.

Jumper was arrested in Montgomery County after a series of similar burglaries there several years ago. He was not convicted of these, but was sentenced to a jail term for vagrancy. The "match burglar" gained his name from his habit of lighting his maraudings with numerous matches, whose burnt stems were found in the looted houses.

Thrifton Village Citizens Told of County Reforms

Speaking at the monthly meeting of the Thrifton Village Improvement League, held in the Grace Episcopal Church Parish Hall, Arlington County, Manager Roy S. Braden discussed at length the proposed reforms in the handling of the county's business. He asked the cooperation of every citizen in carrying them out successfully.

He was assured by President H. C. Roberts that the residents of Thrifton Village would lend him their united support and hearty cooperation.

Women to Hear Talk By David J. Lewis

Representative David J. Lewis, of Maryland, will address a meeting of the civics section of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, Md., at 1 p. m. tomorrow in the Chevy Chase Library. His subject will be, "Unemployment and Relief."

The following nominating committee has been selected by the executive board of the club: Mrs. Wright Clark, chairman; Mrs. Alexander Ashley, Mrs. Jesse E. Swigart, Mrs. James B. Bronson and Mrs. John Boyle, jr.

Boy Big-Game Hunter Describes Sport to Club

Richard Douglas, who stalked lions in Africa and was selected as one of the three Boy Scouts to accompany Martin Johnson in 1928, was the speaker. Young Douglas, who has written two books and had many harrowing experiences for his years, titled his speech, "The Lion—King of Beasts."

President Edgar N. Brawner appointed a committee to cooperate in the antihoarding campaign initiated by President Hoover. The members are Arthur B. Heaton, chairman; Adam F. Arnold, D. J. Barry, George L. Haines and Charles W. Hoover.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 210

THE above picture shows the home of Senator William M. Stewart, of Nevada. This house was erected in 1873 at the corner of Connecticut avenue and Dupont Circle, and came to be known as Stewart's Castle. The street car line out Connecticut avenue had just been completed a few months before this residence was built.

Senator Stewart opposed granting the earnest request of citizens, backed by a subscription of large size, for authority to levy a special tax to pay a portion of the expenses of a world's fair to be held in Washington in 1871.

The senator did not think that this city was the place to hold such an exhibition. "None of us are proud of this place," he said. "The town is nicely located and with plenty of money and a little enterprise it might be made a city, but let us have a city before we invite anybody to see it." He said he did not want to invite the world to see the Capital City with its want of railroads and its muddy streets.

FAIRFAX ROAD UNIT TO DISBAND APRIL 1

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 166.

The Fairfax County Highway Department will be discontinued on April 1, according to plans made yesterday by the county board of supervisors. This means that all highway work in the county will cease and the present county road employes be discharged.

At the same time County Manager F. Novell Larkin said that if the Byrd bill, now pending before the State Assembly is passed, taking over control of all county roads he was submitting his resignation effective July 1. Mr. Larkin stated that even if the people of the county took advantage of the local option clause and voted to remain out of the State system he would not consider staying in Fairfax County.

Mr. Larkin became the county road engineer in 1928 and at that time there was only 63 miles of improved county roads. Since that time 104 miles of improved roads have been added under his direction. Mr. Larkin was made county manager on February 1 this year, still having supervision of the county highway department which has been credited as being one of the best in Virginia, with all modern equipment, a stone quarry, a permanent county road equipment depot and several gravel pits.

Letter Is Authorized.

The board yesterday requested the county manager to write the State comptroller calling to his attention the fact that since hearing of the great savings effected by the State departments as compared to the counties they wished to inform him that all tax bills in Fairfax County are paid for by the county and his office had contributed nothing toward their cost.

As apparent compensation to county board employes for the loss of their jobs, the board voted to rescind its action last month cutting the salaries 10 per cent. The reduction in pay of the county road police will remain in effect.

Most of yesterday's session was devoted to routine matters. It was stated that there remains in the general county funds approximately $28,000 to carry on county activities which average $3,000 monthly until taxes are paid in December. This fund falls short of what is needed and board members stated they would rather stop part of the work than borrow money.

Police Fund Overdrawn.

The county police fund now shows an overdraft of about $1,800 and costs approximately $800 to maintain each month less the amount of arrest fees and fines paid in during the month, which goes to its upkeep. It was suggested that the board notify the sheriff funds to pay the four men will not be available after June 30 this year until taxes are paid in the fall, but action was postponed until the next board meeting on March 16. It was stated that if the State takes over all county roads it should also take over policing of such roads.

Sister Elizabeth, of the Epiphany School for Girls, at 3017 O street northwest, Washington, appeared and offered to purchase the old county alms house on the Little River turnpike. She stated that she was planning to move the school into the country and considers the old county poorhouse a suitable location. It would be maintained as a nondenominational school for girls between 6 and 14. The old poorhouse was erected at a cost of approximately $12,000 and abandoned when the District almshouse was erected. The circuit court authorized the sale of the building.

A resolution was adopted offering to take $10,000 for the property subject to the confirmation of the circuit court. The purchase price was to be for cash and payable prior to June 1.

500-Gallon Still Costs $200 Fine in Hyattsville

Frank Harper, colored, who was arrested Saturday night when county police seized a 500-gallon still in Hyattsville, was fined $200 yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court on charges of possession and manufacture of liquor. The still was the largest ever found in a building in Prince Georges County.

Twenty-two persons who were arrested in a raid in Melrose about the same time forfeited collateral of $4.50 each on charges of disorderly conduct. Six persons taken in the same raid who appeared in court were fined $1 each. John Anderson, of Hyattsville, was fined $25 for assault and battery on Frank Norris, having been accused of striking Norris with a can of peaches in a grocery store in the town.

SCOUTS ARE LAUDED FOR AID DURING FETE

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Alexandria scoutmasters held the March meeting in the Westminster Building, presided over by William L. Leitch, Scout executive, and made plans for the spring work of the Scout troops of the city. The scoutmasters will meet the first Tuesday in each month. A court of honor will be held March 12, when local Scouts will appear for merit badges and other awards.

The spring inspection and rally of all Scouts in the city will be held April 15.

Letters of appreciation for the service rendered by the Scouts in connection with the George Washington Birthday Association celebration were read, also from the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce and from Police Capt. John S. Arnold.

Land suits settled in the United States Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, held by Judge Isaac M. Meekins, of the District of North Carolina, have confirmed awards in condemnation suits on the Mount Vernon boulevard. The amount involved was $5,039.58. The awards follow: John Briar, $2,687, for three parcels of land at Wellington Villa, comprising a fraction more than 1 acre; Miss Margaret J. Bashford, of Bashford's Lane, $937.18, for land consisting of nearly half an acre adjoining her home; Lewis E. Smoot, William A. Smoot, Mrs. Elizabeth Smoot Fuller and Mrs. Bessie Carter Smoot, $886.01, for land in northern section of the city consisting of 1.105 acres; George M. Reynolds and wife, Mrs. Florence Reynolds, $529.39 for 0.115 acre of land at New Alexandria.

Judge William P. Woolls, in the Corporation Court, has set aside the verdict of $5,0000 given recently by a jury in the suit of Mrs. Bessie Vozeolas, of Washington, against Dionlais Vozeolas and his wife, Mrs. Polichonia Vozeolas. The verdict was set aside on the ground that it was contrary to the law and evidence in the case after hearing arguments. The suit was to recover damages for alleged alienation of affections of Constantine Vozeolas, husband of Mrs. Bessie Vozeolas.

The new United States Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, recently completed, will be used for the first time March 28. The courtrooms are located on the second floor of the new city postoffice building.

2 Municipalities Rule Against Night Lights

Although Hyattsville and Riverdale have recently inaugurated all-night street lighting, College Park and Bladensburg will not follow their lead, it is announced.

College Park feels that the light from the College Park Airport and from signs on business houses will be sufficient, and the street lighting contract has been cancelled by the College Park Home and School Association. Frank Mace, Bladensburg town treasurer, has said that his municipality will not burn its street lights later.

Colmar Manor Keeps Its 15-Cent Tax Rate

The tax rate for the town of Colmar Manor has been set at 15 cents for the coming year, which is the same as last year and is thought to be the lowest town rate in the State. As the council met to fix the rate, a petition bearing 200 names and asking that a municipal building be erected, was presented to it.

The building will house not only a meeting room for the council, but a community auditorium and the fire department which is expected to be organized. A special meeting of the council hasc been called for next Tuesday, when the projected building will be discussed.

Bird H. Dolby, town attorney, reported that the proposed dump to be established at the foot of Lenox avenue, would be illegal by the terms of the town ordinance which prohibits dumping within the corporate limits.

JESSE IS AT HEARING ON BUS LINE PERMIT

Trip of New Treasurer to Richmond Did Not Concern Office.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Correcting the impression that County Treasurer Charles T. Jesse had gone to Richmond yesterday to confer with Gov. John Garland Pollard either on matters pertaining to his new office or the protest recently filed with the governor by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the county, it was revealed last night that his mission to the State Capital was to appear before the State Corporation Commission regarding the application of the Arlington-Fairfax Railway for a permit to operate a bus line.

Those going to Richmond with Mr. Jesse were Dr. Julius Parmelee, president of the company; former State Senator Frank L. Ball, counsel, and Thomas Phillips.

The company is seeking a permit to operate a bus line from Glebe road along Garrison road to Clarendon thence along Washington avenue over the Highway bridge into the District of Columbia.

Excitement Subsiding.

During the absence of Mr. Jesse the office was operated by the new deputy treasurer, John Omohundro. Mr. Jesse returned last night and will be at his office at the courthouse today.

The excitement which has prevailed over the county following the announcement of the reported shortage in Treasurer Ball's office a week ago and with his resignation a few days later has subsided materially. The office is operating in the usual manner.

As State auditors enter the second week in checking accounts of Mr. Ball's office nothing has been revealed as to any of their findings thus far.

In addition to the investigation into the records in the treasurer's office the auditors are making an independent audit of the financial records of all county officials.

Board Meets Saturday.

The county board will hold its semimonthly meeting Saturday morning at the courthouse and it is expected that there will be discussion of the new bookkeeping system recommended by the auditors.

It has been pointed out by Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas that only with the new bookkeeping system will it be possible for the county board to function under the budget system as is planned.

An outline of the proposed budget for the year is being prepared by County Manager Roy S. Braden and possibly will be submitted to the board Saturday.

League Names Group On Light Rates Cut

A committee has been named by the Poolesville (Md.) Community League to work for reduction of electric light rates for that section. Other community organizations are to be asked to join in a petition to the Potomac-Edison Co. to reduce rates.

On the committee are Judge Charles W. Woodward, John E. Oxley, Mrs. Julius Hall and Mrs. C. Parker Weller. The Barnesville and Dickerson Community Leagues are expected to take similar action.

Arlington Plans to Help State Diphtheria Drive

The Arlington County Board of Health, meeting yesterday in the office of County Manager Braden, formulated plans for carrying on the county's part in the State-wide campaign against diphtheria.

Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, pointed out that while there is hardly a need for a special campaign in the county, as the real drive was started in Arlington County during 1926, when the disease was at its peak, and has since that time been reduced to but a few cases. He stated that the campaign will be waged in the county to maintain the high health rate enjoyed at this time.

No Connection With Any Other Washington Store

S. R. O.

"Standing Room Only," you know that means a sell out in theater parlance. Yesterday afternoon we had to put up the "Standing Room Only" sign on our second floor.

The occasion being the Living Model Revue of Lansburgh Spring Fashions. In spite of the fact that we had prepared more seating space than ever before, still we couldn't meet the demand for chairs.

Summing it all up, it means that the public is very appreciative of Lansburgh fashions; it has come to learn that the new things are shown first at Lansburgh's. The revue will be repeated today at 2:30 p. m. You are invited, but make every effort to come early before we hang up the "S. R. O." signs.

STOCK PRICES RALLY ALONG BROAD FRONT

What the Stock Market Did

	Wednesday	Tuesday
Number of advances	408	164
Number of declines	80	183
Stocks unchanged	123	154
Total issues traded	611	501

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—Stocks rallied confidently today. In a turnover more than double yesterday's, the market advanced along a broad front, closing with net gains of 1 to 7 points for leading issues. Strength was well distributed among all groups, but was less pronounced in oils, coppers and motors.

Domestic news of a bullish character was lacking, but Wall street had obviously been deeply impressed by the British treasury's decision to pay off at once three-quarters of the credit obtained from American banks last August. This evidence of reviving vigor in a nation whose financial troubles only last fall had caused widespread concern carried constructive implications of more than passing importance and trades apparently hastened to express their approval in a practical way.

Firm at Opening.

The market was firm at the opening, but the upward push was mostly reserved for the final hour when transactions approximated 700,000 shares, or roughly the equivalent of yesterday's total business. Total sales amounted to 1,768,463 shares, largest since February 19, while the average rise of 2.9 points was the best since February 13.

American Telephone and U. S. Steel were strongly supported, closing with respective net gains of 6¼ and 3 points. Allied Chemical, American Tobacco "B," Gillette, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Coca Cola, Western Union, American Can and Eastman were well up among the leaders while Auburn rose 7½. A number of rails were up a couple of points.

It was the second time this year that the market has rallied itself out of a period of stagnation. This is in marked contrast to its behavior even as recently as last autumn, when dullness almost invariably brought renewed selling. Wall street admits, however, that sentiment in the last month or so has undergone a change, even if business has shown virtually no visible improvement, and it has been reported in brokerage circles that some of the operators who aligned themselves on the long side a couple of weeks ago were awaiting an opportunity to give the market another test.

Better Feeling Stirred.

A rise in freight car loadings and maintenance of steel ingot production at last week's level added to the better feeling. Iron Age said sentiment among the steel makers had been improved by prospects of orders from the Ford Co., although as yet no large releases had come through. Also, rail purchases are somewhat better and structural awards reached a new high for the year. Higher prices, the Review pointed out, have not yet been fully established.

Financial circles were rather looking for another reduction in the Bank of England's rate tomorrow. The banks of Norway and Sweden both cut to 5 per cent, further evidence of improvement abroad, and it was thought the British authorities might feel another downward revision would help the good work already accomplished.

The stock market's sudden spurt took some commission houses by surprise, for a continuation of the dull trading range had rather generally been anticipated, at least until the domestic situation appeared more clearly defined. Firmness of bonds has been regarded as a signal for shares to watch and the improvement in investment securities, although occasionally rather ragged, has drawn wide comment.

Ford Dealers Ready To Sell New Model

Ford dealers in Washington and vicinity notified their customers yesterday that they were ready to accept orders for the new V-eight model. Spring deliveries on both the eight and the improved four are promised, but no date yet has been set for the appearance of the eight. Both new models, however, soon will be on display in the Washington showrooms, the trade circular said. Definite delivery dates then will be announced.

COTTON PRICES SET HIGHER SALE MARKS

Trade Buying and Covering Improves Market During Closing Hour.

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—Cotton was generally higher today on trade buying and covering inspired by the strength of the wheat and stock markets and a favorable view of the financial news from London.

Trading was comparatively quiet during the greater part of the day, but the buying became active in the later trading when May sold up to 7.15 or with 3 points of the recent high price and 19 points above yesterday's closing. The final tone of the market was very steady at net advances of 17 to 20 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 1 to 4 points on a moderate demand which appeared to come from both domestic and foreign trade sources. There may have been also some covering or rebuying by recent sellers owing to the better tone of the stock market.

Buying became more active and general toward the close, when the strength of the stock market seemed to encourage expectations of improvement in the general situation. March sold up to 7.04 and October to 7.53 and final quotations were within a point of the best.

According to the New York Cotton Exchange Service, sales of fertilizer tags from December 1 through February represented only 372,000 tons in the nine principal States compared with 732,000 last year.

Liverpool cables said that scattered liquidation was quickly absorbed.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

STOCKS were generally higher on both the big board and the curb. Improved financial conditions abroad and encouraging carloading reports dominated the trade. The liquidation of the short interest continued.

BONDS recorded the most substantial gains since mid-February, with the rails leading on improved car loadings.

WHEAT moved up vigorously on new European inquiry, sustained by the generally more hopeful feeling in Wall street. Other grains followed wheat, and so did live stock prices at Chicago.

WHEAT VALUES GAIN IN GENERAL BUYING

Improved Financial Status in Britain and America Helps Prices.

Chicago, March 2 (A.P.).—Substantial gains in wheat values today accompanied a broader volume of general buying, especially purchases of May and September deliveries for European account. Evidence of improving financial conditions in Great Britain, together with upturns in securities at New York, helped further to lift wheat. A sharp advance in rye, based on forecasts that Germany and the Scandinavian countries would soon be large buyers of that cereal, gave an additional stimulus to the grain market.

Wheat closed firm at virtually the day's top level, 1 to 1½ cents over yesterday's finish. Corn was up a half cent and oats unchanged to ⅝ cent higher.

It quickly became apparent that the wheat market was in an oversold condition, and was responsive to Liverpool reports of prospective better European continental demand.

Germany Needs Forecast.

A Chicago exporter was quoted as saying that before long Germany would need to purchase 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 bushels of rye.

Serving to accentuate bullish sentiment were unfavorable crop developments regarding domestic winter wheat, notably complaints of lack of moisture in Western Kansas, Western Nebraska, Northwestern Oklahoma and Eastern Colorado. There were predictons, too, that domestic spring wheat acreage this season would not be as large as last year. In some quarters considerable stress was laid on reports that although British supplies of wheat this week had increased, owing to heavy arrivals from Argentina, European continental wheat stocks had increased 1,394,000 bushels.

Corn and oats were influenced by wheat strength and by unfavorable weather for corn movement. Rural offerings to arrive were light.

STEEL PLANT WORK GAINS DURING WEEK

Pig Iron Output Advances 6 Per Cent in February Over January.

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—Pig iron production in February, figured on the daily rate, gained almost 6 per cent over January output, Iron Age reported today. Last month's daily volume was 33,251 gross tons against 31,380 in January, and 60,950 tons in February, 1931. Steel ingot production probably showed a smaller increase and in the current week is averaging 26 per cent of capacity, unchanged from a week ago, the review stated.

Indications of a more optimistic sentiment in investment quarters were seen today in a substantial premium quoted on an issue of $5,000,000 Duquesne Light Co. first mortgage 4½ per cent bonds. The offerings were made by a banking syndicate headed by the Chase Harris Forbs Corporation at 92. The bonds met such a good demand from dealers as to raise the price about 2 points shortly after the opening of subscription books.

Reports from Youngstown state that steel plants in the district advanced to 29 per cent of rated capacity at midweek, an advance of one point from the week's opening rate.

The improved financial outlook in Europe, increased carloadings at home, and generally encouraging barometers on spring trade combined to give the stock market at 1,500,000-share day yesterday, the largest volume in about three weeks.

Bankers expected the British $150,000,000 payment would have a further easing effect upon the New York money market. Also, it was felt in some quarters that the projected withdrawal of foreign exchange regulations in England might result in more buying of American securities. A further reduction of the Bank of England's discount rate was widely forecast in international banking circles, and a reduction in the Reichstag rate, with renewal of the $100,000,000 central banking credit, was regarded as likely.

Spring trade barometers yesterday showed scattered indications of an upturn in business. The carloading figures registered a gain for the week of 10,141 cars. In the first three weeks of February, loadings advanced 11,449 cars, which contrasts with declines of 6,241 cars last year, 184,997 in the same period of 1930 and 119,594 in the first three weeks of February, 1929.

While Iron Age estimated the week's steel production as unchanged at 26 per cent of capacity, some other estimates indicated a small gain, particularly in the Youngstown area. While steel prices remain to be tested, some executives are quoted as expressing the opinion that increases will be more likely than declines.

The stock market appears to be viewing the outlook a little more cheerfully, although its hopes, as expressed in most brokerage quarters, are modest. The midweek business statistics, while devoid of anything of a particularly conclusive nature, were slightly more encouraging, and conditions abroad seemed to be distinctly better.

Election in Germany Overshadows Boerse

Berlin, March 2 (A.P.).—The forthcoming German presidential election is beginning to overshadow trading on the Bourse. The market was listless today, but the wave of selling of bonds seems to have spent itself. It is expected in financial circles that a reduction in the Reichsbank discount rate will be made as soon as an extension of credit can be arranged in Paris.

CURB PRICES BREAK SLUGGISH SHACKLES

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—The curb market broke out of the narrows today with a fair general upturn.

While progress was less marked than on the big board, the market broadened, and there was considerable activity among the lower priced issues, the day's turnover aggregating 200,000 shares, or 20,000 more than yesterday's.

In the utilities, such high-priced issues as Commonwealth Edison and Public Service of Northern Illinois slipped back 5 and 4 points, respectively, in comparatively light trading, both closing at 94, but pressure against Middle West Utilities was lifted, that issue closing at 3, up ⅜ of a point.

Electric Bond & Share, Brazilian Traction, and American and Foreign Power warrants were up fractionally, while American Gas & Electric gained nearly a point.

The foreign group was generally firm, presumably reflecting recent strength of the London market, Woolworth, Ltd., and Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., each gained ⅝ of a point. United Shoe Machinery gained a point, reflecting the continued good rate of activity on the part of shoe manufacturers. Philip Morris rose a fraction, in sympathy with strength of big board tobaccos.

Oils were generally firm, although Gulf was an exception, losing ¾ of a point. Indiana, Imperial and Cities Service were up fractionally. Interstate Equities preferred gained nearly a point, which may have reflected approval of the Sinclair-Prairie merger, since Interstate has had a large interest in Prairie.

PHILADELPHIA MARKETS.

Philadelphia, March 2 (A.P.).—Butter, cheese, live and dressed poultry unchanged.

EGGS—Ruled steadier on all grades fresh stock. Fancy whites in best position, with receipts closely cleared most quarters under fair demand. Medium grades moving more slowly. However, large buyers were off the market and volume moved was not large.

Pacific Coast best marks, 22½@24½; nearby closely satiected fine extras, 17@21; nearby white extras, 15½@16; nearby brown extras, 15½@16; nearby average extras mixed colors, 16@16½; nearby graded firsts, mixed colors, 14@14½; nearby graded firsts, mixed colors, 13@13½; Midwest average extras, mixed colors, 15@15½; Midwest graded firsts, mixed colors, 14@14½; Midwest current receipts, mixed colors, 13@13½. Concrete Walls Withstand Fire, Convention Is Told

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Concrete masonry walls exposed to fire were shown to be of very high strength after testing, in a discussion by C. A. Mensel, of the Portland Cement Association, before the American Concrete Institute and the Concrete Masonry Association, meeting in joint session yesterday at Wardman Park Hotel.

The structural performance of concrete masonry walls was indicated by Prof. F. E. Richart, research professor of engineering materials, Illinois University. The effect of mortar strength on the masonry wall was described by R. E. Copeland, of the Cement Products Bureau, and A. C. Timms, of the research laboratory, Lehigh Portland Cement Co. Another speaker was J. C. Perason, director of research, Lehigh Portland Cement Co., who told about the properties of cement used in masonry. W. D. M. Allen presented a committee report proposing specifications for concrete burial vaults.

Alexander Kueller, who for the past fifteen years has been first vice president of the Brookmire Economic Service, Inc., has been elected president of the organization. The election of Mr. Kueller will involve no change in ownership or the policies of the organization. The company will continue to operate its fourteen branch offices, rendering investment counsel service to individuals, institutions and banks. K. W. Jappe, retiring president, will in the future devote most of his time to field studies and economic consulting work.

Dr. Walter E. Lagerquist will continue as vice president in charge of investment research and as director of personal supervisory accounts. The Brookmire Economic Service was founded in 1904 and through its administrative and research staff has been for more than 25 years serving investors and industrial institutions and banks of the country.

Directors of Tri-Continental Corporation have declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the $6 cumulative preferred stock, payable April 1, to stockholders of record March 16.

Sight-seeing Trip Made.

The afternoon was devoted to a sight-seeing trip around Washington. All principal points of interest were visited. The evening session included addresses by L. J. Mensch, of Chicago, regarding vibration in high structures, and A. L. Gemeny of the Bureau of Public Roads in collaboration with C. B. McCullough of the Oregon State Highway Department describes the Freyssinet method in building arches of the Rouge River bridge.

The committee on concrete arches, C. S. Whitney, chairman, reported as also did the committee on building codes, A. W. Stevens, chairman, and the committee on reinforced concrete column investigation, F. E. Richart, chairman.

Visit For This Morning.

This morning a visit will be made to the Bureau of Public Roads and the Bureau of Standards. In the afternoon the election of officers will be held. The twenty-eighth annual dinner will be held in the evening at 7 o'clock.

The National Coal Association, from incomplete car loading reports from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended February 27, as nearly 6,500,000 net tons. The report of the Bureau of Mines shows production of 6,626,000 net tons for the week ended February 13 and 6,630,000 for the week ended February 20.

The Washington office of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York announced yesterday that the board of directors of the company had declared the quarterly dividend of 5 per cent on the capital stock for the quarter ending March 31, 1932.

BOND MARKET RISES FROM LOWER PRICES

Substantial Advances Give Trading Brisker Tone; Nickel Plate Stars.

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—The bond market today climbed out of the low-price ditch, and various classes of securities recorded the most substantial gains since the middle of last month.

The rails led the upward movement with the average for 20 of the principal carrier mortgages advancing a full point. The utilities and industrials performed more modestly, but there was a healthy demand for most of them. Only the United States Government list eased slightly.

The star actor for the carriers was Nickel Plate 6s, which mature this year. They added 9½ points to their gains of yesterday, closing at 66 from a low of 14½ last December. Other Nickel Plate liens were up from 3 to 4¾ points. St. Louis Southwestern Consolidated 4s, also due in 1932, drew a large following but relinquished some of their gains under profit taking.

Gains of fractions to more than 4 points were registered by a number of other transportation loans. Among the more conspicuous were some bonds of St. Paul, Burlington, Chicago North Western, Rock Island, Erie, Great Northern, Hudson & Manhattan, Missouri Pacific, Pennsylvania, Pere Marquette, Frisco, Canadian Pacific, Southern, Southern Pacific and Texas & Pacific.

The strength of the rails was attributed to the general belief that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation intends to provide loans sufficient for the carriers to meet their forthcoming maturities.

Among the utilities and industrials liens of American Telephone, International Telephone and Consolidated Gas displayed firmness. Goodrich 6½s, International Match 5s, Paramount Publix, Paramount Famous Lasky and Sinclair Oil bonds advanced from 1 to more than 3 points.

The foreign department was not neglected. Heaviest trading in this list was in British 5½s which made another new high for the year at 99¼.

COMPARATIVE NEWS VALUE.

I

Forget about that Chinese war
And other crises grave;
Let Oriental cannon roar
And Asia misbehave;
A fig for Europe's troubles and
Give politics the gate!
This news alone now gripe the land—
Liz soon will be an eight!

II

Who cares what France's troubles are
Or what is England's plights?
What if the masses near and far
Drive potentates to flight?
Let politicians cheer or hiss;
And brickbats hum and whiz
The only news that stirs us is They're making over Liz.

III

Let Gandhi leap from jail to jail
And shells rake China's wall;
Let debt negotiations fail
And kingdoms rise or fall;
Let stocks go up or downward plow—
Let Ruth go short of hits;
There's only one thing matters now—
Miss Lizzie's going Ritz!

IV

Let scandals fill the public press,
Let probers show up graft;
Who cares about the world's distress
And diplomats gone daft!
Dismiss your fears of slumps and ban
All thought of Europe's fate;
Just give a cheer, for soon you can
Jump puddle in an eight!

V

What matter where the Farleys go
Or what grand juries hear?
Who cares how candidacies grow
Or whether we get beer?
The news that makes the globe stand still
And stirs folks through and through
Is that Old Lizzie's "innards" will Be multiplied by two!

Dolly Sister to Wed; Walker Will Officiate

Cannes, France, March 2 (A.P.).—Roszika Dolly, one of the widely known Dolly sisters, said today that she would be married this month to Irving Netcher, American business man, in New York and that Mayor Walker would perform the ceremony.

The wedding will take place as soon as possible after March 15 when Miss Dolly and her fiance will reach New York on the steamer Olympic. She said the mayor had cabled her that he would officiate. The wedding is to take place in New York to avoid the 300-day residence required of divorced persons in France.

TECH PLAYERS WIN EASILY IN A. A. U. TOURNAMENT

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

Biloxi, Miss., March 2.

THE "build-up" boys, who are infesting the betting ring at the Fair Grounds, nearby in New Orleans, are being circumvented by the approximate odds manager of the track, Eddie Austin, who now has his finger firmly upon the pulse of the mutuel manipulations and is making it difficult for the smart element to create and collect false odds on their choices.

The "build-up" boys have been able to boost the odds wth little difficulty at the New Orleans tracks owing to the comparatively small amounts that the pools for each race total. In the past, it has required only a very few thousand dollars scattered on various other entries to send the odds on their selection, usually no better than an even money favorite rocketing to the sky.

Of course, the "build-up" boys do not make their killings at the track for the amount of money necessary to be bet in order to offset the thousands wasted on the other entries, would offset the results of the "build-up" if wagered at the track. These wagers are placed with the bookies throughout the country at the last minute, too late to be wired back to the track, and thus the pay off is collected on track odds, which are unaffected by the thousands which the bookies must hold.

But Austin has hit upon a plan which promises to outsmart the "build-up" boys. The "builders" first dump enough money into the mutuels on their favored selection to lower the odds on the horse to a point low enough in the early betting to keep the general public's money off the mount, thus discouraging support of their horse and lengthening the odds on their selection by the use of the public's money bet on other entries.

Hereafter, Austin's odds posted at the Fair Grounds will not take into consideration what happens in the early betting, thus eliminating the chance that misleading approximate odds will be posted. Austin, with long experience at the job, will not flash any questionable odds, odds so far out of line that it is obvious the "builders" are in action.

Thus the builders' money, shortening the odds on their horse to a prohibiting figure and encouraging betting by the public on the rest of the field, will no longer have the same effect, because Austin will decline to drop the odds on the horse until the third and fourth odds are posted.

The matter of manipulating the mutuels by the "build-up" medium is the concern of the tracks and not the general public, for the public profits along with the "builders" if the logical favorite wins at false but long odds.

The element that howls when the builders put over a coup is the bookmakers throughout the country who are holding the "builders" money, too late to get it back to the track and into the mutuels and thus offset the "build-up." But the bookies have had the percentage on their side for so long that there is little sympathy for them in such instances and the general reaction is to gloat at their plight when they are tricked into paying off at large and juicy odds on horses that rated no better than even money.

The bookies must worry only during the winter season at the New Orleans and smaller Florida tracks and Agua Caliente. The betting pools in Maryland, Kentucky and Chicago are too large to be manipulated by the "builders," while New York, with its book betting, can, of course, be controlled. Despite the fact that both mutuels and oral betting is in vogue in Havana, United States bookies pay off only at the book odds.

The ease by which New Orleans betting can be manipulated is seen in the fact that pools on some races are below $10,000, while at Bowie last year the average amount bet on each race of both spring and fall meetings was $64,000.

1932 Middies Battle Notre Dame in Cleveland.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 2.—If there is any immediate prospect of the Naval and Military Academies healing their athletic breach and resuming football on a regular basis next fall, as well as competition in other branches of athletics, the powers that be are keeping it mighty quiet. This was made more apparent today with the announcement of the Navy football schedule for 1932.

Announcement of the Middies' schedule has been delayed beyond the usual time largely because the scene of at least two of the games was undecided. Maryland, which was played in Griffith Stadium, Washington, last season, will be met in Baltimore Stadium next fall. Cleveland finally landed the game with Notre Dame, over Chicago and other places which made a strong bid. Cleveland, incidentally, is the home town of "Sunshine Jim" Reedy, guard and captain of the Navy eleven.

No Mention Made Of Army.

No mention of a game with Army was made with the release, and inquiry of Lieut. Comdr. John L. Hall, jr., graduate manager of athletics, as to its possibility met with the same response as formerly, that the Army-Navy situation is entirely in the hands of the superintendents of the respective academies. It has been currently reported during the last several weeks that the breach which came up four years ago over Navy's insistence upon an eligibility code had been smoothed over and that authorities are about ready to enter into a contract, but from an official standpoint nothing has been forthcoming.

It is regarded as significant, however, by those who have been following the situation, that Navy's schedule contains only eight games, three less than last season, including the Army contest arragned for charitable causes, and that the last Saturday in November and the first Saturday in December have been left open. Under the circumstances the suggestion was at once made that either of these dates could be given for the West Point fracas. It was pointed out, however, that Army has closed a contract with Notre Dame for November 26. Hence, December 3 would be the available date.

Columbia in Big Home Game.

The schedule shows an equal apportionment of games at home and away. Columbia will be the big home game. It will be Columbia's first visit here since 1901. In those day hurdling was permissible, and the Blue and White had a star back in Harold Weeks, who was a champion in that line. University of Ohio is the only strictly newcomer in the list, and Washington and Lee will make its first visit here since 1910. As has been the case for several years, William and Mary has been given the opening date. Princeton and Penn are the other teams to be played away from base.

The complete schedule follows:

October 1, William and Mary, here; 8, Washington and Lee, here; 15, Ohio University of Athens, here; 22, Princeton at Princeton; 29, Penn at Philadelphia.

November 5, Columbia at Annapolis; 12, Maryland at Baltimore; 19, Notre Dame at Cleveland.

Ray Schalk Named Buffalo Manager

Buffalo, N. Y., March 2 (A.P.).—Ray Schalk, former catcher and manager of the Chicago White Sox, has been signed as manager of the Buffalo International League Baseball Team, officials of the club announced today. Schalk, who coached the Chicago Cubs last season, will take up his new managerial duties at once.

Women Choices Win In Florida Golf Play

St. Augustine, Fla., March 2 (A.P.).—The big four in the Florida East Coast women's golf tournament—Virginia Van Wie, Helen Hicks, Maureen Orcutt and Mrs. R. C. Lake—advanced handily through the first round matches today.

Miss Van Wie, of Chicago, and Miss Hicks, national women's champion, had the closest matches with their opponents, Miss Van Wie defeating Mrs. Joe Holsinger, Gainesville, Fla., 3 and 2, and Miss Hicks winning by the same margin from Mary Rogers, Jacksonville, Fla.

G. W. and C. U. Open Spring Grid Practice

Approximately 100 athletes reported to Coaches "Dutch" Bergmann, at Catholic University, and Jim Pixlee, at George Washington, as spring football practice got under way at these two schools. Work for the prospective gridders consisted primarily of calisthenics and blackboard drills, although Catholic's players also indulged in a brief punting and forward passing drill.

The squads will continue to report each day for the remainder of the month. Maryland and Georgetown have listed spring training for the gridders starting next week.

KLEY BEATS HAGEN.

New York, March 2 (A.P.).—Fritz Kley, 212, of Germany, wound up his acrobatic wrestling by pinning George Hagen, 212, of New York, wtih a double arm lock and body hold after 25 minutes and 45 seconds of grappling in the feature bout at Ridgewood Grove tonight.

Other results—Ralph Wilson, 206, Philadelphia, threw Norton Jackson, 200, New York, in 20:15 with a croteh hold and body slam; George Calsa, 226, Italy, and George Kotsonatos, 200, Greece, wrestled 30 minutes to a draw.

John Hansen, Boxer, Is Killed at Portland

Portland, Oreg., March 2 (A.P.).—Johnny Hansen, well-known Portland welterweight boxer, was shot and killed in his hotel room here today.

Police started search for Jack Kentworth, another boxer. Mrs. Peggy Kentworth, who was in the room with Hansen, said Kentworth fired at her after shooting Hansen. She was held as a material witness.

Goodwin Advances In Palm Beach Golf

Palm Beach, Fla., March 2 (A.P.).—Brilliant golf at the rate of one stroke over par advanced two favorites through the second round of the Palm Beach golf tournament today.

Tommy Goodwin, Monroe, N. Y. medalist, defeated J. H. Forsman, New York, one up, and Albert R. Hakes, Dunkirk, N. Y., eliminated Fred J. Hannon, Boston, 5 and 3.

Injury Bugaboo Hits Nats' Coaching Staff

Special to The Washington Post.

Biloxi, Miss., March 2.—The injury bugaboo which has been successfully staved off by the Washington ball players struck swiftly and completely among the coaching contingent in the Nats' camp today.

Coach Al Schacht came down with a disjointed knee in the pepper drill. It is not serious.

Coach Patsy Gharrity is nursing a lame back as the result of a long session of fungo hitting.

Coach Nick Altrock is favoring a sore arm, reported to be a recurrence of a sore arm suffered 25 years ago when he was the pitching ace of the White Sox.

There are no other coaches.

NO DAVIS CUP SINGLES FOR BOROTRA

By FOSTER BAILEY.

NEW YORK, March 2 (A.P.).—Jean Borotra, young as a business man but old as a tennis player, today announced sadly that the two do not mix and that never again would he take the court at Stade Roland Garros as a singles player in defense of the Davis cup.

Arriving on the Ile de France with Christian Boussus and Antoine Gentien, fellow French players, to defend his American indoor singles title, Borotra announced his retirement from active play where more than his own reputation was at stake.

"I love to play," he told the Associated Press, "and shall continue to do so, but for myself only. For myself I do not care. When I lose it is only me. But when it is your country—no, I must step aside. I am too busy to train properly.

"Doubles I may play. That is not so strenuous, nor does it depend on one man alone. I shall be ready if France needs me next summer to play doubles."

Earned Way to Wealth and Fame.

The great Frenchman, one of the most colorful of all international players, four times indoor champion of America, twice Wimbleden singles titlist, many times champion of his own country indoors and once outdoors, is 34 years old, a veteran of the World War, and possessor of a fortune he has made himself in the last fourteen years.

He has been a member of French Davis Cup teams since 1922 and was a member of the team which won the cup from the United States in 1927 although he himself had no part in the victory, playing only in the doubles which France lost.

Asked what he considered France's chances to defend the cup this year Borotra said it all depended on Henri Cochet.

"He must win three matches," Borotra said. "I know of no young player of ours who would be favored to defeat either the English or American singles players."

Borotra believes Rene Lacoste, who has been out of active competition for some years with a lung ailment, may be able to play this year. He is not overly hopeful, however, and thinks his place may be taken by one of the players who came to New York with him.

Play in Nationals Again.

The three Frenchmen will play in the nationals, with Borotra and Boussus again pairing in defense of their doubles title, and then will engage an American team in an international series played along Davis Cup lines. Borotra and Boussus won the series last year, three matches to two.

The American team has not been selected.

The nationals begin Saturday with the international series to be played March 21, 22 and 23.

Ex-G. U. Grid Ace To Wrestle Here

Sam Cordovano Tackles Winters Monday on Bolling Field Card.

Sam Cordovano, formerly a great footballer at Georgetown University, likely will have a fine following at ringside Monday night when the Bolling Field Athletic Association sponsors its all-star wrestling show at Bolling Field Armory. Representatives of the student body and alumni will be on hand when the former Hilltop sensation tangles with Danny Winters, Beloit, Wis., ace.

A born crowd-pleaser, Cordovano first wrestled as an amateur while at Georgetown. Against Winters, he will be forced to flash top form. Unusually clever and an up-and-coming member of Paul Bowser's troupe, Winters has checked off a neat series of wins in recent showings.

That Cordovano is taking his profession seriously is obvious. Line coach at Columbia University, the big boy has virtually decided to abandon football altogether in favor of the mat sport.

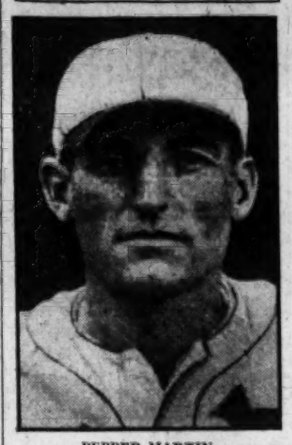
Returns to Wars



PEPPER MARTIN,
1931 world series hero, who started training with the Cards yesterday.

PEPPER BACK IN CARDINAL UNIFORM

By ALAN GOULD.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 2 (A.P.).—Anybody could have told at first glance today that Pepper Martin was back on the ball field for the first time since he took off on that wild October flight.

The flags seemed to be flying a bit more briskly. Towns folk went about their business with a lighter step. The elevator boy and the barber had all the details in no time. It looked as if things had turned the corner with as much rapidity as Pepper turns the bases.

Out on the training grounds of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals Martin took his first workout of the spring with as much enthusiasm as any rookie. Teammates who figured the Pepper might turn up a changed man, what with all the hullaboo over his exploits, quickly found out he is still just "a great little guy."

"Just say for me," declared Pepper as he sat down and wiped his dusty face in the house, "that old Pepper is glad to get back in uniform again; that he knows when he's lucky and that he is going out there this season to hustle every step of the way."

Will Travel If Necessary.

Was he planning to go after the base stealing honors this year?

"Well, I'll travel when the want me to, but it would be foolish for me to say I expect to steal 40 or 50 bases. No use of my trying to brag. I've always given everything I have in this game and I'm going to continue while I have the chance. Sure, I figure I can steal a few more bases this year than I did last, just as I figure we will win the pennant again with this great ball club, but the only place to do these things is out on the ball field."

Pepper, just past his twenty-eighth year—he's a Leap Year baby—has been around long enough to know what that fame is fleeting for the athlete who doesn't continue to come through. He agrees with Hornsby's views about the roar of the crowd. "One day they holler for you to take off your cap; the next day they yell at you to take off your uniform."

"I like to have a lot of friends," Martin went on. "I didn't mind at all the fuss after the world series so much until they began giving me too much food and asking me for too many speeches. Boy, I'll tell you I was glad when I could get away for a while, quit that vaudeville act and go out shootin' jack rabbits.

Chased Rabbits In Auto.

"No, I didn't chase 'em on foot. We drove out in the wheat fields at night; a man with a shotgun on each running board and hunted 'em with the headlights."

Whereupon young Mr. Martin got up, shook hands, called for young Jerome (Dizzy) Dean and hustled off for an afternoon fishing.

BILOXI, Miss., March 2.—Manager Walter Johnson crawled off the fence today and went out on the limb with the declaration that Joe Kuhel, and not Joe Judge, is regarded as the Nats' regular first baseman, and would start the season in that position and hold the job as long as he performed acceptably.

First base was the lone position on the Washington club open to argument with the exception of three second string pitching berths, until Johnson today voiced a firm confidence in Kuhel's ability to take care of the post. Neither Judge nor Kuhel are at present in camp, being due to report Sunday with the second batch of infielders and outfielders.

Johnson's decision to rely upon Kuhel with Judge held in reserve may be motivated by the fact that a deal for Judge with the Detroit Tigers is still pending and may be consummated before the regular season opens, thus indicating that the Nats' manager and President Griffith are content to consider Judge outside the plans for the team's 1932 campaign.

Judge Long a Star Performer.

The club's regular first sacker from 1916 when he was purchased from Buffalo until early in 1931 when he was stricken with appendicitis during a game at Boston, Judge was unable to win back the job from Kuhel who was hurriedly recalled from Baltimore, to whom he had been loaned by President Griffith when the Orioles regular first baseman, Joe Hauser, was hurt.

Kuhel maintained his position in the Washington line-up despite the fact that he ended the season with a batting average of only .269 for more than 100 games, a fact which confirms the belief that the Nats' bosses will continue to bank on his ability to come through as a strong asset.

Johnson sees a brilliant future for Kuhel with the Nats, with complete satisfaction already expressed concerning his fielding. Another year in the majors will bring an improvement in his hitting, Johnson believes. Only a lack of aggressiveness at the plate has prevented Kuhel from boosting his average several points, said the Nats manager. Low balls have been Kuhel's chief weakness, a condition that can be remedied by changing his right stance at the plate.

The training pace quickened for the Nats today at the far-flung Biloxi Field, which is hailed as the best training base east of the Mississippi. There were no variations to the regular routine of the pitchers tossing, the bunting drills, the hitting practice, volley ball and the required laps around the park, but the hurlers showed a bit more speed.

Pitchers to Let Out A Notch.

Starting tomorrow, Johnson will give the pitchers definite instructions to get the kinks out of their arms and slam 'em into the big mitts of Coaches Gharrity and Ainsmith and Catchers Spencer, Bolton and Maple. Henceforth, it will be a battle of the survival of the fittest for the second flight of pitching rookies.

◆

Carl Reynolds took his turn at the plate today for the second time and slammed the ball to all corners, winning the batting honors that have been held from the first of the week by Fred Marberry and Cliff Bolton. President Griffith and Manager Johnson displayed evident signs of satisfaction as Reynolds stepped into the ball, for the big guy from Texas is the apple of their eyes this season and the chief reason for the feeling of high confidence that is pervading the training camp.

MAD FRUMP, CLOTHO IN TRAINING

By THOMAS H. NOONE.

NEW YORK, March 2 (U.P.).—In addition to Top Flight, the C. V. Whitney establishment has named Mad Frump and Clotho as potential standard bearers for the Kentucky Derby.

Mad Frump, a handsome bay colt by Mad Hatter—Frumper, may be the one selected to accompany Top Flight in the mile and a quarter test, providing the champion requires a running mate. Clotho, a coal black son of St. Germans—Mrs. Trubbel, is quartered with the other two Whitney eligibles at Brookdale, and all are under the care of the master trainer, Thomas J. Healey.

Of the two colts, Mad Frump has the most impressive record. He started nine times, winning three purses totaling $14,535, and finishing unplaced six times. His most notable achievement was his victory in the Endurance Handicap at Bowie in November, in which he convincingly defeated a formidable field.

Post Manners Have Improved.

A high spirited sort, Mad Frump stands close to 16 hands high and weighs about 1,000 pounds. He has a long, even stride and a dazzling turn of speed once he gets going. His post manners as a juvenile were a sore trial to starters, but his behavior is said to have improved, and odds of 60 to 1 prevail against him in future books.

Clotho won only two of his fifteen starts as a juvenile, but ran some creditable races. He accounted for a maiden race at Empire City and a small stake at Havre de Grace, but was second to Lucky Tom in the Baldwin Handicap at Jamaica and finished fourth to such good ones as Osculator, Tick On and Burning Blaze in the Spalding Lowe Jenkins Handicap at Laurel. He is rated a 100 to 1 chance.

Extensive Training Nears.

Top flight, Mad Frump and Clotho have been out for daily gallops throughout the winter months and probably will begin extensive training in about a fortnight. It is still too early to make any definite predictions as to which, if any, of the three will be pointed for the Derby, but Healey has high hopes of reporting his charges fit and ready to meet their various stake engagements.

Eddie Morgan Signs; Last of Tribe's Holdouts

New Orleans, La., March 2 (A.P.).—Eddie Morgan, last of the unsigned Indians, discarded his holdout role tonight and accepted a contract, the Cleveland management announced. Morgan will attempt to hang onto his job at first base when he reports for practice at the Cleveland camp tomorrow.

Horn and London On Nursery Card

Bantams Clash on Barry-Godwin Program for Monday Night.

Tommy Horn, popular Baltimore bantamweight, and slugging Danny London, of New York, have been signed for a four-round bout on the Alexandria Day Nursery boxing card to be presented at Portner's Arena Tuesday night. The fight will open the program. London possesses an enviable reputation in the East, and is former amateur bantam champion of New York.

"Reds" Barry, Mohawk Club heavyweight, will swap blows with Bob Godwin, one of the most promising youngsters in the game, in the feature bout of eight rounds. Barry has been working diligently for the scrap at the Mohawk Club and is confident of winning. Godwin will meet Gorilla Jones, N. B. A. heavyweight champ, in Madison Square Garden, New York, some time next month.

BLAZING THE BASEBALL TRAIL

Palo Alto, Calif., March 2 (A.P.).—Manager Bucky Harris was notified today that Ken Strong, recruit outfielder from Toronto, will not be able to join the Detroit Tigers until they reach Detroit. Strong had a sliver of bone removed from his wrist this winter and the wrist has not healed as rapidly as was expected.

Harris said today that Charlie Gehringer, star second baseman, would be left behind when the first squad goes to San Francisco next week to open a seven-game series with the Seals. No chances will be taken on a recurrence of an arm ailment that handicapped Gehringer last season.

Paso Robles, Calif., March 2 (A.P.).—The Pittsburgh Pirates pounded the ball hard, far and often today in the longest batting drill of the training season. The camp practice games are to get under way tomorrow and Manager Gibson had every man on the squad swinging a bat.

Bradenton, Fla., March 2 (A.P.).—With the arrival here today of Jimmy Wilson, Cardinal catcher, five Red Birds were still missing. Frankie Frisch, Chick Hafey, Jim Bottomley, Charley Gelbert, and Clifford R. Crawford.

Sam Breadon said today he had not heard anything from Hafey and Gelbert, the two holdouts.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 2 (A.P.).—The art of stealing bases as an aid in winning baseball games was practiced by the entire squad of St. Louis Browns at their training camp today.

With speedy men such as Levey, McLaughlin, Burns, Wescott, Kingdon and Schulte, the Browns expect to make the sliding business help out

Heilmann With Reds; Recovers From Illness

Tampa, Fla., March 2 (A.P.).—Two developments brought joy to the Cincinnati Reds training camp today. Harry Heilmann, spark plug of the 1930 attack, who was out all last season with arthritis in his wrists, participated in practice for the first time in a year.

The former American League batting champion slugged the ball to all corners of the lot and appeared to have recovered from his illness.

Tony Cucinello, holdout second baseman, informed President Sidney Weil he was willing to split the difference between the club's figures and his demand. He asked a $5,000 increase.

GRAYS PLAY COMPANY F TONIGHT

St. John's Victors to Face McLean in A.A.U. Games.

TWO outstanding unlimited teams, both of them possessors of many supporters to win the crown in that division, will meet in tonight's feature District A. A. U. basket-ball game at Tech High Gym at 10 o'clock.

The clubs are the United Typewriter Grays and Company F, Hyattsville Guards. Both teams have outstanding records for the year.

Mike Scanlon, the outstanding basket-ball player in prep school ranks, will appear in the 9 o'clock game when he leads the St. John's Victors into their first battle, against the McLean (Va.) Athletic Club. While the Victors are a slight favorite, with Scanlon, Vito Perruso and other high school stars, the McLean outfit is a big, experienced team, with the clever George Heilman at the helm.

The night will be opened at 7 o'clock by the appearance of the Aloha Lites, a 130-pound team culled from Gallaudet College. The Lites face stern competition in the Georgetown Boys Club.

The Northern Preps and Ingram Church, crack 130-pound teams, meet at 8 o'clock.

Fesler, All-American Gridman, Quits Baseball

Columbus, Ohio, March 2 (A.P.).—Wesley Fesler, former all-American football star at Ohio State University, has closed his professional baseball career to enter the life insurance business here.

Fesler signed a contract with the Columbus American Association club after his graduation last year. At that time he said he would continue in baseball only if he achieved stardom.

U. S. Net Stars Play In Havana Tourney

Havana, March 2 (U.P.).—Play in the Cuban tennis championship will be started tomorrow. Among the more prominent players entered are George Lott, Wilmer Allison, Clifford Sutter and J. Gilbert Hall, all of the United States.

Play will be under the auspices of the Association Nacional de Tennis de Cuba and will be held at the Vendado Tennis Club.

Physicians Give Morris "Even Chance" for Life

Century, Fla., March 2 (A.P.).—Physicians attending Ed Morris, towering pitcher of the Boston Red Sox, said today he has an "even chance" to survive knife wounds inflicted at a party given in his honor.

The party was organized in Big Ed's honor on eve of his departure for the Red Sox training camp at Savannah, Ga. Spectators said an argument developed between Morris and White and that the 6-foot-2 athlete slapped White down, and then tripped and fell himself. White allegedly attacked him with a knife while both were prone, and inflicted two wounds in his chest.

St. Martin Is Jolted, 34-16; Northwesterns Nosed Out.

Grillmen in Victory Over Centennials by 34-14 Score.

LAST NIGHT'S SCORES.

Unlimited class—Palace, 34; St. Martin's, 16.

OUTSTANDING basket ball marksmanship, as produced by eight of the leading teams of Washington, made a scoring spree out of the second night of play in the District A. A. U. court tournament last night at Tech High before a large gallery of fans.

The Maroon Scholastics, that aggregation of youthful basket ball demons who thrilled thousands during the high school series under the name of Tech High, set the highest individual mark by downing the hard-working Swann's Service team, 67 to 20, giving a display of aiming the old cowhide at the rim that left nothing to be desired for sheer shooting ability.

In the other games Palace sprang a surprise by downing the unlimited St. Martin's quint quite handily, 34-16; the Shade Shop earned a bitter 23-18 decision over the Northwesterns, and the Olmsted Grill beat out the Centennials by a 34-14 count.

Maroon Scholastic Five Puts Swann's to Rout

Swann's offered more opposition than the Maroons had bargained for in the first half, and trailed by only 9 points, 22 to 13, at the intermission. Cleve Jarvis, a hard-working forward with a seemingly inexhaustible supply of energy, shone for the eventual losers with his sparkling floor work. With the advent of the second half, however, the superior condition of the Techites hove into view and they ran their total to 37 before the Servicemen scored. Everett Russell, Waverly Wheeler and Reichardt were important cogs in the Scholastic play.

Swann's had only six players available and when the pace became too swift it had no reserves to send into the game. Fresh men would have undoubtedly prevented the Maroon from amassing its huge score.

St. Martin's No Match For Palace Dribblers

Rated with no more than an even chance against St. Martin's, the Palace A. C. outfit displayed totally unlooked-for strength in beating the Saints by the decisive margin of 34-16. Only during the first ten minutes of the first half was St. Martin's in the swim. Palace led 16-8 at the half.

Showing a splendid type of teamplay, and an outstanding shot in Dougherty, Palace strode on to a lead of 26-8 before Denny stopped the stream of Palace baskets by sinking a snowbird and a foul shot. But Palace had long since seen victory ahead, and lost little time in getting back in stride again.

Palace's defensive play left little to be desired. The three baskets St. Martin's was able to score in the last half were recorded on sensational shots from near midfloor.

Northwesterns Beaten After Gallant Struggle

The fighting spirit of the teams battling to remain in the tournament, so much in evidence Tuesday night, dominated the actions of the second pair of 145-pound quintets to take the floor, and one of the most exciting and best played games witnessed thus far resulted. The Shade Shop, formerly the Boys Club Big Five, defeated the Northwestern A. C., 23 to 18, with a spurt in the waning moments of the fray.

The Shade Shop went into the lead at the outset and was on top by a score of 12 to 10 when the first half ended. From the first minute of play until late in the final half never more than 2 points separated the

Ketchell Filly Is Length Victor

Buddy Ensor Brings Sultry Home Second in Opener.

TROPICAL PARK, Fla., March 2 (A.P.).—Claiming races made up the program offered by the Gables Racing Association here this afternoon, but another large crowd was on hand to enjoy spirited sport and perfect weather. The Fort Lauderdale claiming purse, a test of a mile and a sixteenth, attracted nine platers of the older division. Hank Mills again inserted himself into the limelight by winning the feature aboard A. Ketchell's filly, Batty, which scored by a length and paid $28.30 for $2.00.

Skrip made matters worse for form players by beating Please, the favorite, for the place by three parts of a length. Batty covered the distance in 1:45 2-5 to equal Battling On's track record.

Please rounded the first bend in the van, but Batty came along through the back stretch and challenged the choice. Skrip was rated third by Melvin Lewis and the three horses boomed into the short stretch closely aligned and fighting for command. Under Mills' hard urging, Batty gamely drew away in the final drive. Please tired slightly at the end, Starboard Light closed a lot of ground to finish fourth.

Buddy Ensor in Comeback Attempt.

Lavelle (Buddy) Ensor, once the pride of the Jockey colony, accepted his first mount in America since he quit riding about a decade ago in the first event of the day. Buddy, who staged a successful comeback at Havana, Cuba, recently, was tendered a rousing ovation by the crowd in the march to the post. His mount was A. Snyder's colt Sultry and Buddy did his best to win, but Make Speed led him home by three lengths. Sultry saved the place from Lady Ara by the same margin.

Sultry was slow to get into his stride and his inside position was no help. Make Speed, a fast trick, shot to the front and opened up daylight and his advantage was never menaced. Sultry was hard ridden to reach second position around the bend, but despite Ensor's whipping finish he was unable to get up. The winner paid $7.10.

Jockey J. Pollard was tossed heavily when Ward in Chancery stumbled to his knees while in tight quarters around the bend, but the boy escaped with a bad shaking up.

Abstain, 4 to 1, Wins Feature At Havana.

Havana, Cuba, March 2 (A.P.).—A. G. Tarn's Abstain, unable to win a race since early in January, staged a brilliant stretch run to account for the mile and 50 yards claiming event, which was the best race on the Oriental Park program today.

With Tommy Roderick in the saddle, the 3-year-old filly just managed to get up in the final strides to get the decision over Sunny Bob from the Blue Star Stable. H. T. Catalano's Chummy was a close third.

Silverdale Again Scores At New Orleans.

New Orleans, March 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. M. B. Price's Silverdale, 6-year-old daughter of The Porter, won her third race of the winter season when she accounted for the Glenwood Purse at the Fair Grounds today.

Under Jimmy Burke's well judged ride, Silverdale set all of the pace, running the 6 furlongs in 1:12 2-5, to beat M. F. Dollard, jr.'s, Sergt. Donaldson by two lengths, the Peconic Stable's Tombereau, which forced the early pace, was third. Espinaca and Uncommon Gold completed the field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BATTY, $28.30, $16.80, $3.90; SKRIP, $9.90, $3.90; PLEASE, $2.40.

BATTY broke fast, but was taken back rounding the first turn, moved up on the outside of leaders on back stretch, went to the front with a rush making turn for home and hung on well under punishment. SKRIP raced on the outside of leaders all the way and came around than any horse in the race. He outgamed PLEASE in final drive. Latter assumed an easy lead first quarter and saved ground all the way, but tired. SUN SHADOW sulked. He was well in hand first half, but failed to respond when called on.

FIFTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 4:39. Off at 4:47. Winner, Mrs. Claiborne Blair's b. m. (6), by Pandion—Birdie O. Trained by O. Johnson. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:46 2-5, 1:06 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JACK HOWE, $7.30, $3.20, $3.90; PARNELL BOUND, $2.60, $2.30; ESSIE, $3.70.

JACK HOWE moved up with a rush going to half-mile pole, where he went to the front with a rush and drew away into a long lead. He was hard ridden all through the home stretch to stall off PARNELL BOUND. Latter hung after making his bid at top of home stretch. ESSIE steadily improved her position after a slow break.

SIXTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:18. Off at 5:22. Winner, J. T. Ireland's b. m. (6), by Black Servant—Windsor. Trained by J. J. Keith. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:46 4-5, 1:06.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MERRY WINDSOR, $6.40, $4.90, $3.70; WHILEAWAY, $5.40, $5.10; PASS IN REVIEW, $36.20.

MERRY WINDSOR broke fast and clear and drew away into an easy lead. She saved ground all the way and when released from restraint at top of home stretch, kept increasing her advantage. WHILEAWAY, outrun to stretch turn, where he made a wide turn, closed with a rush. PASS IN REVIEW hung right at end.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place, easily. Went to post at 5:48. Off at 5:49½. Winner, W. Hinphy's ch. g. (5), by Infinite—War Witch. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:48, 1:13 3-5, 1:39 3-5, 1:46 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIMOUR, $4.60, $2.30, $2.30; LION HEARTED, $2.40, $2.70; BIG BO, $3.90.

TIMOUR broke clear and fast from inside position, was rated fast and continued gamely when challenged and held LION HEARTED under control in final stages. LION HEARTED reached good position early, closed well under hard urging, but could not threaten winner. BIG BO broke slowly, but was rushed right up into contention, closed some ground around bend, but was found wanting in stretch run. NOSEGAY, outrun for six furlongs, finished steadily. PUTTER was crowded back leaving back stretch and never could get up. CHATTAHOOCHEE showed speed for six furlongs.

W. & L. PLAY WILL OPEN TONIGHT

Eastern and Central in Tourney Games at Lexington.

LEXINGTON, Va., March 2 (A.P.).—Prep and high school basketball teams from the South Atlantic area began arriving here tonight for the ninth annual Washington and Lee scholastic court tournament which opens Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Sixteen high schools and ten prep schools are represented.

Lexington and Hopewell High Schools, both of Virginia, will open the tournament in a contest that will determine the sixteenth team in the high school division. Two prep school games will follow in the afternoon to cut this division to an even eight entries.

On opening day two games will be played at the same time, but on Friday games will follow in order.

2 o'clock—Camp Chesapeake, Gloucester, Va., vs. Benedictine, Richmond.

3 o'clock—Charleston, S. C., vs. Durham, N. C. (This game may be postponed until 9 o'clock, as South Carolina team may not arrive in time.)

4 o'clock—Mount St. Joseph, Baltimore, vs. Virginia School for Deaf and Blind, Staunton.

8 o'clock—Tech High, Atlanta, vs. Covington, Va., and Glass High, Lynchburg, Va., vs. Newport News High, Va.

Second and third round contests in both divisions will be played on Friday, the first game being called at 9 o'clock in the morning. Semifinals are listed for Saturday afternoon with the final game at night. In the semifinal games the champion of each division will be determined.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

BABE RUTH is the only major league player that ever led his league in batting and pitching. With Boston, in the American League, 1915, "Southpaw" Ruth finished the season with a percentage of .750, leading the league for that season In that year, he made four home runs.

Babe was a fine pitcher, but he was a better hitter, so he was shifted to the outfield. In 1924, with the New York Yankees, he led the league in hitting with a mark of .379.

Most years leading league in runs.

Most runs one season.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Tropical Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

TROPICAL PARK, Miami, Fla., March 2.—Tomorrow Tropical Park features the Pompano Handicap, a dash of 5½ furlongs, bringing together in competition seven sprinters, four of which are fast. PANETIAN is about the fastest at this track, excepting his stable mate, Evening, and should lead all the way and endanger the track mark.

The contender is DON LEON. In their last race PANETIAN won by a half length, with DON LEON second. This should be the order of finish tomorrow. PANETIAN, with 120 pounds, concedes 3 pounds to his rival. In a previous race DON LEON beat both PANETIAN and Vanderpool, but, with racing luck on the side of the Widener horse, he can beat these in a sprint. FRENCH LASS is regarded next best and will get the show money from PENNAFE.

FIRST RACE—FLAG VIEW rates best. This F. A. Griffith juvenile has had little racing experience, but last out came from far back to finish third to Hernando. NUN'S WAY will be the contender. LAURA CLAY should improve and has a chance for third.

SECOND RACE—ORKIN is selected. Fourth to Lawyer Tuesday, he is in a cheaper field and has been freshened up since his previous appearance. CHICAGO GIRL appears the dangerous contender, but her last race was disappointing. TEACH ME showed a poor effort earlier in the week, but can do better and should get show money.

THIRD RACE—MORDEN seems to have the speed of the field. MORDEN was beaten only a neck by Don Romiro Saturday, going five-and-a-half furlongs in 1:06, leading to the stretch. This is a much cheaper field. THE HEATHEN has a chance for place, and SUN TEATIME, a beaten favorite, also should figure in the race and is the logical third horse.

FIFTH RACE—TOREALONG, on his best races, should capture the fifth, but his last race did not reflect top form. He is dropped in an inferior field tomorrow. SCARLET BRIGADE, though liking a longer route than a mile, should be second, while PLUTARCH will hold the others safe.

SIXTH RACE—TACK, second to Fetish last out, should lead all the way. BOB'S PLAY turned in a good race last out, to be third to Calgary Kay, and is the real contender in this. OATEN, winner last out over Stellanova, should hold the others safe.

STEELE TO GET REAL MAT TEST

Kotsonaros Promises Battle

Roebuck-Spears Co-Feature on Card at Auditorium.

RAY STEELE, the "crown prince" to Jim Londos in wrestling circles, who has tackled all styles and types of matmen here except the champion himself, gets probably his severest local test at the Auditorium tonight. He is called upon to meet George Kotsonaros in the feature of a five-bout card.

Kotsonaros, beaten only by Londos in his last 45 bouts, boasts everything needed to make the evening an unpleasant one for Steele. He not only is one of the strongest men in the game, but is fairly clever, can mete out plenty of punishment and also is able to absorb it like a sponge.

Nerve Massages Stop Greek.

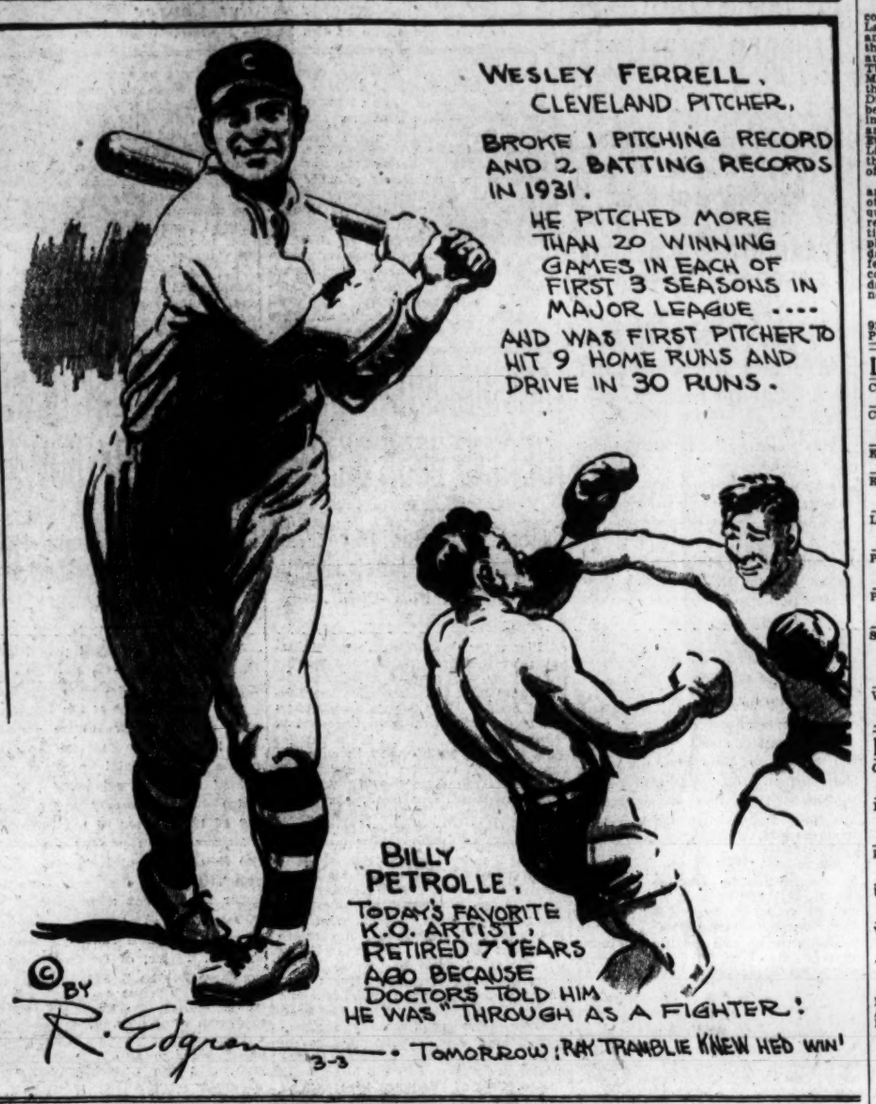
The fact that the good Doctor Wilson held Kotsonaros to a draw in New York Tuesday night might be registered as a black mark against the Greek but for the fact that Wilson specializes in squeezing his opponents' nerves and almost paralyzing them and reports from the big town are to the effect that these nerve massages proved doubly effective against Kotsonaros. Steele has none of these tricks and so the Greek will have no excuses.

Tiny Roebuck, of Haskell Indian football fame, meets Frank Spears, equally prominent in grid circles at Georgia Tech a few seasons back, in the cofeature. Roebuck has been in the grunt and groan game a little longer and probably has an edge in experience but whether this will carry him to victory remains to be seen. One thing is certain, a battle rivaling that expected in the headliner is bound to result.

Doc Wilson, with his nerve massages, also is on the card, he being hooked to tangle with Paul Harper, a newcomer to the Capital. George McLeod, another stranger, meets Benny Ginsberg, with Fred Grobmier taking on Cy Williams. This trio of bouts will be tagged with a 30-minute time limit.

Ladies, accompanied by escorts, will be admitted free.

MIRACLES OF SPORTS —By Robert Edgren



Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

THE last of a long line of important 1932 bowling sweepstakes will be crossed off the books Saturday when the gentlemen of the upper strata of the duckpin game convene at the Tivoli Alleys, in Baltimore, for an afternoon of frivolity and a chance at the top prize in the Ray Barnes Classic. The affair will consist of ten games, five to be rolled at 2:30 p. m. and five at 8 p. m.

Just how the event came to be christened remains a deep, dark secret. There have been similar competitions before, and invariably the same bowlers seek the award that awaits the winner. Undoubtedly there will be any number of high scores recorded, and it is not too far-fetched to assume that a record or two may be cracked. But there have been high scores made in previous tournaments, and any number of new marks have been written into the records. So it seems that the Barnes Classic is just another sweepstake parading under the guise of a new name.

It is understood that the only barrier between a bowler and a place in the Barnes tournament is the trifling sum of $10, which includes the cost of games. To our way of thinking, a sweepstakes tends to lose its caste when the entry fee is so small. The price-tags on others of note range from $15 to $28, and even then they do not have a high-tony name such as does the Barnes. We believe that officials in charge of the affair should have gone the limit once the word classic was incorporated in the title. The ante should have been raised, say to $35, instead of lowered. The men should be required to wear frocktailed coats and the conventional striped gray trousers in the afternoon, and at least a tuxedo, if not a full dress suit, with all of the trimmings, at night.

In addition, each contestant should be examined as to his scholarly achievements. Before starting a game he would, under our plan, be required to recite a verse or two of the Odyssey, or if that be beyond his mental capacity, decline a noun of the first declension in Latin. Then it would be a classic. This plan, if followed faithfully, would increase the entries from 20 to 30 per cent. . . . . Or maybe I'm wrong.

Another world's duckpin bowling record for women was shattered at Lucky Strike last night, when the King Pin team rolled a game of 621 to gain a 2-1 victory over the home team. Members of the winning team and their scores are: Butler, 131; Sullivan, 133; Federline, 129; Whalen, 105, and Gulli, 123. King Pin dropped the first game, 472 to 497, and won the second by a single pin, 504 to 503. They made up for lost time in the final and record smashing attempt. Miss Butler came through with a strike in her last box while Miss Sullivan went her one better with strikes in her last two, with pleasing counts on both, to manufacture the new mark.

The Donaldson brothers, all five of them, will do battle with the five Larkin boys, of Baltimore, in a special match to be rolled at Convention Hall Saturday. Hostilities will commence at 2:30 p. m.

Tom Meaney, who rolls a mean ball in the Knights of Columbus loop at Convention Hall, rolled into a new all time record for the league when he toppled 186 pins last night. Leo Diegelmann owned the former mark, a paltry 174. Hoolihan's 390 turned out to be high set. (I wonder what happened to Tom?) Marquette's 1,662 set and Palos' 600 game topped the teams.

Skinkers and Vic's In Games on Sunday

The second game in the series between the Skinker Eagles and Vic's Sport Shop for the semiproo championship of this vicinity will be played Sunday at 3 p. m. at the Silver Spring Armory. The series between these teams is just about all there is left of the round-robin series, in which four teams were involved and which started none too well, as the two teams which were in at the start have now been eliminated. They are the Howitzer Giants and French's A. C.

The Eagles defeated Vic's, 42-23, in their first meeting, and are heavy favorites to repeat Sunday. "Duke" Allen, hefty center, who was missing when the roll was called for the first game, will be back with his mates Sunday.

Senator Barbour Speaks At J. C. C. Banquet

Senator W. Warren Barbour, of New Jersey, was the principal speaker at the Bicentennial athletic banquet of the Jewish Community Center, held in the Center auditorium last night. Fred A. Hartley, jr., congressman from the same State, also addressed the gathering.

Other speakers included Morris Cafritz, M. D. Rosenberg, Maurice Bisgyer, Bryan Morse, Joe Judge, Dr. Ottenberg and Batty Kronman. The latter two captained J. C. C. teams during the past year. Ed Rosenbloom acted as toastmaster, and several songs were rendered by Wilton Mendelson and Theresa Shefferman.

Philly Ping-Pongers Play Here March 12

Ping pong goes into the intercity class of competition Saturday, March 12, at the Shoreham Hotel, when the Shoreham's team entertains the Drexel Ping Pong Club of Philadelphia. There will be matches in the afternoon and night.

Teams will consist of four men each, and both singles and doubles will be played. Tickets are on sale at Spalding's. The revenue derived will go toward the sending of the District ping pong champion to the national tournament in New York, April 15 and 16.

The District championship starts March 25.

BOSTON HOCKEYISTS WIN.

Munich, Germany, March 2 (A.P.). The Boston all-star hockey team today defeated the German Olympic sextet 2 to 0 before a crowd of 3,000.

Consumers Win Opener in Series

Beat Delaware-Hudson, 44-20, for Community League Crown.

The Griffith-Consumers drew first blood in the play-off for the Community Center League championship by winning over the Delaware and Hudson quintet, 44-20, before a large crowd at Eastern High School last night. It was the first of a three-game series.

The Griffs, champions of Section A, found the going a bit tough in the first half, which ended with them leading, 15-12. The D. & H. fought tooth and nail in this period and appeared to have a good chance of overtaking its rivals in the second half. But the Griffs surprised in the final half, and, holding their opponents to 8 points, chalked up 29 points on their own account to win handily.

HENRY W. SYFRIG, Attorney.

CHANGE OF NAME OF MERRIAM & COMPTON, INC., to TRANSPORTATION SALES, INC. W. E. MERRIAM and H. W. SYFRIG, respectively president and secretary of Merriam & Compton, Inc., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the District of Columbia, hereby certify that at a meeting held on February 12, 1932, at the principal office of said corporation in the Transportation Building, Washington, D. C., notice and publication having been waived, it was moved, seconded and unanimously voted, all stockholders of the company being personally present, namely: W. E. Merriam, L. R. Compton and H. W. Syfrig, that the name of said corporation be changed to "Transportation Sales, Inc." It was further unanimously voted that all necessary steps be taken toward the end of accomplishing said change of name. W. E. MERRIAM, President. H. W. SYFRIG, Secretary. (February 13, 1932.)

I, RUTH V. STILES, a notary public in and for the District of Columbia, do hereby certify that W. E. Merriam and H. W. Syfrig, parties to a certain instrument bearing date on the 13th day of February, 1932, and hereto annexed, personally appeared before me in said District, the said W. E. Merriam and H. W. Syfrig being personally well known to me as the persons who severally executed the said instrument and acknowledged the same to be their respective acts and deeds. Given under my hand and seal this 13th day of February, 1932. (Seal.) RUTH V. STILES, Notary Public. 13,25,3,10 their league standing. Two sliding pits were laid out.

The first batting practicee of the season also was held this afternoon.

Gilbert English, the young third baseman who came from Durham, N. C., clouted one over the left field wall in the practice game; Leonard Koenecke, the $75,000 outfielder was in uniform again after being laid up with a cold while Henry Leiber, a four-letter man in athletics and studies from the University of Arizona, and Bill Martin, a young outfielder, were on hand to show what they had to offer in return for jobs. None appeared to rate a major league berth.

Hack didn't do much in his first drill except step on the scales to reveal that he weighs 213 pounds, well over his playing weight, and to join the "awkward squad" in the daily calisthenics, but he was the center of attention all day. At the plate he fouled off three of Pea Ridge Day's offerings before straightening one out, then neatly fanned when Cy Moore offered him some curves.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 2 (A.P.). Joe McCarthy, Yankees' manager, took personal charge of his high priced infield recruits, Jack Saltzgaver and Frank Crossetti, today and gave them some instruction in how to make double plays.

McCarthy, a second baseman in his playing days, evidently was displeased with Saltzgaver's footwork when he lined the youngsters up with Joe Sewell at third and Ben Chapman at first and finally took over the sack himself to show just how it should be done. The special class lasted a half hour after the regular drill.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 2 (A.P.).—Ray Benge, who signed a contract Saturday, had his first workout with the Phillies today.

Most of today's practice was fn bunting, in which Manager Burt Shotten wants to make the team proficient. The new tactics, he said, are necessary because it no longer is easy to swat the ball over the fence.

Savannah, Ga., March 2 (A.P.).—Charley Berry, husky Boston Red Sox catcher, belted three base balls outside of the training field today as manager "Shano" Collins gave his hired men their first batting practice. The former LaFayette football star's home runs were the feature of the battery squad's second workout of the season.

Bob Weiland, former White Sox southpaw, arrived in camp, making the battery roster complete with the exception of Ed Morris, who was wounded seriously Monday during a farewell party in his honor.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 2 (A.P.).—Hurling a sweeping defy at the younger generation of infielders, especially those on the Boston Braves' pay roll, Rabbit Maranville today started his twenty-first season in major league baseball. He predicted after his opening workout, that he not only would start the season as a regular but would continue so throughout the 1932 season.

Maranville even out-pepped the lively Art Shires during the two-hour workout, in which every Brave except Bill Sherdell and Earl Clark participated. Sherdell has been authorized to report late but Clark's unexplained absence is worrying Manager Bill McKechnie.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 2 (A. P.).—Lefty Grove's famous "rubber arm" had its first workout of the season today in the hot spot of the ball park, reserved for players who want to work off surplus poundage. After about 35 minutes he came out ready to start pitching tomorrow "if they need me."

Santa Catalina Island, Calif., March 2 (A.P.).—Manager Rogers Hornsby turned his attention from his rookie infielders today to his pitchers and sent them through their first real workout of the season.

Instead of cavorting about in the outfield and bunting slow ones to the infielders, the pitchers, notably the veterans, were given drills in holding runners on base and pitching to batters.

Mineral Wells, Tex., March 2 (A. P.).—Discovery of a better batting punch was on Manager Lew Fonseca's mind today as he and his White Sox employes broke camp at Mineral Wells and headed for San Antonio.

Manager Fonseca is fairly satisfied that his fielding troubles will be solved, but is worrying about the exact batting order.

TRACTION CONCERNS PROPOSE NEW PLAN FOR CONSOLIDATION

Amended Bill Is Submitted In Attempt to Reach Committee Accord.

BAN ON TAXICAB RIGHTS OPPOSED BY COMPANIES

Compromise Is Offered on Subject of Dividing Paving Costs.

An amended traction consolidation bill differing in four essential features from the Public Utilities Commission amended draft yesterday was submitted to Senator Arthur Capper's Senate District Committee by Washington's street railway companies.

The bill was submitted at the request of Senator Capper, who, in an effort to bring his committee to agrement, asked all interested parties to draft alternate bills incorporating proposed amendments.

Points of difference in the traction companies' bill have to do with proposed limitation of operation to "mass transportation;" an amendment to restrict operations through subsidiary companies; an amendment on the question of paving costs, and another which would give Congress broad powers over the charter of the new company.

Would Ban Taxis.

The Public Utilities Commission "mass transportation" amendment would ban operation of taxicabs. The companies argue they should have the right "to provide the public with the best, most modern and most economical method of transportation in whatever form the public demand favors."

The commission's limitation on subsidiaries would inflict severe hardships on the companies, they contended, arguing that within a few years Washington will require a "large additional transportation investment" and the proposed amendment would tend to restrict the flow of capital into necessary channels.

On the question of paving costs, the companies proposed what they termed "a reasonable compromise" between the commission's original paving proposals and recommendations of the District Commissioners.

Suggested Modification.

The modification suggested by the companies provides that the new company be relieved of three-fourths of the cost of complete repaving of space for which it is now entirely responsible, as well as three fourths of the cost of new pavement.

The new company would enjoy an annual reduction of $125,000 a year in expenses under this arrangement, they estimate.

The traction heads further argue that changes in the bill made by the commission were designed to bring about a status similar to that under congressional charter. Such language would be "futile" they charge, and "would undoubtedly have the effect of creating an additional obstacle to the proper financing of the new company."

Mother of Tom Mooney To Arrive Here Tonight

Labor sympathizers will gather at the Union Station tonight at 7:45 o'clock to meet Tom Mooney's 84-year-old mother, who is coming to Washington to take an appeal for her son's pardon direct to Congress and the President.

Tomorrow night she will attend a mass meeting at the Arcade Hall, Fourteenth street and Park road. Among those who will address the meeting is John P. Finerty, local attorney, who said last night: "The frame-up system rather than the guilt of Tom Mooney is on trial in America."

Man Is Released In York's Slaying

After almost a year spent in a death cell at the District Jail, Milton Guy, colored, yesterday was released from confinement when the District Supreme Court received a mandate from the District Court of Appeals.

Guy, convicted with John Borum and John Logan, of the murder of Lamar Watson York, prohibition agent, in Brooks Court, almost eighteen months ago, was permitted to go free on his personal bond when the mandate said there was no evidence adduced at the trial that would connect him with the murder of York.

Logan and Borum are awaiting electrocution at the District Jail at a date not yet set. Guy is entitled to a directed verdict, the Court of Appeals held, and instead of going through the motions of another trial, the decision was made to free him without a trial.

Man Is Identified In Bank Robbery

Suspect in Gem Thefts Is Named as One Who Threatened Blast.

Several persons yesterday identified Edward L. Thornton, 29, colored, as the man who last Friday entered the Franklin National Bank and snatched a $100 bill after he had threatened to blow the place up with a purported nitroglycerine charge.

Thornton is also being questioned by headquarters detectives in connection with the robbery of about $1,400 worth of jewelry from suites in two apartment houses on Connecticut avenue. He was arrested Tuesday night as he ran from a house at 2615 Woodley road where a burigar alarm had sounded.

Among those identifying Thornton in connection with the bank robbery were William Sinclair and C. D. Gelston, bank employes, and Eugene Kerrick, a taxidriver.

POTOMAC YIELDS DEVILFISH

This devilfish was taken from the Potomac River yesterday and provides something of a mystery, the species usually being found in tropical waters. Harry Ingley, manager of the Lansburgh Sea Food Co., shown in the picture, who captured the fish, said that in his fifteen years along Washington's water front, he had never seen or heard of a devilfish this size being caught.

SENATE APPROVES ISLAND MEMORIAL

Bill for Project to Honor President Roosevelt Is Sent to House.

The Senate yesterday voted to accept Analostan Island from the Roosevelt Memorial Association as a permanent memorial to the late President. The bill, which carries no specific appropriation, now goes to the House of Representatives.

A second District measure, authorizing the Society of the Sons of the Revolution to erect a monument commemorating historic significance of the old Chesapeake & Ohio Canal, also was approved by the Senate. It passed over for the second time, however, a measure providing for incorporation of credit unions in the District.

Under the Roosevelt Memorial bill no plan of improvement of the island could be adopted by the Federal Government without approval of the Roosevelt Memorial Association.

The director of public buildings and public parks would be authorized to provide footbridges to the island. At recent hearings the association indicated it favors maintenance of the tract in its natural state. If it alters its decision, however, it may erect any memorial it chooses, subject only to approval of the National Park and Planning Commission.

The Sons of the Revolution marker commemorating the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal would be erected without cost to the Government. The director of public buildings and public parks would be authorized to select the site, which would be passed on by the National Park and Planning Commission.

Pick and Bullet Wounds Are Fatal

"Long Shot Red" Wells Is Facing Murder Charge as Sweetheart Dies.

Ruth Wells, 17-year-old colored woman, died at Casualty Hospital yesterday afternoon as the result of bullet and icepick wounds inflicted on her by her sweetheart, "Long Shot Red" Wells, colored, 43-year-old celebrity of the local gaming world.

A charge of murder was placed against Wells at police headquarters. A coroner's inquest will be held, but no date had been set last night. The body of the Wells girl was taken to the District Morgue.

Wells is said to have attacked the young woman after she had refused to listen to his pleas not to testify against him regarding a previous assault on her. After the attack he drove to police headquarters to give himself up. At headquarters his machine crashed into another automobile and the motorcycle of Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police.

Suitor, 51, Admits Slaying of Woman

Tilburg Enters Plea of Guilty; Sentence to Be Given Soon.

Warden Lowe Tilburg, 51-year-old suitor of Mrs. Jeanette Hendricks, of 2318 Eighteenth street northwest, who was found slain in the furnace room of her rooming house on January 8, yesterday entered a plea of guilty to second-degree murder in the District Supreme Court.

He was not sentenced, as there must be four court days between the pleading and sentencing. He faces a sentence of from 20 years to life.

Mrs. Hendricks was found slain on the early morning of January 8. Her head had been beaten in with a poker and shovel. Tilburg was arrested several hours later.

DROPPING OF POLICE 'DEAD WOOD' SLATED

Glassford Meets Leaders on Plan to Increase Efficiency.

Steps to eliminate "dead wood" in the personnel of the police department were considered at a conference of inspectors and captains with Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, police chief, yesterday.

Men who have physical or mental disabilities not now coming under the cognizance of the departmental medical board would be dropped to the pension lists to make ready for those capable of performing their duties in a more efficient manner under the plans discussed.

The officials also decided to liberalize the rules of the department with regard to the restornig of automobiles temporarily held because of traffic violations. Previously vehicle owners have had to wait overnight. Under the new rules almost immediate obtaining of automobiles after difficulties have been ironed out will be possible.

The police-firemen baseball game will be played on the Saturday after Labor Day, it was decided.

April 1, or thereabouts, was announced as the most favorable date for the holding of promotion examinations.

Fines of $65 Given Intoxicated Intruder

Fines of $65 were assessed against Burnell J. Bateman in Police Court yesterday when he was tried on charges of destroying private property, assault and intoxication.

He was accused by Miss Florence Christie, 1440 R street northwest, of attempting to enter her apartment. She screamed, and attracted the attention of Harvey W. Avery, resident manager, who held him until arrival of police.

Employment Office Forced to Reduce Committee's Funds Dwindling, Personnel of 35 to Be Cut to 6.

Because the funds of the District committee on employment are rapidly diminishing, the organization's steering committee yesterday decided at a meeting in the District Building to reduce gradually the personnel of the committee as well as its activities for Washington's idle. Meanwhile, however, an appeal will be made for jobs throughout the city.

The committee has only $107,000 left of the $250,000 appropriated by the Community Chest, and $81,000 of this will be consumed in March in providing work and paying administration salaries. The remainder, it is expected, will be used to keep a skeleton organization until next November.

The committee personnel reduction will begin next Saturday. By the middle of May the number will have been reduced from 35 to 6.

Tacomis Club Is Host At Banquet and Dance

The annual banquet and dance of the Tacomis Club, comprised of employes and members of the U. S. Tariff Commission, was held last night at the Shoreham Hotel.

LIABILITY HEARING TURNS INTO DEBATE ON TAXI SITUATION

City Cab Spokesman Says Zone System Has Not Had Fair Trial.

SAYS METERS PROTECT VEHICLE OWNERS ONLY

Gen. Patrick Favors Moderate Fare Increase; Insurance Unopposed.

Hearings on a taxicab liability law for the District yesterday developed into a free-for-all debate on the whole taxicab question, testimony ranging from demands for continued "zone" operation to meter rates and living conditions of drivers.

On the need for taxicab insurance, virtually everyone present was in agreement, though action will await another meeting of the committee. Controversy came over the Public Utilities Commission's order requiring installation of taxi meters, now tied up in the courts.

Drivers Declared Satisfied.

Albert W. Jacobson, attorney for City Cab Co., charged the commission never gave the zone system a fair trial. Announcing in favor of "wide-open competition," he alleged the commission lacked authority to issue the meter order. He declared his company "making money" and its drivers not dissatisfied with present conditions.

"Meters," he charged, "offer protection to the taxicab owners, not to the public."

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, gave testimony to the contrary. He said a survey showed the average driver underpaid, and declared a zone system can not be devised for Washington "which would be fair to all concerned." He said he favored a "moderate" increase in rates under the meter system.

Cross-questioned by William McK. Clayton, representing the Federation of Citizens' Associations, he denied a decrease in the number of taxicabs is the "ultimate purpose of the commission." He said his office is flooded with complaints of "overcharging" under the present system.

Brown Wants Meter Return.

Gen. Patrick said meters could be bought for from $60 to $120, and liability insurance for from $10 to $25 a month per cab. Mr. Jacobson testified meters would cost at least $120; that his company pays $360 a year per cab for automobile insurance in Baltimore.

William J. Brown, representing Yellow Cab Co., and Alfred D. Smith, the Independent Taxicab Owners Association, favored a return to the meter, and did not oppose liability legislation. Companies now are losing money to their drivers, who under the "zone" system are "stealing" receipts in order to live, Mr. Smith charged.

"Washington has the lowest taxicab rate in the country, if not in the world," Assistant Corporation Counsel William A. Roberts told the committee. He favored the liability bill, as did People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

Blast of Gasoline Tank Proves Fatal

Rapid Transit Co. Worker Succumbs in Hospital; Friend Recovering.

Injuries received Tuesday when the gasoline tank of a Washington Rapid Transit Co. bus exploded, while he was working on the vehicle in the company's garage at 4615 Fourteenth street northwest, last night proved fatal to Martin Swan, 28-year-old mechanic of 1257 Oates street northeast. He died in Emergency Hospital.

A fellow-worker, Eugene Longpue, 30 years old, of 4602 Fifth street northwest, who suffered a fractured ankle, is recovering. Swan received second degree burns to his face and body.

A native of Suitland, Md., Swan had been a resident of Washington for seven years. He had been employed by the Rapid Transit Co. for four years.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary G. Swan; two children, Martin, jr., 2 years old, and Cecil, 9 months; three sisters, Mrs. Estell Purdy, Mrs. James F. Staken and Eleanore C. Swan, and three brothers, Benjamin R., Joseph T. and Francis R. Swan.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

HOOVER'S PROPOSAL ON DRY LEGISLATION FAVORED BY PATMAN

TEXAN CITES GLASSFORD ENFORCEMENT REPORT

Supplementary prohibition legislation recommended for the Capital by President Hoover yesterday precipitated a lively debate between wets and drys on the House District committee.

Quoting from Superintendent of Police Pelham D. Glassford's report that prohibition is not being enforced in the District, Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, urged the commitee to sponsor legislation of the sort recommended by the President.

Hopes Against Action.

But Representative Patman reckoned without Chairman Mary T. Norton, New Jersey Democrat, a signer of the "wet petition." She said no enforcement legislation is pending in the House, and "sincerely hoped no such measure would ever be brought up."

Previously Mrs. Norton had gone on record in The Post as opposing the Howell "home raid" bill, which will be voted on by the Senate District committee tomorrow. The bill contains search and seizure provisions opposed by the Attorney General, whose recommendations the President indorsed.

Beers Support Patman.

In yesterday's House District committee debate, Representative Edward Beers (Republican), Pennsylvania, lined himself up with Representative Patman, while Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, and Representative Loring M. Black, jr. (Democrat), New York, stood with Mrs. Norton against reform.

Representative Palmisano said it was a "waste of time" to try to enforce prohibition in the District or anywhere else. Representative Black charged the President with making a bid for the dry vote.

Taxi Driver Tells Police Man Took Cab and $5

Roland R. Reives, a taxi driver, of 1837 California street northwest, last night reported to police that he was robbed of $5 by a man who hired his cab and asked to be driven to Benning road and the District line.

Reives said the man hailed his taxi at John Marshall place and C street northwest. As they drove out Benning road, he said, the man produced a gun and ordered him to stop. The bandit rifled his pockets, Reives told police, then pushed him from the machine and sped away toward Maryland.

N'Gi Again Not Hungry, But Recovery Expected

N'gi, the Zoo's little bit of almost-humanity, did not feel so well again yesterday. The convalescing gorilla infant was not hungry and took little interest in things, William H. Blackburn, headkeeper said.

"N'gi just had a bad day," Mr. Blackburn said. "The doctors say that his heart and respiration are all right. We believe that he will be entirely well soon."

Extortion Charges Denied by 2 Police

Trial of Four Members of Force Is Adjourned to March 15.

Final stages of the trial of four Fourth Precinct policemen on charges of extortion were continued until March 15 by the Police Trial Board yesterday after hearing several more witnesses in the case.

F. J. Hospidor, one of the accused men, denied all the accusations against him. O. L. Fisher, another one of the defendants, admitted conversations with Frank Adams, colored, complaining witness, but denied they had any significance.

William Leahy, of defense counsel, charged that Hospidor, Fisher and E. W. Gore and F. R. Gue, the two other defendants, were all victims of a "frame-up."

Have Odd Jobs Done Now

—By—
Senator Arthur Capper
Chairman of the Senate District Committee.

The District of Columbia committee on employment is doing an immensely valuable work in helping to stimulate employment in the Nation's Capital.

I think that every home owner and every employer should become acquainted with the fine aims of this committee, and learn how to cooperate in the important task of absorbing the idle labor in the city.

There is one very good way in which the public generally can do its bit toward relieving the unemployment condition. At one time or another, everybody finds he has a little more work than he can do, or he may not have time to finish something he has started. It may be repairs to the house or clerical work—the sort of labor that comes under the general head of "odd jobs."

These odd jobs, even though they may last only a little while, even though a man can not afford to pay as much as he thinks he should for the work, will be really appreciated by men who are willing to earn an honest penny at any kind of labor.

If you have an odd job that should be done, let it be done now when the need for work is greatest. Just get in touch with the District committee on employment at 1000 Pennsylvania avenue northwest or telephone District 3530.

ANTIHOARDING DRIVE BEGINS HERE SUNDAY

Theater and Radio Speeches Slated by Reconstruction Chiefs in Capital.

Plans for Washington's participation in the President's antihoarding campaign are rapidly taking shape, Newbold Noyes, chairman of the District area of the Citizens Reconstruction Organization, announced last night.

A total of $112,000,000 in currency has already returned to circulation in the Nation since the beginning of the drive on February 5, Mr. Noyes stated.

Citing of the figures, Mr. Noyes said, show what will result when the intense campaign begins Sunday night with radio addresses by President Hoover, Col. Frank Knox, chairman of the reconstruction organization; Ogden Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, and a message from former President Coolidge, to be read by Charles G. Dawes.

In the local drive, Mr. Noyes said that cooperation of radio stations and motion picture theaters has been secured. The mails are carrying letters asking 150 leading citizens to serve on a central directing committee.

The effort of the drive here will be to appeal to "common sense and reason" to put idle money to work as an aid to economic recovery of the country, emphasizing that there can be no permanent expansion of credit until hoarded money in excess of $1,500,000,000 is brought back into circulation.

4 Plays Planned Tonight in Contest

1932 Tournament Will Be Continued at Eastern High.

The second series of one-act plays in the 1932 One-Act-Play Tournament will be held tonight at Eastern High School, Seventeenth and East Capitol streets, at 8 o'clock.

Four plays will be presented, owing to the postponement of "The Trying Time," which was to have been presented last Tuesday, and will be presented tonight by the North Carolina Avenue Players.

Other plays scheduled are: "Martha Washington at Valley Force," by the Rebecca Dial Studio Players; "The Stoker," by the Pierce Hall Players, and "Quara Medicine," by the Columbia Players.

500 Entertained By Indiana Society

Senator James E. Watson was toastmaster last night at the annual banquet and dance of the Indiana State Society at the Shoreham Hotel. Senator Watson is president of the society.

Guests at the speakers' table were Vice President Curtis, Senator and Mrs. Felix Hebert, of Rhode Island; Senator and Mrs. Arthur E. Robinson, of Indiana; Representative and Mrs. Arthur H. Greenwood, of Indiana; Representative and Mrs. William P. Connery, jr., of Massachusetts; Representative and Mrs. Harry C. Canfield, of Indiana; Mr. and Mrs. John Mock, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Omar Bundy, Dr. and Mrs. James Shera Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. John Huston and Miss Meda Ann Martin.

More than 500 guests attended the banquet. Dancing and bridge followed the dinner. Entertainment was furnished by Miss Dia Buell, pianist, who came from Boston for the occasion; Fred East and Bill Raymond, duet; Mrs. Selma Selinger Klein, soloist, and the Hebert Ensemble.

Two Held in Crash When Man Is Injured

One man was slightly injured and two were arrested yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into the rear of another on K at First street northwest. Frank Borden, 34 years old, of the Soldiers' Home, was treated at Casualty Hospital for cuts and bruises and later booked on a drunk charge.

CHARTER DAY DINNER IS HELD BY HOWARD

Faculty and Alumni Hosts as University Marks 65th Anniversary.

Faculty and alumni of Howard University were hosts last night to members of senior classes of all collegiate departments at the eighth annual alumni-senior charter day dinner held in the university dining hall. The prandial program concluded a day of celebration of the sixty-fifth anniversary of the granting of the charter to the university.

Members of the subcommittee of the House of Representatives on appropriations in charge of the Interior Department appropriation bill, who spoke at exercises yesterday morning, included Representative Edward T. Taylor, of Colorado; Representative Burton L. French, of Idaho, and Representative Frank Murphy, of Ohio. Louis C. Cramton, former chairman of the committee and now a legal adviser in the Interior Department, also spoke, reviewing his service to the university while in Congress.

Mr. Taylor, present committee chairman, spoke at length on reduction of the university estimates by the committee, stating that this reduction reflected in no wise on the university, but was a part of the general governmental program of retrenchment. Representative Murphy also was emphatic in stating that the university may look forward confidently to future development along lines of carefully planned achievement.

At the dinner last night Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, university president, made the principal address. W. Justin Carter, of Harrisburg, Pa., spoke on behalf of the trustees; J. P. Murchison, for the faculties; Nathan O. Dobbins and May Miller for the alumni. Charles W. Williams was master of ceremonies.

2 Women in Auto Robbed at Station

Armed Man Forces Them to Give Up Money and Jewelry.

Two women, waiting in an automobile parked at the east side of Union Station for the husband of one of the pair, were held up last night and robbed of their pocketbooks and a diamond ring. An armed man climbed into the tonneau of the automobile in which they were seated and forced them to turn over their cash.

Mrs. Eva H. Duncan, 35 years old, of Bluefields, W. Va., and Mrs. Grace Deitrich, of 510 B street southeast, were the victims. They had parked at the station while Alyn Duncan, husband of the Capital visitor, went to the postoffice to mail a letter.

He had hardly left before a man climbed into the rear of the car and pointed a pistol at them. Mrs. Duncan gave him one ring, valued at $75, but concealed her diamond engagement ring. Some one came out of the station at that moment and the man ordered the women to silence and fled. Mrs. Duncan also lost $15 in cash, keys and papers, While Mrs. Deitrich's pocketbook contained $4 in cash.

Chinese Near Death From Poison Dose

A large quantity of poison he is alleged to have swallowed last night, while sitting in a park across from the Treasury Department, Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, may cost the life of Ting Sing, 46 years old, a Chinese of 3218 Fourteenth street northwest.

The man was found slumped unconscious across a park bench by Policeman C. E. Hansboro, of the Traffic Bureau. A bottle of poison was clutched in his hand. At Emergency Hospital it was found that Sing's condition was critical and he was removed to Gallanger Hospital.

According to police Sing declared he was "tired of living." The address he gave on Fourteenth street is occupied by a Chinese restaurant.

MRS. BEAVERS BACKED FOR NATIONAL OFFICE

Mrs. Harriett Colfax Grove was elected State regent of the District Daughters of the American Revolution at the thirty-first annual meeting of the State conference in Memorial Continental Hall yesterday. She succeeds Miss Helen Harmon.

Other officers named at the session were: Mrs. George M. Grimes, vice State regent; Mrs. Edward M. Weeks, chaplain; Mrs. Pedro Capo Rodriguez, recording secretary; Mrs. Jean Labat, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ada C. Mills Payne, treasurer, and Mrs. Arturo Y. Casanova, historian. The conference unanimously indorsed the candidacy of Mrs. John M. Beavers as recording secretary of the national society.

In an outstanding and stirring address, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general of the organization, urged the group to help defeat the Griffin bill which would allow citizenship to persons without taking the oath of allegiance in which they pledge themselves to bear arms in case of war.

She stressed the importance of supporting the bill of Senator Hale which would authorize the expansion of the Navy to the strength permitted by the Washington and London naval treaties. Ardent support of the Jeffer bill, which would make the advocacy of the overthrowing of the Government a crime, was also backed by Mrs. Hobart.

The conference went on record in favor of five bills which are before Congress: The Hale bill, the Jeffers bill, the Jenkins bill, the Moore bill and also the Bachman bill, which provides the strengthening of immigration laws to prevent the admission of Communists and to provide for the immediate deportation of all alien Communists.

The conference will close its three-day session with morning and afternoon meetings at Memorial Continental Hall today. Representative Ruth Bryan Owen will address the morning session on "Patriotic Education."

Workman Is Injured In Fall From Truck

A sack of potatoes sent Milton Francis Howlin, 37 years old, of 707 I street southeast, to Casualty Hospital yesterday in an undetermined condition. He was loading a produce truck in the rear of 737 Eighth street southeast when he slipped and toppled from the tailgate. The sack of potatoes fell across his head.

Hospital authorities said he may have a fractured skull.

Forgiveness' Divine Nature Stressed by Bishop Strider

"Let us divest ourselves of all commercialism, and think of God and forgiveness," the Right Rev. Robert E. L. Strider, Bishop Coadjutor of West Virginia, said yesterday from the pulpit of the Church of the Epiphany at the afternoon Lenten services.

"Forgiveness is not something that can be bought," the bishop said, "it is not a commercial transaction. It is a personal relation between the Heavenly Father and his children. Forgiveness comes from the verb 'to cover,' and God covers human sin. God forgives not because he was angry, but now is pacified; rather because he loves us, and it is his nature to have mercy.

"Forgiveness removes sin, but not necessarily the penalty of sin. To break moral law is like breaking physical law. It starts chains of consequences which can not be halted. Sin robs me of God, and forgiveness restores him, but when I sin, I have to be prepared to suffer the natural consequences.

"Forgiveness is active, and not merely passive. It would heal, restore and rebuild. It helps men to be not what they might have been but what they might yet become."

Capper Sees Barber Shop Sunday Closing Bill Defeat

An unfavorable vote on the barber shop Sunday closing bill was presaged last night when Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee announced his personal poll of the committee disclosed majority opposition.

Introduced by Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, the bill would force Sunday closing of barber shops as a "health measure." Barbers testified at Senate hearings they must now work seven days a week in order to keep their trade.

The bill was vigorously opposed by the Seventh Day Adventists, who branded it primarily "religious," and by antiblue law groups, which saw in it the "opening wedge" to Sunday blue law legislation.

Senator Capper said he had not completed his poll, but expected to announce the results at a meeting of the committee, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.
